French Rush Warships To Minorca; Threaten To Curb Il Duce Alone

'Pirate' Warplane Strafes Air Base

Mystery Ship Is Feared Italian; Russia Also to Resume Free Action.

By the United Press

Perpignan, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 25—The French government, angered by three "pirate" attacks on her shipping within 24 hours, dispatched warships tonight to the Balearic Island of Minorca, where this morning an unidentified seaplane machine-gunned the French airmail base.

At the same time, the government threatened to break away from her united front with Great Britain at tomorrow's meeting of the nonintervention sub-committee in London unless Premier Mussolini of Italy is forced to abandon his hold on Spanish Morocco and the Balearic Islands.

The government announced in a communique that a warship was rushing to Minorca, tiny Loyalist island off the eastern coast of Spain, to seek the identity of the raider and "take necessary steps."

Simultaneously a destroyer squadron was reported to have steamed out of Toulon naval base, headed down the Mediterranean toward Minorca under secret orders and loaded with ammunition.

Neutral military observers along the frontier feared the plane, if identified, might prove to be an Italian warplane from the neighboring island of Majorca, Spanish insurgent base.

12,000 Italians at Majorca.

The French government, alarmed by the Italian threat along the "lifeline" of French colonial communications, has been informed that 12,000 Italian soldiers and scores of fighting planes—including one piloted by Premier Mussolini's son, Bruno—are stationed at Majorca.

The three "pirate" attacks that aroused French anger were:

1. The bombing and sinking of the French cargo steamer Oued Mellah by an unidentified plane 50 miles east of the Balearics Sunday.

2. Today's machine-gun attack on the French air-mail base at Fernells, Minorca—station on Air-france's Marseille-Algiers route of the French dispatch boat No. 91.

3. An attempt by a Spanish insurgent warship to capture the French freighter Procida 10 miles off St. Marie de la Mer, and the freighter's rescue by a French patrol boat.

Ship Sinks, Crew Saved.

The wave of "piracy" increased French tension and alarm on the eve of tomorrow's nonintervention meeting in London in which the fate of the wobbly "hands-off-Spain" structure erected by 27 nations may be decided.

The French government two weeks ago proposed, as a means of guarding the North Africa communication lines through the Mediterranean, that the British and French Navies make a "peaceful occupation" of the island of Minorca to prevent it from falling into Italian hands.

Catalonia Facing Isolation Threat

Copyright by the Associated Press.

The Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo Franco masses troops in Zaragoza for an offensive to cut Catalonia from the portion of Spain to the south still held by government forces. Shaded territory shows how the loyalists steadily have been driven from much of Spain. (Story on Page 16.) To the right of the map are the Balearic Islands, the northernmost of which, Minorca, was reported last night to be the objective of a squadron of French naval vessels. Orders to proceed there followed three "pirate" attacks within 24 hours on French shipping.

Maritime Union to Make Issue Of S. S. Algic Mutiny Charges

By the United Press.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 25.—Joseph Curran, National Maritime Union organizer, told 600 union seamen tonight that the union intends to make an issue of the jailing of 14 former seamen of the Government-owned S. S. Algic.

They met at water-front headquarters to protest indictments charging the Algic's crew with mutiny aboard the vessel in connection with a "sit-down" in the harbor of Montevideo, Uruguay.

The imprisoned men, all members of the N. M. U., pledged themselves tonight to remain in jail until Government officials recognize "the injustice they are doing to us and all other seamen."

Kennedy Assailed.

"We're going to show that Kennedy (Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy of the United States Maritime Commission) is not going to put seamen in jail in an ordinary labor dispute," Curran told the union meeting. "We've got to get rid of that bird."

[The union demanded that the Bureau of Marine Inspection and the Maritime Commission be prohibited from acting in labor disputes affecting American seamen, the Associated Press reported. The union adopted a resolution asking President Roosevelt, the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Commerce to direct the two government

Man Resembling Assailant of Coed Attacks 2nd Girl

A masked white man closely answering descriptions of the sex maniac who beat and slashed Ruth McMillen in Rock Creek Park more than a week ago, last night attacked an attractive 18-year-old business college student in a lonely lot near Tenth street and Michigan avenue northeast.

His victim was admitted to Gallinger Hospital for examination and treatment.

Police said the girl left a Brookland trolley at Twelfth and Michigan avenue northeast after attending night classes, to go to her home on Seventh street northeast. She took a short cut through the lot, where she was accosted and dragged from the path.

She told police the man was 25 to 30 years old, about 5 feet 8 inches tall, of dark complexion and dressed in a dark suit, dark overcoat and dark hat.

Carnegie Building In District to Get $300,000 Addition

The Carnegie Institution of Washington yesterday applied at the District Building for a permit to erect a three-story brick, concrete and stone addition to its present quarters at Sixteenth and P streets northwest. Estimated cost is $300,000.

Work on the addition will begin "within a week or so," W. M. Gilbert, administrative secretary of the institution, said last night, and explained the new structure, extending east on P street, will double the present capacity of the organization's quarters.

The building will include space in the basement for exhibits, coat-rooms, boiler room and reviewing rooms. On the first floor will be an auditorium, lecture room, foyer, offices and exhibit space, and the third floor will contain a library, conference room and offices.

Cloudy, Warmer, Today's Forecast; Rain Due Tonight

Partly cloudy and much warmer was the Weather Bureau forecast for today after mercury dropped below the freezing mark yesterday for a minimum of 31 degrees at 6:45 a. m.

Probable rain was predicted for tonight, but officials said a reoccurrence of Friday's rainfall was not likely.

Bombs Rake Japanese as Drive Stalls

Battle Raging in Tazang, Leveled by Terrific Bombardment.

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai (Tuesday), Oct. 26.—Chinese bombing planes carried the fight to Japanese positions on Shanghai's northern fringe early today while Chinese infantrymen held doggedly against the onslaughts of some 160,000 Japanese along the twisting front north of the city.

A Japanese army spokesman admitted the Japanese drive had "slowed down" after six days of the fiercest offensive operations of the ten-week battle for Shanghai. Foreign experts estimated some 300,000 Chinese troops were holding the line northwest from Shanghai to the Yangtze territory.

The city's international areas rocked to the bomb explosions, while new heavy anti-aircraft guns recently installed in Hongkew by the Japanese searched the moonlit heavens for the raiders.

Shrapnel in Settlement.

Shell fragments and shrapnel fell in the international districts and police reported three Chinese had been killed and 19 injured in those areas in the last 24 hours.

Five miles northwest of the city Chinese and Japanese were fighting hand to hand in the streets of Tazang, key to the back door of the Chinese positions at Kiangwan and Chapei, where the Chinese flank is protected by the neutrality of the International Settlement.

The Japanese spokesman said the main body of the Chinese was retreating westward from Tazang, while the Japanese were pressing steadily against Chinese units left to fight the covering rearguard action. Japanese said they had occupied several villages west of Tazang and were attempting an enveloping movement under cover of a smoke screen.

"Thin Strip of Ruins."

A correspondent of the Domei (Japanese) News Agency, the first civilian to fly over the entire Shanghai front, reported not a wall was left standing in Tazang. He described the city as "a thin strip of ruins."

"It was unbelievable," he said, "that the place was once inhabited by humans. Below us we could see plainly bodies and wrecked war equipment littering the roads and fields and floating in the creeks."

The Japanese said the Chinese were falling back on Nanziang and Chenju, main bases of their "winter line" about 10 miles to the rear of the first line of defense where the battle began six days ago.

Foreign military experts believe the Japanese will take a breathing spell to bring up their heavy artillery to blast out the barbed wire that has slowed their adavnce.

British to Fire on Planes.

As the result of the Sunday morning attack in which a British soldier was killed, British army authorities issued orders to all their defense posts to fire with out hesitation on any attacking planes.

The Sunday attack, which endangered a score of American and other foreigners, was referred to London and Toyko for settlement. Maj. Gen. A. P. D. Telfer-Smollett, commanding British troops at Shanghai, said the incident was "too big to be dealt with locally." Local British officials lodged two protests with the Japanese, who announced a court of inquiry was meeting to determine responsibility and possible punishment of the pilot.

Labor Conferees to Exchange Terms Today in Sudden Move For Peace at Present Session

Labor Organizations Start Peace Parley

Harris & Ewing.

In an attempt to find a basis for peace between the two warring factions, delegates from both the A. F. L. and C. I. O. met yesterday at the Willard Hotel. Seated (left to right), Sidney Hillman, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, C. I. O.; George M. Harrison, Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, A. F. L.; Philip Murray, United Mine Workers, C. I. O.; David Dubinsky, International Ladies Garment Workers, C. I. O. Standing (left to right), Abram Flaxer, C. I. O.; Joseph Curran, National Maritime Union, C. I. A. F. L., C. I. O. Delegates Possess Authority to Repair Split.

One Day's Meeting Ends Preliminaries

By William V. Nesslv.

Two little groups of labor leaders, bearing the peace hopes of millions in the bitterly estranged A. F. of L. and C. I. O., yesterday slashed their way through all the preliminary obstacles to a frank discussion of terms on which the two giant organizations may be welded into one.

With startling suddenness, the rival committees from the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization announced in midafternoon on the first day of their history-making conference that they had settled all questions of procedure and representation and today would actually take up "the main question, the war between the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O."

The surprise news that all preliminary questions had been solved came in the questioning of Philip Murray, leading the C. I. O. forces, and George M. Harrison, head of the A. F. of L. delegates, after the joint statement had been issued.

In reply to queries Murray said: "This is not a temporary conference. It will take up the main questions in dispute tomorrow." He turned to Harrison for confirmation. The latter agreed:

"This is a full-fledged conference and we will attempt to negotiate a final settlement."

Murray added:

"The A. F. of L. delegation assures us it has complete authority to negotiate an agreement. It goes without saying that our committee also has such authority."

Announcement Is Surprise.

Several dozen newsmen and photographers who had besieged the conferees throughout the day were hardly prepared for the announcement. They had looked, instead, for a protracted argument over the proposal of the C. I. O. that a conference of 100 men on each side be summoned, in order that the smaller unions might have representation and that they might be relieved of any fear, John L. Lewis, C. I. O. head, said recently, of "being sold down the river."

After an hour and a half of discussion in the morning, and little more in the afternoon, the two committees issued a joint statement, saying:

"The conference was occupied during the afternoon with a continued discussion of procedure to be followed in further conferences, and it was agreed that the two committees will meet again

Highest Court Rejects Plea of Scottsboro Boy

Black Does Not Take Part in Refusal to Disturb 75-Year Term.

By Robert C. Albright.

The United States Supreme Court yesterday upheld, in effect, the 75-year sentence against Haywood Patterson, one of the nine colored defendants in Alabama's famous Scottsboro case.

Justice Hugo L. Black, former Senator from Alabama, took no part in consideration and rejection of the colored youth's appeal from the verdict of a Morgan County, Alabama court.

Although no reason was assigned for Black's failure to participate, observers noted he not only was a former resident of the State, but that his former Ku Klux Klan connections almost certainly would have resulted in a challenge of any action in the case by him.

Twice before yesterday's refusal to interfere in the case, the Supreme Court had saved Patterson's life. Five years ago it set aside conviction of the Scottsboro defendants, because they lacked adequate counsel. Two years ago the court ordered a new trial for Patterson and Clarence Norris, another defendant, the only one of the nine who now faces death.

Originally all nine were accused of attacking Mrs. Victoria Price and Ruby Bates, both white, in a moving freight train near Scottsboro, Ala. After six years in prison, charges against four of the youths were dropped. Patterson in the

13 Cordial Men Sit in Luxury To Reunite 8 Million Unionists

Peace Parley Is More Like a Business Meeting; Good Nature Reigns as Murray Faces Harrison Amid Familiar, Rich Surroundings.

Thirteen men sat down around a couple of tables pushed together in a Willard hotel room yesterday and undertook to settle the union affiliations of almost 8,000,000 American working men and women.

Like a business organization's meeting to plan a sales campaign, it was—smiling good-nature everywhere, a few shy jokes, cordiality seeming little strained, over all apparent determination to be pleasant and conciliatory.

Gone was the hatred, the taunting, the challenge and the villification that for two years have marked labor's vast war. Three men on one side, 10 on the other, trying to solve among them problems that have kept the Nation's union labor split wide open for two years.

They sat among sumptuous furnishings, but they are accustomed to such surroundings. Obsequious bellhops brought ice water, cigarette trays and other conveniences, but such service is not new to them. For they are all experienced in such conferences. Hotels in New York and Atlantic City, Chicago, San Francisco, Detroit and Denver all have seen them in the years of labor parleys that have marked the development of unionization from coast to coast.

"Phil" Murray, 50, Scottish-born, who worked in the coal pits of his native land before coming to America, was there, eyes gleaming in friendly fashion as he took up the battle of his long-time companion, John L. Lewis.

George Harrison, 43, more like a business executive than a former railway clerk who has worked his

Van Zeeland Quits With His Cabinet In Bank 'Scandal'

Brussels, Oct. 25 (AP).—Premier Paul Van Zeeland resigned tonight to defend himself as a private citizen against charges of his political enemies concerning the administration of the Belgian National Bank when he was its vice governor five years ago.

His cabinet ministers resigned en bloc with Van Zeeland and drafted a letter to show their confidence in his integrity.

Van Zeeland's decision threatened to force a postponement of the Nine-Power Conference called for October 30 at Brussels to seek "amicable means" of ending the Sino-Japanese war.

Moves were under way to retain the same kind of coalition government with little change of personnel, perhaps headed by Foreign Minister P. H. Spaak or Finance Minister Henri de Man.

Grayson, Starling Witness Cohan's New Deal Satire

Baltimore, Oct. 25 (AP).—Prominent Washingtonians came here from the Capital tonight to see George M. Cohan lampoon the President, but none would say publicly what they thought of "I'd Rather Be Right," musical satire on the New Deal.

Among those who saw Cohan's rollicking impersonation of Mr. Roosevelt was Col. Edward W. Starling, chief of the White House secret Service, charged with safeguarding the President.

"I just came with some friends to enjoy the show," he said. "I'm not making any reports or anything."

Also in the crowd at Ford's Theater were Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, president of the American Red Cross, and Bernard M. Baruch, New York financier and Presidential advise.

Wallace Increases Cotton Crop Slash By 2,000,000 Acres

By the Associated Press.

The AAA made a 2,000,000-acre reduction yesterday in the acreage it has set as a limit to be planted to cotton next year.

Approving the 1938 agricultural conservation program, Secretary Wallace fixed its "goal" so far as cotton is concerned at 27,000,000 to 29,000,000 acres. The goal previously had been placed at 29,000,000 to 31,000,000 acres. The change was decided upon because of the unusually large cotton crop this year.

Synthetic Radium Created; Sulfanilamide Cures Meningitis

Cancer Treatment Simplified

By the Associated Press.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Creation of dozens of new radioactive elements and compounds for treatment of cancer and many other diseases was announced today before the National Academy of Sciences.

This development, which promises to "break the market" on radium and make diagnosis and treatment of human disease easier and quicker than ever before, was discussed by Dr. L. A. Dubridge, of the University of Rochester, and Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, of the University of California, Nobel Prize winner.

The new substances are produced by subjecting them to intense radiations of neutrons, deutrons, protons and other particles of matter. These powerful radiations are created by the cyclotron, a whirligig machine which "kicks" the particles around and around until they attain energies of millions of volts.

"We are now able to make any element radioactive by treating it with these radiations," Dr. Lawrence declared in an interview following his paper describing an improved type of cyclotron. "This is opening up a whole new field of medical treatment, comparable to the discovery of X-rays and radium almost half a century ago."

In addition to making single whole elements radioactive by bombardment, Dr. Dubridge added, the isotopes—the twins, triplets and quadruplets of the elements—can be isolated and made radioactive individually,

Drug's Record Perfect in 11 Cases

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—A medical milestone, the 100 per cent recovery of 11 persons with streptococcus meningitis, who took the sensational new remedy, sulfanilamide, was reported to the American College of Surgeons today.

Streptococcus meningitis has been one of the "death sentence" diseases. It is the most deadly form of meningitis. The 11 cases moreover, were all complicated with mastoiditis.

"They were," said a spokesman for the College of Surgeons, "the kind of cases of which we say 'There is no hope.'"

Sulfanilamide is the remedy made from a red dye discovered in Germany and used in a mixture which recently has been causing deaths over a large part of the United States. The fatal combination is an "elixir" in which the American Medical Association has blamed the deaths on other drugs than the sulfanilamide.

Today's report to the College of Surgeons gives the other side of the picture of this new medicine, explaining why physicians all over the United States have been eager to test it.

The 11 meningitis victims were treated at Rush Medical College, Chicago. The medical men there, the surgeons were informed, were surprised at the curative powers of sulfanilamide. They had expected no such result as the complete cure of the 11 cases.

Still another side of the dramatic effects of sulfanilamide was reported today at a clinic of the Chicago Lying-In Hospital. It

Physician Uses Bee Stings to Cure Arthritis

Venom Supplies Diseased Tissues With Oxygen, He Explains.

Dr. Bodog F. Beck, Hungarian physician and surgeon, is undoubtedly the only beekeeper among the beekeepers' conference here who is interested in the bee's venom rather than in its honey. The explanation is that he uses the venom to treat arthritis and rheumatism.

His treatment consists of applying the stings of live bees to the swollen joints and muscles of his patients. The venom from the stings, when injected in the blood steam, gives off ultraviolet rays, he has found, which in turn provide oxygen for the diseased tissues.

He imports the bees from the country and handles them himself. "Sometimes when I open a package 10,000 bees swarm all over the office and all over me," he said in an interview yesterday. "But I never get stung. That's because I handle the bees rather than mishandle them. You know, a bee is a kind creature by nature. It's only when you frighten them that they attack."

Kings Lost Gout.

Dr. Beck was the first to put the venom on a scientific basis, although people have been using it for aches and pains for centuries without knowing why it helped them. Both Alexander the Great and Charlemagne were cured of gout by the accidental sting of a bee, he says.

Bee culture had interested Dr. Beck for years as a hobby. Finally his professional curiosity was aroused and he began a series of experiments which proved to him that arthritis is caused by "suboxidation" or insufficient oxygen in the blood stream, a situation corrected by bee venom.

His discovery took him from surgery and he now makes the treatment of arthritis his sole occupation. He has a clinic in New York and also treats private patients with remarkable results. Three New York hospitals have adopted his method. Its advantages as compared with other treatments are that it is effective in 85 out of 100 cases, sometimes cures a patient within three days and is simple and inexpensive.

Stings Rarely Felt.

He sometimes uses as many as 75 bees on one patient. His method is to grasp the bee in his finger and press it against the diseased joint. The creature's resistance to this rude procedure takes the form of a sting. "Arthritics are practically immune to the painful part of the sting," he explained.

Dr. Beck can produce ancient illustrations to show that bees were used centuries ago in military tactics. A besieging army would toss a few buckets full of the insects into a town and conquer it in no time. The same tactics, he points out, were used during the World War, when 10,000 German soldiers and a few million bees kept 300,000 allied troops out of East Africa.

The ancients believed that the souls of the dead were transported to heaven by bees.

Honey Sweets Displayed.

Yesterday's sessions of the conference were devoted principally to business meetings and to a food contest, in which cookies and candy made from honey were entered. Speakers included President Charles A. Reese of the American Honey Producers' League, H. H. Root, of Medina, Ohio, H. C. Dadant, of Hamilton, Ill., Kenneth Hawkins, of Watertown, Wis., and E. G. Le-Stourgeon, of San Antonio, Tex.

The three-day conference is sponsored by the American Honey Producers' League, the American Institute, the Apiary Inspectors of America, the National Ladies Auxiliary, Queen Breeders and Package Shippers, the Southern Breeding Conference and the Virginia State Beekeepers' Association.

Today the Queen Breeders and Package Shippers will hold a public session from 9 to 9:30 a. m. J. M. Robinson will speak on "Using Honeybees." The Southern Beekeeping Conference will meet at 10:45 a. m.

Nephew Loses JobasO'Connor Closes Office

Bank Examiner's Branch Here With 10 Workers Ceases Dec. 31.

In what was described as an economy move, Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor yesterday acted to abolish the Washington or local office of the chief national bank examiner and release ten of its employes, including his nephew.

The economy order will take effect December 31. Informally, it was estimated the curtailment would save about $50,000 annually, primarily to depositors in closed banks assessed for the Government's bank liquidation work, now greatly reduced.

Among those receiving notices are William V. O'Connor, nephew of the comptroller, employed as attorney, and C. H. (Kit) Williams, executive assistant to the general counsel, son of former Senator John Sharpe Williams, of Mississippi.

Others released will be Ernest Russell, Richard C. Dyas, Howard Murphy, George Biddle, George Coffelt, attorneys; Walter Funk, Minter Farnsworth and Howard Eckerman, employes.

A letter to the employes from Leo P. Barse, general counsel to the comptroller, said "you can rest assured that this action is in no sense a reflection upon you personally or upon your work."

It was explained "that in view of the substantial decrease in the number of receivership banks and the expected continued closing of receiverships" it was necessary to reduce legal division costs by curtailing personnel.

Since the 1933 peak of about 1,738 national banks in receiverships, more than 800 have been completely liquidated, the comptroller's office said. It was estimated that approximately $1,445,000,000, or 72.5 per cent, has been paid to depositors.

SECRETARY OF STATE Cordell Hull announced last night a reciprocal trade agreement with Venezuela is being considered.

Hull invited interested parties to suggest products that should be considered in revising tariff schedules. Formal announcement of the Government's intention to negotiate with Venezuela will follow yesterday's preliminary procedure, and will include publication of articles on which this Government may grant tariff favors to Venezuela.

Sixteen reciprocal agreements are now in effect, while formal negotiations are in process with two other countries, Czechoslovakia and Ecuador.

American exports to Venezuela in 1936, a wide range of industrial and agricultural products, were valued at nearly $24,000,000, while imports from that country, mostly coffee, cocoa and crude petroleum, amounted to slightly more than $26,000,000.

Stock sales, aggregating 65,761,719 shares, or 70.5 per cent over August, had a September value of $1,601,793,211, an increase of 43.1 per cent over August.

GOV. E. W. MARLAND, of Oklahoma, announced his candidacy yesterday for the Democratic nomination to the United States Senate in 1938, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Ponca City, Okla.

Marland, ineligible for a second term as Governor, will oppose Senator Elmer Thomas, Democrat.

RICHARD ARLEN, the movie actor, seeking a redetermination of deficiences totaling $1,958 in his 1934 income taxes, told the Board of Tax Appeals yesterday he landed a $5,000 a week job with Fox Films by spending $6,701 on a trip to Europe in 1934.

Arlen and his wife, Jobyna Ralston, contend the Internal Revenue Bureau erroneously disallowed $10,380 they deducted for travel and other expenses. Arlen told the board he quit Paramount because of a salary cut. Since he had forfeited his contract, he said, he was forced to supply his own publicity which he did by sailing for Europe with his wife and baby.

The trip was so successful, Arlen said, that on his return, Fox engaged him at $5,000 a week, $3,500 a week more than Paramount offered.

SEN. DAVID I. WALSH (Democrat), of Massachusetts, declared himself yesterday "in favor of establishing a stronger fleet for the Atlantic Coast, particularly the creation of a large fleet of small vessels, such as submarine chasers, to be used in the protection of our harbors."

An Associated Press dispatch from Clinton, Mass., said Walsh asserted "I do not believe we are any nearer war than we were ten years ago." He described war feeling on the West Coast as much more apprehensive than that on the Atlantic Coast.

Co-operative Gets $87,000

Mrs. Boyle, King Refute Salary Charges, Cite Free Headquarters.

A statement answering adverse criticism of policies of the Citizens Emergency Committee for Feeding Hungry School Children was issued last night by Mrs. John Boyle, jr., chairman, and Sylvan King, vice chairman. "All money contributed goes to the fund," they announced. "That is, there positively are no salaries or expense accounts."

Mrs. Boyle has received numerous complaints from persons who claim the committee has been extravagant. Last night's statement explained that "there is no member of our committee drawing a salary. The Mayflower has donated rooms for headquarters. The only expense for the charity ball is the nominal charge for the ballroom and music. Regarding the 'vanishing teas' and money solicited through the 'silent guest,' the entire amount goes to the fund."

Music for the charity ball at the Mayflower tonight will be furnished by John Slaughter's Orchestra. Fifty high school cadets will assist the committee. Among entertainers will be Peter Hamilton, astro-analyst, who will give readings of the future to those attending.

Among patrons and patronesses of the event are Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State; Herr Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, Ambassador from Germany; the Ambassador of the Soviet Union and Mrs. Troyanovsky, and Admiral and Mrs. Cary T. Grayson. Nearly 3,000 are expected.

Tickets may still be purchased at the Willard, Mayflower and Harrington hotels. A $5 patron's ticket will provide a free hot lunch for 72 children, while a $2 admission ticket will take care of 28 children for one day.

District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen is honorary chairman of the ball; Miss Ruth Evelyn Madden is chairman. Admiral Grayson, chairman of the floor committee, will be assisted by Henry Nestor, Frank Mahoney, William McGuire and Patrick Cooney. Carter Barron is in charge of entertainment, and Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal is handling ticket sales.

Laborites Leading In Australia Vote

Sydney, New South Wales (Tuesday), Oct. 26 (AP).—Labor, which made small gains in the lower house in Australia's general election, today appeared to be threatening government control of the Senate.

Labor senatorial candidates were leading every state as returns from Saturday's voting still came in. The government planned hope for a majority in the Senate on the state of South Australia.

Should the government capture the three seats at stake there, it would retain its control of the 36-member upper house, where it now controls 17 seats not contested at this election.

Social Justice Sold by Coughlin

Detroit, Oct. 25 (AP).—Sale of Social Justice, publication of Father Charles E. Coughlin's National Union for Social Justice, to an organization headed by Walter Baertschi, of Toledo, was announced today.

The announcement followed a statement by Baertschi that Father Coughlin would not again write for the paper or deliver radio addresses on national issues until learning "whether he can speak his own mind."

Baertschi, chief lieutenant in the Social Justice Union, announced formation of the "Committee of One Million Christians" whose members, he said, will seek resumption of Father Coughlin's broadcasts.

20 Die at Peiping As Trains Collide

Peiping, Oct. 25 (AP).—Twenty persons, including several Japanese soldiers, were killed today when a troop train collided with a passenger train just outside Peiping on the Peiping-Suiyuan Railway.

Foreign observers said a check here of hospital trains bound for medical centers indicated Japanese casualties in North China thus far totaled about 12,000 wounded and 4,000 killed.

Bandit Denies Montague Took Part in Holdup

Ex-Convict Defends Golfer; His Mother and Friend Support Alibi.

By the Associated Press.

Elizabethtown, N. Y., Oct. 25.—A confessed participant in the $700 roadhouse robbery for which John Montague, Hollywood golfer, is on trial late today declared the brawny defendant was innocent.

William Carleton, who served a prison term for the crime, testified Montague was not one of the four robbers who on August 4, 1930, held up the Jay, N. Y., resort owned by Ben Hana, a Japanese.

A few hours earlier Montague's mother and another witness declared he was in Syracuse, N. Y., more than 200 miles distant, two hours before the robbery.

Carleton asserted a man named "Burns" and not Montague was a fourth member of the gang.

The State charges that Montague, alias Laverne Moore; Carleton, Roger Norton, another confessed participant, and John Sherry, now dead, executed the holdup.

Mrs. Mary Moore, the defendant's mother, told the jury in a clear voice that her son—known then as Laverne Moore—went to bed at home at midnight on August 4, 1930, the night of the crime and remained there until the next morning. This was two hours before the holdup.

In the midst of this testimony the State obained through cross examination of McLaughlin an admission that Montague "ran liquor" during prohibition.

McLaughlin, a newspaper circulation supervisor, said on direct examination that Roger Norton and Carlton, both of whom served prison sentences for robbing the Hanna place, and Montague and he drove to the roadhouse in late July, 1930, "to see if the place would be a good drop for liquor."

Earlier, the defense paraded to the witness stand a half dozen former friends of the defendant to testify Laverne Moore, as they knew him before 1930, was a man of "good" reputation for truthfulness and honesty.

The last time Mrs. Moore saw her son until he returned from Hollywood last summer, she said, was on August 5, the morning after the crime.

"He told me he was going to play golf or baseball, kissed me goodbye and went out," she testified. "That's the last I saw of him."

Traffic Crusader Seized on Charge Of Drunk Driving

Alexander J. Montgomery, director of public relations of the American Automobile Association and traffic safety crusader, was charged on Sunday with driving while drunk and colliding, it was revealed in Police Court yesterday.

Eighth Precinct police arrested Montgomery near Thirtieth and Albemarle streets northwest, after an accident in which Montgomery's machine is alleged to have struck a car owned by Julius Arnold, colored, a former chauffer for Montgomery.

Released under $800 bond, Montgomery appeared yesterday in the corporation counsel's office in Police Court. The case was continued on bond for a week.

In a written statement to police, Arnold said he was in the basement of his present employer's home when he heard a crash Sunday afternoon. Running out, he said, he saw his machine had been in a collision.

He said he went to Montgomery's home and that the man told him he would come to see him after dinner.

Montgomery said he was returning from a golf game when he struck the car. His eyeglasses were broken and the glass cut his lip, he said. Knowing to whom the parked car belonged, Montgomery said he went to his home, 2936 Brandywine street northwest, to treat the wound.

After receiving first aid, Montgomery said he decided to eat dinner and then return to the scene. When he returned, Montgomery said a crowd had gathered and that the police arrested him.

Damage to Arnold's car was estimated by him at about $75.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Oct. 25.—A gunman who smiled as he emptied two pistols killed George "Les" Bruneman, gambler and night club operator today in the second attempt on his life in four months.

Killed, too, was Frank Greuzard, bystander, who sought to follow the killer and his three accomplices from the dingy little night spot where they found their victim. Miss Alice Ingram, 24-year-old blonde nurse who accompanied Bruneman to the cafe, was wounded twice in the legs.

Bruneman was killed because of bookmaking and gambling activities, Police Capt. Bert Wallis believed. He ordered a roundup of underworld "big shots." None of them had been found tonight.

Lived on "Borrowed" Time.

Bruneman was tried in 1932 as an accomplice in the kidnaping of E. L. (Zeke) Caress, Agua Caliente, Mexico, race track handicapper. He was acquitted in 1935 in a second trial.

On July 20 he was shot in the back as he wandered along the boardwalk in the Redondo Beach amusement zone. He professed then not to know his would-be assassins, but later told police he was living on "borrowed time."

Police were unable to say tonight when Bruneman returned from an Arizona retreat he occupied after the first shooting. Although heavily armed when he entered the Roost Cafe, he was without a bodyguard.

Struck by 11 Bullets.

Bruneman was playing the role of a "big shot" when the end came. He had bought several rounds of drinks for the house. The automatic phonograph was blaring a tune—started with Bruneman nickels. He was joking about how "crazy women were over him."

Into the noisy place stepped three men. A fourth waited in an automobile. Two stood at the door while the third walked to Bruneman's table and started firing.

Mrs. Elaine Huddle, who, with her husband, operated the cafe, said the killer fired four shots into the victim as he slumped. He was hit 11 times.

Greuzard followed the gunmen to the door. Three more shots rang out and he dropped dead.

"Somebody wanted to get Bruneman awfully badly," said Capt. Willis. "I don't think the gunmen who visited the Roost this morning were local boys. They were probably brought here from St. Louis or Chicago. Whoever it was that wanted to get Bruneman so badly took no chances on the job being bobbled a second time."

Indictment Charges Fugitive With Embezzling $39,610.

Martin J. Gaughen, 32, former cashier of the Community Savings Bank of Edgewood, Iowa, was arrested here yesterday by agents of the Washington field division, Federal Bureau of Investigation, on a fugitive warrant charging embezzlement of $39,610.17.

Gaughen waived preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage and was placed in District Jail in default of $5,000 bond to await an extradition warrant.

The former cashier, who resigned his position upon request last January 27, was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury at Sioux City, Iowa, October 20. Investigation revealed that he was living here and he was taken into custody yesterday in the office of the Washington field division.

The FBI said the information on which Gaughen was indicted was procured by agent "qualified in accounting."

He was said to have been in executive control of the bank before his resignation was requested.

Virginia Bruce Engaged.

Judge Scolds Abell In Custody Battle

Refusing to issue a preliminary injunction to George Abell to restrain his former wife, Mrs. Luvie Moore Pearson, from removing their 4-year-old son from the District, and from advancing a Reno (Nev.) court action in which she sought permanent custody of the boy, Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue, in District court, yesterday declared neither of the parents was fit to have the child.

"Their minds," he said, "are poisoned with selfishness to such an extent that they are using the child to satisfy their ill will and hatred of one another."

Abell had filed suit here to regain at least partial custody of the boy. Meantime, his former wife had obtained in the Nevada courts a decree awarding her permanent custody of the child.

Treasury Head Loath to Echo Budget Claims

'How Can I Tell You' When It Will Be Balanced? He Asks.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry A. Morgenthau yesterday declined to join at this time in 1939 budget-balancing predictions made by the President and echoed by other high Administration officials.

"How can I tell you?" replied the wily Treasury head to the direct question: "Will next year's budget be brought into balance?"

Othe Claims Sited.

"How can anybody know?" Morgenthau continued. "Until the President sends his budget message to Congress in the first week in January, I don't think anybody can say."

Both Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and Chairman Joseph Kennedy of the Maritime Commission said recently the President is determined to bring expenditures into line with revenues in the next fiscal year, and the President later confirmed this intention.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the House Ways and Means Committee, declared for a balance budget without increase in the total of taxes, following a recent White House conference.

Progress Reported.

Morgenthau reported "progress" in Treasury conferences with Acting Budget Director Daniel Bell, seeking funds to finance a proposed corn loan, within the current budget. He declined to give his views on processing or other taxes to finance the proposed ever-normal granary program, first item to be considered by the returning Congress.

In identical letters to chairmen of the Senate and House Agriculture Committees, the President said additional farm legislation must be financed by new taxes. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace recently hinted that new processing taxes may be needed.

Morgenthau said the Treasury "will be ready" if called on to testify on general tax revision before House and Senate committees. "Our job is to study taxes all of the time," he added.

Honolulu Prince Clears Americans In Death of 'Wife'

Honolulu, Oct. 25 (AP).—A scion of Hawaii's royal family expressed bewilderment today as police considered what charge to place against him in the death of the girl he called his wife.

Balm Suit Is Dropped Against Opera Singer

San Francisco, Oct. 25 (AP).—Amid surprised exclamations from the judge, spectators and defendant, Miss Octavia Picchioni today dropped a $200,000 breach of promise suit against Ezio Pinza, handsome opera star.

Neither the Italian beauty nor her attorney could be found for an explanation of the dismissal, filed 15 minutes before court convened to hear the suit. "I am delighted," Pinza beamed. "I never, never asked her to marry me!"

161 Army Rifles--and an Oboe-- Stolen From Colored Schools

Loss of $7,000 Worth of Cadet Equipment Revealed in Report to Committee of Education Board; First Thefts Since 1921.

Loss of rifles and other military gear of value totaling more than $7,000 issued to cadets in three colored schools here was revealed yesterday in a report by an inspector from Third Corps Area headquarters in Baltimore to a closed session of the personnel committee of the Board of Education. The report was made public by Dr. G. C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent of schools.

Missing equipment listed by Dr. Wilkinson was appraised by military authorities at $7,362.37 and included:

322 cotton web belts, issued in 1912.
The .30 caliber rifles, issued for drill, were given a replacement valuation of $41.36 each, and the .22-caliber target rifles were valued at $54.89 each. Ordnance Department officials said the high-caliber rifles were almost useless as weapons, since the firing pins had been removed, and that if these pins were replaced the barrels were so pitted as to make them inacurate.

Although Dr. Wilkinson receives an annual report on military property in schools, no losses have been reported since 1921, he said. Evidence indicates the equipment has been taken over a period of several years, and its loss was first discovered last March. The clarinet and five rifles have been recovered, Dr. Wilkinson said.

The investigating committee included H. H. Long and A. K. Savoy, assistant superintendents of schools; H. A. Haynes, principal of Browne Junior High School; W. L. Savoy, principal of Garnet-Patterson Junior High School, and W. N. Rivers, professor at Miner Teachers College.

Moses Deserts Fusionist Slate On Comptroller

LaGuardia Aide Supports New Deal Choice for Key Position.

New York, Oct. 25.—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia's park commissioner bolted the city administration's ticket in one important race today, as the New York municipal campaign moved forward in a shower of epithets.

Commissioner Robert Moses announced that, while he would support the Fusionist LaGuardia, he would vote in the November election against the mayor's running mate for the strategic office of comptroller, Joseph D. McGoldrick.

The commissioner said he would support Frank J. Taylor, the running mate of the Democratic mayoralty candidate, Jeremiah T. Mahoney, not for any "lack of appreciation" of McGoldrick, but because of "respect" for Taylor's ability and the need for an opposition man in city hall after the "great impending Fusion sweep."

Meanwhile, the Mahoney headquarters, which is calling the mayor "Communist" and "red," put out a tract titled "Municipal Menace Number One," which said in its first line:

"Fiorello H. LaGuardia is a lawless, promise-breaking, rabble-rousing mayor.

"By his actions and orders he has aided and abetted communism, encouraged mass disorder, emboldened bandits and racketeers, and caused public parks and recreation centers to be shunned by women and children."

Earle Adds 500 Police In Auto Death 'Plague'

Pittsburgh, Oct. 25 (AP).—Gov. George H. Earle ordered the immediate addition of 500 new members to the State Motor Police today to combat a "major plague" of deaths and injuries on the highways. The executive said the safety program conducted by the State on a widespread scale had made "only a dent" in reducing the traffic toll.

Janitor's Account Of Anderson Death Used Against Him

William (Major) McAfee, 61-year-old colored janitor, may know tonight his fate in connection with the charge that he murdered Mrs. Henrietta Anderson, 36-year-old mother of three children, it appeared yesterday when Justice Jesse C. Adkins admitted into evidence McAfee's statement on the case.

Attorneys for the Government and for McAfee battled two days over whether the so-called "confession" could be considered by the jury. Detectives said McAfee made the statement without duress and without any promises.

McAfee was called to the stand and, in the absence of the jury, was asked flatly, "Did you kill her?"

"I don't know. I don't know," he replied, twisting his hands. He was called upon to identify the poker with which Mrs. Anderson was slain.

The statement by McAfee, on which he identified his signature, stated that he and Mrs. Anderson, a Veterans Bureau clerk, had been drinking heavily, and that he became jealous of some of her callers. After that, he said, his mind was a blank and he did not know what happened until after he had been under arrest several hours.

Tobacco Prices Mount In Heavy Auctioning

By the Associated Press.

Heavy offerings and rising prices were noted yesterday at the opening of the week's auctioning at Virginia's Old Belt tobacco markets.

Warehousemen predicted a check of the day's sales at South Boston would pass the half-million-pound mark. A large quantity of tobacco was in the South Boston warehouses for today's auctions. The South Boston sales to date, including Friday's sales, total 6,786,448 pounds, averaging $25.22.

Highest Court Rejects Plea of Scottsboro Boy

Black Does Not Take Part in Refusal to Disturb 75-Year Term.

last trial was convicted of attacking only Mrs. Price. Patterson and three others received prison terms. Norris was sentenced to death.

Samuel Liebowitz, New York criminal lawyer and chief defense counsel for the Scottsboro defendants, told the Associated Press in New York yesterday: "We're not licked yet."

"We have a definite plan for new action," Liebowitz said, "and we will start working on it immediately."

PWA Loan Ruling Sure.

The decision was the first of the present court term involving racial questions. Because of prejudices attributed to the Klan, interest centered on Black, a former member, who has renounced its reputed principles. The Alabaman's seat on the court has been unsuccessfully challenged on Constitutional grounds, but the question of his former Klan membership has never been raised in the court. Had he participated in the Scottsboro case it might have opened the way to a new challenge.

Before taking a two-week recess, to prepare the court's first formal opinions of the term, the high tribunal assured a ruling on Constitutionality of PWA loans and grants to municipalities for hydroelectric plants by agreeing to hear a test case brought by the Duke Power Co.

Involving in its wider implications some 50 projects on which the Government has loaned $51,000,000, the Duke case immediately affects only the $2,852,000 loan and grant to Greenwood County, S. C., for a plant at Buzzards Roost.

The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the legality of the Greenwood County grant, and the Duke Power Co. appealed to the Supreme Court, charging unconstitutionality. Power company lawyers claim unlawful delegation of legislative power, deprivation of property without due process of law and illegal invasion of States' rights.

Last spring the court agreed to hear a similar test of PWA legality by the Alabama Power Co. Arguments on the issues involved in both cases will be heard beginning Monday, December 6.

Other rulings by the court yesterday:

Agreed to hear arguments on the legality of the 3 per cent New York State excise tax on gross income of utilities to raise State unemployment relief funds. The New York Supreme Court upheld the tax, and the New York Rapid Transit Corporation and the Brooklyn and Queens Transit Corporation appealed.

Declined to determine whether a song titled "Starlight Help Me Find the One I Lo—" was copied from an earlier puplar lyric called "Confessing." This left in effect a Second Circuit Court of Appeals judgment against the publishers and composer of "Starlight."

Rejected for the second time a petition of Chicago grain commission merchants for review of litigation challenging constitutionality of the 1936 act broadening Federal regulation of commodity exchanges.

Turned down appeal by South Bend, Ind., from Indiana Supreme Court ruling upholding constitutionality of a State tax on the city's municipally owned power plant. The Supreme Court noted "want of a properly presented substantial Federal question."

Declined to interfere with a lower court ruling giving the Federal District Court of Missouri jurisdiction in a suit filed against the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and others by Guy A. Thompson, trustee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Co.

Case Six Years Old.

The Scottsboro litigation and the Patterson sentence, in which the Supreme Court yesterday declined to take a hand after twice interfering in favor of the colored defendants, has been subject of constant litigation, retrials in the Alabama courts and appeals therefrom since the alleged attacks on the white women in 1931.

Two of the colored youths are now under 75-year sentences, one is sentenced to 99 years and one to death. Pattersons appeal was the first to reach the Supreme Court since the latest trial.

Patterson contended the case should have been tried in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Alabama, because of the "utter impossibility of obtaining a fair trial in Morgan County."

In his petition to the high court, he said he had been charged with rape, but the trial court's charge to the jury was in language permitting "guilty" verdict if he engaged in conspiracy, even if no rape occurred.

Rites Tomorrow For Joseph Duffy

Funeral services for Joseph Duffy, 60, who died yesterday at his home, 1220 Lawrence street northeast, will be conducted at St. Anthony's Church at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

A native of Akron, Ohio, Mr. Duffy had been in Government service more than 30 years and at the time of his death was superintendent of binding at the Government Printing Office.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Irene Coffey, of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Keener, of Akron. Burial will be in Akron.

Union to Make Issue of Algic Mutiny Charges

Curran's fire was directed against shipowners who sponsored the bill creating the maritime commission and against Kennedy and Daniel S. Ring, commission member, the removal of both of whom the union has demanded.

Brewing Since 1935.

"You could see this Algic case coming ever since 1935," Curran said. "A group of shipowners in New York saw the ship strike of the West Coast and engaged a smart lawyer to prevent seamen's unionism from gaining any strength on the East Coast."

The result, he said, was the bill creating the Maritime Commission.

Curran revealed he had cabled the crew of the S. S. Collingwood, now at Montevideo, to strike in sympathy with the Algic's crew. Patrick Whalen, Baltimore union chief, had asked them to demonstrate.

The unionists cheered the decision of the imprisoned seamen to "sit down" in their prison cells.

"The United States Maritime Commission as owners of the vessel, now supported by the United States Attorney General, is attempting to characterize us as vicious criminals," said a statement signed by the jailed men.

Defend Action.

They contended they had "done nothing which every other working man would not do" and that the law invoked for their arrest was enacted in 1790 and was not intended for use against seamen.

The union meeting was called to protest indictment and arrest of the crew members on charges of "conspiracy to deprive the captain of the command of his ship in a foreign port."

The incident leading to the arrests was a "sit-down" in sympathy with Uruguayan longshoremen which ended when Kennedy ordered the Algic's skipper to put the leaders in irons and prefer charges against them when the crew returned to Baltimore.

Ready to Stay in Jail.

Two days of hearings by a board of the Bureau of Navigation ended Friday when the board turned the case over to the Department of Justice as too serious for its jurisdiction.

"We are not criminals and never committed a crime, and we are ready to stay in jail until the Department of Commerce, the United States Maritime Commission and the United States Attorney General, all acting in concert, recognize the injustice they are doing us and all other seamen who make similar protests while their vessels are in safe harbors," the jailed men's statement said.

The 'Girl With the Million Eyes' Warned Not to Tell Fortunes

Policewomen Testify Miss Atwater, Minister of Church of Life Eternal, Predicted Rosy Futures Which Never Materialized.

The Rev. Adeline M. Atwater, 40, "the girl with the million eyes" and minister of the Church of Life Eternal, learned yesterday she can't promise marriage, boat trips and better jobs to District policewomen unless she's prepared to deliver on time.

She was released on her personal bond in Police Court yesterday and told by Judge Robert E. Mattingly, to confine her activities to spiritual things after three policewomen testified she predicted rosy futures for them last January for $1 apiece. She was arrested at her home, 2003 O street northwest, Saturday after she had repeated her predictions, they said, for another $1 apiece.

Policewomen Kathryn Shearon, Beatrice Ball and Alice A. Parrish each testified the woman had read their fortunes from cards.

Miss Shearon said she first went to the minister by appointment January 2. She was told she would be married in June, but first would receive a better position in April. Neither prediction has been realized, Miss Shearon testified.

Miss Ball said she was told a friend would die and leave her a large legacy with which she would take an ocean trip. Miss Parrish was told she was to be married and that she also would take a boat trip with a fortune left by a friend.

Miss Atwater produced a charter, nearly 3 feet high, which was presented to her—for $50— from the "Supreme Psychic Church of Science in America." She said the charter ordained her a minister of the Church of Life Eternal, which conducts services in her home every Sunday night. She also presented a certificate from Justice Albert A. Wheat, of District Court, authorizing her to perform marriages. She admitted having no license to tell fortunes.

Miss Atwater told Judge Mattingly she has been psychic since she was 6 years old and at one time was a vaudeville performer.

3 Men and Woman Safe in D.C. After 18 Hours Adrift on Bay

Three men and a woman returned to Washington yesterday after spending the previous night on Chesapeake Bay in a disabled boat.

Eli Chayt and Sidney Chayt, brothers, of 709 Eighth street southeast; Sellman Blaustein, of the 4900 block of Kansas avenue, and Miss Barbara Denig, of 1740 Euclid street, were adrift in the choppy waters for 18 hours.

The party left Eastport at noon Sunday on a fishing trip in the 35-foot boat owned by the Chayt brothers.

"We had the boat trawling all afternoon," Eli Chayt said. "This weakened the battery, and when we wanted to turn back the motor wouldn't turn over. As we were directly in the shipping lane, what with night coming on, we all felt we were doomed."

It was impossible for the party to flash a light, since the boat's lights were also on the dead battery.

"We saw a large ship approaching us, and we all started yelling and blowing a foghorn which we had," he related.

The Norfolk-bound freighter sighted the little boat, towed the party down the bay and cut them loose off Greenbury Point. Meanwhile, the freighter had called the Coast Guard, Eli Chayt said.

The three waited all night for another tow and yesterday morning made a sail from sheets and attempted to make shore. They were picked up by a boat from Cambridge, Md., and towed into Annapolis harbor.

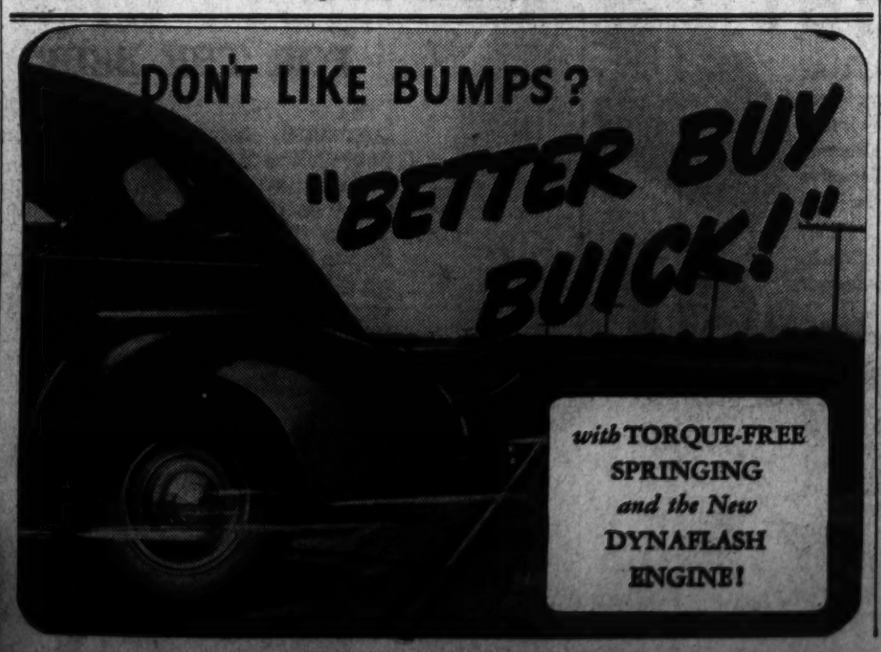
Society Hears Lecture On Black Appointment

Miss Clara W. McQuown, lecturer, spoke on "The Passing Scene in World Affairs" at last night's meeting of the Wheel of Progress at the Washington Hotel. The meeting opened the organization's new season.

Miss McQuown discussed Associate Justice Black's appointment and President Roosevelt's Chicago address on the international situation. Also on the program was 10-year-old Betty Jane Owen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Owen, who gave several readings.



$306,795 Lost By Hospitals In Maryland

State Aid Meets But Half Cost of Free Treatments.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Oct. 25.—State-aided hospitals in Baltimore City and the 23 counties "lost" $305,795 in free treatment for charity patients during the fiscal year ended September 30, the Board of State Aid and Charities reported.

The total appropriation by the Legislature for all hospitals, city and county, was $368,500, but the 34 institutions "earned" $675,295, Samuel E. Shannahan, board chairman, said in the yearly hospital report. Only four hospitals failed to use their entire appropriations, while all of the others exceeded their appropriations.

The Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, the board's report showed, topped the list in free-patient treatment. The Hopkins institution was allotted $20,000 for the year, but, on the basis of 88 cents a day for each free-patient day, actually "earned" $93,669.

The State makes no provision for reimbursing the institutions for additional treatment, but all funds which the institutions do not use are returned to the State treasury. The St. Mary's Hospital at Leonardtown is an exception. Any balance remaining from the State fund is applied by law to reduction of the Leonardtown institution's indebtedness.

Compulsory Radio Sought for Planes Using D. C. Airport

Richmond, Oct. 25 (AP).—Plans for special rules to improve the safety of the Washington-Hoover Airport in Arlington County were considered today by the State corporation commission.

It is proposed to forbid landing of planes not equipped with radio receiving apparatus, so that all aircraft coming in will be controlled by the air traffic tower.

R. E. Steele, director of aviation for the commission, made the recommendation. S. J. Soloman represented the National Airport Corporation. Eppa Hunton 4th, appearing for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., which operates a blimp and has a blimp hangar at the field, asked that further hearing be given on rules that may affect its craft. The commission granted the request and set the hearing for November 30.

Maryland Youth Doomed to Hang

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Oct. 25.—William Brown Read failed today in another attempt to escape death for the torch slaying of W. Earle Dollman, 34-year-old Charleston salesman.

The supreme court for a second time refused an appeal to the 25-year-old resident of Four Corners, Md.

He is scheduled to be hanged November 5, expiration date of a second stay granted by Gov. Holt.

The latest petition before the court had with it repudiations of the confessions of Read's two companions of the road, War Joseph Kirby, 22, of Baltimore, and Lawrence Gingell, of Kensington, Md.

Their affidavits, made in prison, said they admitted participation in the Thanksgiving eve killing a year ago because of third-degree methods of State police.

Customer Is Shot In $1,200 Holdup Of Wanamaker's

Philadelphia, Oct. 25 (AP).—A customer in the John Wanamaker Department Store was wounded seriously today as he tried to block the escape of a holdup man who took $1,200 from a cashier on the eighth floor of the store.

Police arrested a man identified as A. W. Greeg in a chase through the streets and found $1,200 and a pistol on him. The wounded man was Morgan Knight, of Philadelphia. At the Jefferson Hospital he was reported to have been shot in the abdomen.

As the holdup man ran down stairs to escape Knight grappled with him on the sixth floor.

Bride, 75, Mate, 24, Spend Honeymoon At Shucking Corn

Frederick, Md., Oct. 25 (AP).—Farmer William Duvall, 24, and his 75-year-old bride are spending their honeymoon shucking corn and if Mrs. Duvall has her way, they will remain on her rented 60-acre farm.

Duvall, who came from a neighboring farm Saturday night to wed the widow three times his age, said he wanted to go to Baltimore to seek a job. But Mrs. Duvall, the former Mrs. Nancy Seabrook, said:

A. S. Brown Rites Set for Tomorrow

Funeral services for Arthur S. Brown, 60, District business manager of the National Union Assurance Society, who died at his home, 1420 Shepherd street northwest, Sunday, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the home. The Rev. Harry W. Bergen, D. D., pastor of Hamline M. E. Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Born in England, Mr. Brown came to Washington nearly 50 years ago and spent his active business life here. Besides his position with the National Union Assurance Society, he was a member of the executive board and financial secretary of United Council, No. 200, president of the Hospital Service Association and a member of the United Council bowling team, National Union League.

He had been connected with the city postoffice 31 years and retired three years ago as superintendent of Petworth postoffice. He was a charter member of Petworth Masonic Lodge, Royal Arcanum, and was a graduate of the University of Maryland.

Mr. Brown is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary D. Brown, and a daughter, Elizabeth D. Brown.

Anti-Syphilis Group Includes 16 From Capital

Gen. Johnson, J. Edgar Hoover Among Those on Hygiene Committee.

Sixteen members from Washington were announced yesterday as among the 200 who had accepted the invitation of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of the American Social Hygiene Association, to serve on the organization's National anti-syphilis committee. Gen John J. Pershing is chairman of the committee, whose members include physicians, lawyers, statesmen, religious, industrial and welfare leaders.

The Washington members are Willard W. Beatty, director Department of Education; Miss Earlene White, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women; Mark Sullivan; J. W. Studebaker, Department of Interior; Surgeon General Thomas Parran of the United States Public Health Service; Mrs. Roberta C. Lawson, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Maj. Gen. M. W. Ireland, Miss Mary A. Clark of the Children's Bureau; J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation; Joseph H. Himes, Edward J. Heffron, executive secretary, National Council of Catholic Men; Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the Daughters of American Revolution; Miss Harriett M. Allyn, National Association of Deans of Women; Miss Mary Anderson, women's bureau, Department of Labor, and Miss Katherine Lenroot, chief, Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.

The committee hopes to obtain $500,000 for continuance and expansion of its education program. Until February 2, National Social Hygiene Day, it will organize State committees and develop financial support.

Following more than 1,000 conferences and programs February 2, the remainder of the month will be utilized to "tell all the people" about syphilis and gonorrhea and complete the $500,000 fund.

Dr. Wilbur said yesterday that "although the public attitude toward venereal diseases has greatly changed during the last year, another generation could pass before an opportunity might exist like the one presented today for a united and sustained attack on the scourge of the venereal diseases."

Symphony Starts Concert Practice

Rehearsals of the National Symphony Orchestra began yesterday under the direction of Hans Kindler, in preparation for the opening concert of the eighth season next Sunday afternoon in Constitution Hall, with the Wagnerian Festival Singers as soloists. Eight rehearsals will be held this week, including a reading rehearsal of some novelties scheduled for early performance.

Many of the first-desk men were back at their posts yesterday, including Jeno Sevely, second violin; George Wargo, viola; Howard Mitchell, violoncello; Harold Gomberg, oboe; Robert Clarke, trombone; Lloyd C. Geisler, trumpet; William Schnable, English horn; Gilbert W. Stange, clarinet, and Walter Howe, tympani. The oldest member of the orchestra is Hermann C. Rakemann, viola, who has been with the National Symphony since its organization, and the youngest member is Albert Pargament, second violin, a native Washingtonian who is playing his second season.

Among the newcomers are Herbert Bangs, of Baltimore; violinist and assistant concertmaster; Merrill Jordan, of California, first flautist, and Vincent de Fulvio, of New York, tuba player. George Gaul continues as personnel manager, a position he has held ever since the orchestra was formed.

Banks Liquidate U. S. Securities

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday banks resumed liquidation of Government security holdings during the week ended October 20.

In its 101-city member bank condition statement, the board said aggregate Federal holdings declined $22,000,000, to $9,028,000,000. This was $1,512,000,000 under the same week a year ago.

The drop in these holdings followed a $16,000,000 increase in the two previous weeks. The trend for a year, however, has been toward liquidation.

The banks' total loans declined $81,000,000 during the week ended October 20, to $9,913,000,000. Loans to commerce, industry and agriculture, advanced on securities as collateral, dropped $6,000,000 to $599,000,000. Similar loans, otherwise secured and unsecured, fell $25,000,000, to $4,241,000,000.

Demand deposits dropped $12,000,000 for the week to $14,789,000,000, and reserves with Federal Reserve banks climbed $29,000,000, to $5,368,000,000.

Tom McCarthy

Morning At The Laurel Race Track.

IT'S A SUBTLE sort of drama and it moves through the early morning hours like a spark on a slow fuse.

By 5 o'clock there's scarcely a half light, and the the coal burning "salamanders" streak the darkness between the stables in a wavering glow. The road takes up the clatter of boots, as exercise boys, returning from a night out, race toward their quarters. From the track infield, and answered from the stables, comes the howl of the roving dog packs. Their hoarse cries grow faint, and the shaken air quiets as they surge through the darkness toward the woods on the track's far side.

TOM McCARTHY

Three horses picked their way across the rutted road into the track. Stumbling and cursing in the darkness, their trainer pulls his collar closer against the chill of the morning. Without turning toward the boys astride the horses he gives the orders.

"Just gallop them around," he says, "No hurry. Take it easy. I'm afraid of those dogs in the infield. I don't want to scare these babies." His words come out clipped short, as his jaw tightens in the cold air.

An exercise boy mumbles an indifferent reply, and the small cavalcade moves on into the darkness. The horses are still picking their way carefully. The boys are still riding like tired puppets; their knees level with their chests.

AS I CAME out of the darkness, my eyes closed involuntarily in the glare of light from the long gray and white room of the mess hall. Although it was but little after 5 o'clock, the long room with its double row of tables was crowded. With an easy democracy, trainers, jockeys, owners and exercise boys shared the tables.

At that hour most of the diners were the exercise boys. Their horses had been fed, and now it was their turn to eat. They were strong, if not large, youngsters ranging in age all the way from 16 to 25. Laughter was as much a part of their meal as the coffee.

I asked the boys how they happened to land in their present jobs. The answers were various.

"Hoped to be a jockey." "Lived near the track." "Needed a job."

The exercise boys said that they earned from $30 to $125 a month. They live in a little compartment in the stables, but had to arrange their own board. They were easy, natural youngsters of high school and college age, but instead of talking in terms of baseball and football victories they recalled how Coucci or Westrope booted a "tough one" home.

"Come on out and watch me take one around the track," said the kid with the straw-colored hair.

"You won't see anything watching him," said the thin-faced kid. "He's a one-horse man. He was a jockey for one season at Chicago. He only rode one horse all season, and he rode that one 20 times."

"Yeah" said the kid with the straw-colored hair, "but you never even was a jockey."

IT WOULD BE nice to say that the sun rose over the smoking woods, but as a matter of fact it came up directly over the cook house. Even at that it was a sight to remember.

There was something very carefree about the track in those early hours. As the boys rode by through the coolness of the morning, they looked as though they knew they had the best jobs in the world. At least a third of them were whistling. And

"WHAT DO YOU get out of all this?" I asked an old-timer who follows the race meets from place to place. "How do you figure it's worth your time to get up at this hour to see them exercise?"

"Take a gander at that, buddy" he said.

Down the straighaway came a horse on time-trial. His sleek coat was as golden as harvest grain, and it surged like a pond under a small wind, with the play of muscles. Down the track the horse came, as swiftly and smoothly as a sail before the wind.

His forelegs reached out incredible distances and with nothing like strain, while the rear feet, quick as a wing beat, came up cleanly beneath him.

Small white cones swirled from his nostrils into the frosty air, and the rail birds straightened along the fence as he headed for the curve.

Rhythmic as drum beats the hoofs dug into the hard track, and there was no other sound save for the sharp whirr of his breathing and the shrill urging of the rider.

"See anything there to get up in the morning for?" the old-timer asked me.

President Sees Roper Business Planning Body

Harriman Asks Roosevelt to Attend Meeting of Business Advisers.

By the Associated Press.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt discussed with a committee today the long-range planning of Secretary Roper's business advisory council.

The committee, headed by Counsel Chairman W. Averell Harriman, New York banker, invited the President to attend either the December or January meetings of the business advisory group, composed of 50 businessmen chosen by Roper on a Nation-wide basis.

Harriman said the President expressed hope he could attend a council dinner.

It was indicated the special session of Congress, which is expected to run well into December, and the regular session of Congress, convening in January, might prevent his attending either council meeting.

Harriman said he and members of his council could not disclose their recommendations regarding business matters or what problems they had under study. All their advice, he said, goes unpublicized to Secretary Roper.

The council chairman said specifically that the current stock market sag and present business conditions in general were not discussed with Mr. Roosevelt by the committee.

Roosevelt Asks States to Aid Wage-Hr. Plan

Co-operation With U. S. Will Help Workers, Labor Conference Told.

By the Associated Press.

State labor officials received an appeal from President Roosevelt yesterday to co-operate in administration of the proposed Federal wage and hour law.

"By joint effort," he said in a message to the fourth annual conference on State labor legislation, "we may develop a fuller protection to the workers of the country than either the Federal Government alone or the States could achieve in their respective jurisdictions."

The President noted that he had called a special session of Congress for November 15 to enact wage and hour legislation.

Representatives of 45 Governors attended the first session of the three-day conference.

The President's message expressed the hope "that your discussions of administrative problems will serve to focus attention on the importance of further administration, as your deliberations in previous years have focussed attention on legislative standards."

He also congratulated the delegates on what he termed the success of their efforts to obtain State legislation calling for adequate wages, a short work day and week, healthful places to work and adequate care for accident victims.

Secretary Perkins, opening the three-day conference, declared more beneficial State labor laws had ben enacted since 1933 than ever before.

Annapolis Group To Confer on Site

Annapolis, Md., Oct 25. (AP).—The Board of Public Works will meet tomorrow in the office of Gov. Nice in Baltimore to hear a local delegation present their views on the site for the State office building here.

A committee headed by Mayor Louis N. Phipps will appear before the board. Other members of the committee are W. U. McCready, president Rotary Club; Robert L. Burwell, vice president Civitan Club; Mrs. George A. Moss, representing Annapolis Women's Democratic Club; Benjamin Michaelson, president Kiwanis Club; Mrs. L. P. Musterman, president Zonta Club; John E. Martin, president Chamber of Commerce, and Elmer M. Jackson, jr., former alderman.

The committee will urge a site opposite the rear of the Government House, extending on College avenue, from the postoffice to Maiden street and running back to Carroll street. They will oppose the locating of the building in the Randall Court section.

Youth Bound Over For Store Robbery

Bernard C. Ballard, 26, of 1440 D street northeast, was held for the grand jury yesterday on $2,000 bond on a charge of housebreaking. Nineteen additional counts will be presented to the higher court, police said.

Ballard was seized several weeks ago by Detective Sergt. Thomas McVearry. The case yesterday was in connection with the robbery of a Sanitary Grocery store in the 200 block Fifth street southeast, in which a small amount of money and cigarettes were taken.

Miss Greenwood Chalks Up Personal Triumph in 'Leaning on Letty.'

By Nelson B. Bell

"LEANING ON LETTY." Martin Brooues presents Charlotte Greenwood in the comedy melodrama in two acts and four scenes by Wilbur Daniel Steele and Norma Mitchell, with songs by Mr. Brooues and entr'acte music made famous by Miss Greenwood. Staged and directed by Russell Fillmore. Revieued Monday night at the National Theater.

With characteristic generosity and good judgment, Miss Charlotte Greenwood, returning to the local stage after too long an absence, makes the two acts and four scenes of "Leaning on Letty" merely a prologue to a brief period of songs and dances that revive warm and vivid memories of her many triumphs on the light musical stage.

Following an amazingly quick costume change after the fall of the final curtain on "Letty," Miss Greenwood appears in persona propria and transports her audience back through the years to the "Ritz Revues," "Passing Shows," "Music Box Revues" and others of the long line of riotous ribaldries that marked her American career at its zenith. She accomplishes this through the meager medium of two songs and one of the inimitably grotesque dances that made her famous.

The songs, written especially for this joyous purpose by Martin Brognes, producer of "Leaning on Letty" and, in private life, Miss Greenwood's husband, are completely in the Greenwood metier—one a comic love plaint; the other, a lilting bit of romance which the star describes as "sexy," and then proves to be susceptible of immensely comic interpretation by the unique manner of her rendition. The first is an uproariously amusing trifle by the whimsical title of "Shall I Be an Old Man's Darling or Shall I Be a Young Man's Slave?" and the second, "Moon Melody," a tuneful, but no less startling, excerpt from the musical comedy, "Gay Deceivers," in which Miss Greenwood scored an overwhelming success in London.

The dance that follows may only be described as a typical exposition of the Greenwood conception of what is what in the higher expressions of the art of Terpsichore—which, of course, will mean nothing to those unable to recall her consummate skill as a comedienne whose physical endowments are such that her style never has lent itself to successful imitation. Those ridiculous high kicks, burlesqued acrobatics and loosely-waving scarecrow arms still mark the ultimate in feminine grotesquery—in a thoroughly nice way, you understand. Miss Greenwood finds it possible to be enormously funny without ever ceasing to be an ingratiating and charming lady. Her voice is infinitely better than she ever permits it to appear.

A Revised "Post Road."

As for "Leaning on Letty," the ostensible piece de resistance of the evening, it is an explosively laughable adaptation to its star's uses of the play, "Post Road," that registered a substantial Broadway hit as a comic melodrama a season or two ago. The mainspring of the action is a kidnaping case and its locale the living room of the Connecticut home on the Boston post road, of an aging spinster lady by the name of Letty Madison, who accommodates transient tourists as a means of livelihood. Her home is shared by her sister and brother-in-law and to it one rainy night comes a party in distress. They are given quick shelter in a seemingly vital emergency and then the fun begins.

The "doctor," his trained "nurse," "patient" and chauffeur, of course, are the kidnapers, staging a gigantic hoax on Letty and the police, with the "Reverend" Wesley Cartwright, already a roomer in the house, one of their planted co-conspirators. The crooks are clever, but not clever enough to outsmart their keen-witted and wily hostess. The manner in which this all comes about is only occasionally daring, but always funny.

The play makes no attempt to achieve subtlety, finesse or any other of the drama's refinements, but is content to be a lusty, straightforward and tumultuous study in sure-fire superficialities aimed directly at the funny-bone. It is only two hours long and presented in a single simple setting—which also doesn't matter, since laughs are its only objective. One discovers in contemplating this surprising work that a great many laughs indeed can be packed into two hours.

Is Funny-Paper Old Maid.

Miss Greenwood's Letty is a far cry, as the saying goes, from the radiant creature who emerges after the final curtain to convulse the audience with her musical epilogue. She plays the role with comic cartoon fidelity to the popular conception of a New England spinster and makes every line count for comedy. Music, after all, it seems, is not a necessary adjunct to Miss Greenwood's contagious sense of humor.

She is supported by a cast equal to every demand laid upon it by a play that is wholly actor proof, including two former Washington stock favorites in the competent persons of Romaine Callender, an erstwhile member of the National Theater Players, who has appeared in the role of Rev. Cartwright ever since the piece first was presented as "Post Road," and Russell Fillmore, formerly of the Poli Players, who also staged and directed it in its present form.

But it is Charlotte Greenwood who is the attraction at the National this week. It is a happy circumstance that "Leaning on Letty" came along to freshen the Capital's memory of just what an attraction she is.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Premiere of "Victoria the Great" Set for Nov. 3, With Herbert Wilcox, Anna Neagle Here in Person

THE widely heralded and eagerly awaited Herbert Wilcox production of "Victoria the Great" now is definitely scheduled to open its Washington run at RKO-Keith's on Wednesday, November 3—one week from tomorrow.

BELL.

This occasion will be hedged about by more than the usual number of interesting and distinguished "added attractions." It will mark the culmination of three days of social activity that will be participated in by official, diplomatic and civilian Washington, all alert to extend the Capital's hospitality to Herbert Wilcox, one of the foremost of England's motion picture producers, and Anna Neagle, star of the film, who appears in the title role of Queen Victoria.

Miss Neagle and Mr. Wilcox will arrive in this city shortly before noon next Monday, November 1. They will be met by a representative reception committee and driven to their hotel with an official police escort. At 1 p. m., both will be guests of honor at a luncheon tendered by the Women's National Press Club. At 4:30 in the afternoon, they will receive the press in the presidential suite of the Mayflower Hotel—a fairly busy day.

For Wednesday's high point of a busy social round, the British Embassy will act as host to the distinguished English visitors. ater in the day it is planned for them to catch a bird's-eye view of the National Capital from the blimp that sails lazily over the city with which such regularity that no one ever cranes his neck any more to watch it dangling in the sky, and to visit Mount Vernon and Washington's Tomb.

Manager Hardie Meaken, of RKO-Keith's, confides that while "Victoria the Great" will open at the regular morning hour on Wednesday, Miss Neagle and Mr. Wilcox will not make their personal appearances on the stage of the theater until that night. It is assured that they will appear once, and there is a strong possibility that two audiences will be enabled to see them in person. The hour, or hours, of their appearances will be made known in due course.

Mr. Wilcox and Miss Neagle came to America for the express purpose of attending the premiere of "Victoria the Great" in three American cities—Ottawa, Ontario, New York City and Washington. Miss Neagle is almost as well known on this side as she is in her native England by reason of many notable screen appearances. Her last in Washington, I believe, was in the title role of "Nell Gwyn," at the Belasco, with Sir Cedric Hardwicke in the leading male role. Her present vehicle is unique among biographical screen plays.

"Victoria the Great," as has been stated in these columns before, is the first film dealing with an English sovereign ever made with the full sanction and co-operation of the British government. Every facility was placed at Mr. Wilcox's disposal to insure complete accuracy in the depiction of the reign of a beloved queen, four generations after her death—the minimum time within which such a dramatization is permitted under the English law. The palaces, castles, costumes, personal mementoes and all of the minutiae of production are authentic.

Although Gilbert Miller's stage production of "Victoria Regina," which was given premiere in the National Theater here, with Helen Hayes in the role of the queen, now played by Miss Neagle, was comprised of a series of vignettes dealing with the same subject matter, it could only be presented in London under private "club' auspices and not as a regular commercial theater attraction.

"Victoria the Great" is released for world distribution through RKO-Radio. A private, preview screen for the drama desks is announced for this Thursday afternoon at 2:15. It consumes approximately two hours of running time.

A special "goblin show," taking advantage of the prankish spirit of Halloween, is being brewed in the Loew caldron. The regular screen and stage program at Loew's Capitol will be augmented on Saturday night of this week by special seasonal touches calculated to stress the element of spooky fun. The management announces that, under this extended schedule arrangement, even those arriving as late as 11:30 p. m., will be enabled to see the complete stage and screen program, plus the added starters. The regular scale of prices will prevail and tickets already are on sale at the box-office for the convenience to those wishing to save time by purchasing in advance.

Plans are being perfected today for a "flexible" seating arrangement which will make it possible for the Rialto Theater, under its new policy, to accommodate events requiring any number of chairs up to 2,000, in line with the announcement originally made in this space.

Under normal conditions the seating capacity will be in the neighborhood of 1,700. The present orchestra chairs, including 350 extra-width, spring-back row seats and the 250 individual lounge chairs, will be arranged in front of the boxes. Six hundred opera chairs, of the type used in the theater prior to remodeling a year ago, will be placed in the rear section. The 380 individual balcony seats will remain unchanged.

All permanent seats, although securely locked to the floor, will be anchored in sections on "skids.' Special arrangements may be made to increase or decrease the number of seats, or to shift their location to meet any requirement. Not only will it be possible for conventions and exhibitions to convert any portion of the auditorium into a display section, but the plan is intended also to enable groups expecting limited audiences to eliminate the heretofore unavoidable problem of large blocks of empty seats.

Personal aside to Tom Moore, builder and former owner of the Rialto: There goes your "Temple of the Muses"!

• • • •

Roland Robbins, the veteran former mogul of the two-a-day in the Capital, arises in his place to shout into the loudspeaker that the George Washington U.-Alabama State football game, played last Saturday, was captured in toto by the lenses of his motion-picture camermen. The pictures, beginning tonight, become a special feature of the bill at the Trans-Lux Theater. Touchdown!

Dots and Dashes.

Samuel Goldwyn, the cinema's male Mrs. Malaprop, who recently "lifted" a bit of writing by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, as an advertisement for "Stella Dallas," now has a scheme on foot to emblazon the sides of the Pyramids, in Egypt, with neon signs proclaiming the wonders of his production of "The Adventures of Marco Polo," starring Gary Cooper . . . Hey, Mr. Goldwyn, it's the Sphinx that doesn't say anything—not the Pyramids! . . . That was Martin Broones, husband of Charlotte Greenwood, and her stage producer, accompanied by Wood Soanes, doing a little Grade A cymbal-whanging for "Leaning on Letty" while on leave from his California newspaper desk, who sat down with his column over his hot seafood platter in a popular E street eatery Sabbath evening . . . Like the postman out taking a walk, they were headed, of all places, for a downtown show—and were only a couple of hours late . . . "Leaning on Letty," in case you hadn't heard—pardon, Mr. Soanes—is at the National . . . Comes a nice note from Dorothy Stone and Charles Collins, last week's headliners on the stage at Loew's Capitol . . . Mr. and Mrs. Collins are at the Hotel William Penn, in Pittsburgh, Mr. and Mrs. Collins are . . . That eminent publicist, Ray Bell—no relation—is in circulation again . . . But his tonsils are not . . . They went out of circulation last week—snip! just like that . . . Eddie Cantor in "Ali Baba Goes to Town" comes into Loew's Palace following "The Prisoner of Zenda," instead of William Powell and Myrna Loy in "Double Wedding" . . . Anything to ball up the drayma departments—worse than they are, I mean . . . That "Twenty-fifth Anniversary Week" celebration, in honor of Eddie Cantor's quarter-century in show business, is on, by the way . . . Those eyes are popping out more than ever over the long list of celebrities participating in one way or another . . . Nice boy, Eddie, with a heart of gold and all that sort of hting . . . Remind me to ask Doc Shyne just what kind of a pump a heart of gold really makes . . . Old Col. Jimmie Jeremiah Lake's midnight shows got off with a bang Satiddy night . . . That would be at the Gayety . . . Another one this week, same time . . . "Heidi," starring the fabulous Shirley Temple, will be previewed today at 1:30.

• • • •

Look Out for That Right, Mister!

While William Powell, the finger-wagging gentleman on the right, seems in a mildly playful mood, Myrna Loy seems a little more ominous with both fists clenched. However, the whole thing is said to be in fun and probably is, for this is a scene from "Double Wedding," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's next starring vehicle for Miss Loy and Mr. Powell, described as one of the season's swiftest and most hilarious comedies. It is scheduled to follow along some time soon on the screen at the Palace.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Oct. 25.—Wonder how many of you agree with me that Ginger Rogers will jeopardize her entire career if she succeeds in winning her long battle with the bosses of RKO for the right to play dramatic roles?

GINGER ROGERS.

For more than a year, Ginger has been fuming because she is given so many dancing parts. She thinks that she is a capable dramatic actress, she protests that she has never been given a chance to "do anything worthwhile," and she objects to being sacrificed to "box office." Personally, I think Ginger is not exaggerating her ability one iota. I have seen her in one or two tests and just on the strength of those, I would be willing to concede that she has amazing dramatic ability. But whether the public, which idolizes her as a rhythm queen, would trade that beloved Ginger for another tragedienne, is an open question. Ginger, right now is one of the three or four most popular stars on the screen. Her fan mail totals thousands of letters every week—and no fan mail has ever revealed more ardent devotion on the part of the average theater-goer. There are a number of capable dramatic actresses in "Hollywood—already established already favorites, with millions. But there is only one slim, tawny-haired kid who can dance all our troubles away.

Ginger, like every human being, makes the mistake of seeing "greener pastures far away." She loses sight of the fact that it is just as great a personal triumph to be a dancing star as it is to be a dramatic star. I, for one, want Ginger as she is.

Lee Tracy never carries a lantern, but he considers himself the equal to Diogenes. He has found an honest man. A few days ago he went for a drive in the mountains, stopped several times to make photographs and somewhere along the way dropped his purse, which contianed nearly $500. After carefully but fruitlessly retracing his route, he gave it up for lost. But next day he received a telephone call and a voice asked him to describe his loss. Lee gave a satisfactory inventory and was promptly told to "come and get it." "The fellow who found it," Lee told me, "turned out to a be a 20-year-old student. I tried to reward him and he indignantly refused—informed me that if he were interested in getting some money he would have pocketed the works. I asked him what branch of the Vanderbilts he belonged to—and he told me that he is working his way through school by taking care of lawns!"

Had to laugh at Eddie Cantor. Watched him working in a difficult scene for "Ali Baba." Four or five takes fizzled for one cause or another and then, with the next take nearing a perfect end and everyone on the set offering silent praises to Allah, an electrician managed to upset a slender vase which fell to the floor and shattered with an ear-splitting crash. Eddie clutched his head and moaned. Then he pointed an accusing finger at the embarrassed culprit. "That man," he shouted, "must be one of Hitler's secret agents!"

There is one magazine writer in Hollywood who has built a reputation by successfully interviewing those stars who are supposedly "difficult." His rivals wonder how he does it—and the explanation is simple. Being a fair psychologist, he first of all learned something about each star's hobby. And then he made it a rule to open each interview by representing himself as a fellow enthusiast. The most reticent celebrity thawed like snow under an August sun. Talk, for instance, to Lionel Barrymore about etchings, or to Jeanette MacDonald about antique porcelain, or to Katharine Hepburn about dogs. Any one of them will be your friend for life.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, Oct. 25.

EMPLOYMENT DEPT.: Willie Lewis was the Western Air Express pilot who flew the plane in which Martin Johnson was killed. Mrs. Johnson, Lewis and three others were the only ones who survived . . . The memory of that disaster, together with the news of the crash in the Uinta Mountains, affected Lewis to such an extent that he now has divorced himself completely from aviation. He's been offered a ground crew job by his employers, but turned it down.

• • • •

RADIO DEPT.: Elliot Paul, author of "Life and Death of a Spanish Town," was asked by the Herald Tribune committee to speak on the transoceanic broadcast celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the Paris edition. The committee wasn't aware of the fact that Paul had resigned from that outfit in 1931 . . . And so the writer planned a bitter one-minute speech, attacking the Paris edition. On the day of the broadcast Paul went to Luchow's, where he met a group to whom he stated his plans. So engrossed and excited did he become there that he arrived at the radio station five minutes after the broadcast was over.

• • • •

HEALTH DEPT.: Henny Youngman heard that there was a role he might fill in Dore Shary's forthcoming "Too Many Heroes." He applied to Garson Kanin, director of the play—who looked at the 6-foot-3 Youngman and explained why he couldn't serve. "This man," Kanin stated, "is the youngest of a family in which every member is from 5 feet 7 down to 5 feet 2. See what the trouble is?" . . . "Yes," Henry countered, "but couldn't it be glandular?"

• • • •

MOVIES: L. G. Leonard, the Columbia producer, has been screening a picture called "Hollywood Cowboy." It's a cowboy picture about a movie star against whom the breaks have turned, and who, therefore, was willing to accept a role in a Western film . . . The feminine lead in "Hollywood Cowboy" is a young lady who used to be a star, but against whom the breaks have turned, and so accepted a role in Westerns. Her name is Helen Twelvetrees.

• • • •

EMILY POST DEPT.: Maurice & Cordova, the dancers, arrived from Europe this week after a European engagement. At London's Grosvenor House, where they worked recently, they were presented to the Duke and Duchess of Kent. Maurice, after a few minutes, fidgeted nervously. And when the dance orhestra struck up a tune his nervousness became apparent to all. "It's all right, old man," the duke calmed, trying to break the tension. "Just relax. There's no cause to be nervous." . . . "The hell there isn't," Maurice exploded, "That's our dance cue the band's been playing!"

• • • •

TRAVEL DEPT.: When Walter Duranty was in New York he phoned John Gunther, his colleague, who lives in Connecticut. "Come out to dinner tonight," Gunther invited . . . Duranty arrived by car and was greeted by his host. Gunther looked at the car and chauffeur. "Pretty swanky, Walter," he said. "Such a bright yellow car, and a chauffeur, too. What's that emblem he's wearing?" . . . "That emblem," Duranty replied, "is a hack license. He's not my chauffeur, he's a cab driver. That bright yellow car is the Yellow Cab which brought me here. And the meter rang up $38.45!"

POLITICS: The current Pathe newsreel has an anonymous announcer introducing the President's fireside chat, concluding with: "And now we take you to the White House"—where Roosevelt is shown at an N. B. C. mike, being announced by an N. B. C. announcer. . . . There was good cause for the anonymity of Pathe's commentator for this N B. C. publicity. He's Andre Baruch—of the rival C. B. S.

• • • •

BRIDGE DEPARTMENT: Al Jolson, Tony Martin and George Jessel ployed bridge last week at Martin's home. "I bid three no hearts," was Tony's startling bid . . . "That," Jessel reminded, "is like eight acts, without vaudeville." . . . Later Jolson bid two spades and then was interrupted by a phone call. He returned to the table and asked: "What's the bid?" . . . "Two spades," Martin informed. Jolson studied his cards—and shouted: "I double."

• • • •

THEATER DEPARMENT: Burns and Allen, who had played Glasgow once, received a cable from a theatrical agent in that city asking: "Want you for engagement here. How did you do before?" . . . "How can anybody do there?" they cabled in reply. "The whole town's full of Harry Lauders!"

• • • •

ILLUSTRATED SECTION: Sam Goldwyn, en route to New York, stopped at Chicago and posed for the news photographers. An interviewer stepped up to the producer and asked about the pending United Artists deal. "What have you to say?" the reporter asked . . . "I've got nothing to say," Goldwyn replied, "and I won't say it until I get to New York."

New Rig Snubbed, Old Suit Lucky

"For sentimental reasons," said the screen newcomer, when he made his request. "That same gray suit landed me a job as a model for men's clothes, in a Chicago department store. I was badly in need of that job. I wore the same suit when I was tested for this role in Miss Crawford's picture. Call it superstition, if you like, but I have always felt luckiest when I wore this suit, I feel I owe it a debt of gratitude, and it should share in the thrill of my first appearance with a star of the screen."

Double Size.

Because of the musical, "Rosalie," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios have doubled in size. For the Romanza sequence it was necessary to purchase 60 acres adjoining the studio for the set. This is the same size as the studio proper.

Hollywood Folk Wear Sombreros

Cast and crew of Universal's "You're a Sweetheart" have "gone Western" in a big way. From lowliest laborer to director, Dave Butler, the workers are wearing western hats, bandanas and a cattle-country drawl.

The wild-and-woolley garb and mannerisms are due to a portion of the script which calls for George Murphy to pretend to be an oil magnate from Oklahoma and to garb himself according to his idea of what a man from the wide open spaces should wear.

Song Writers Break Record

Jimmy McHugh and Harold Adamson, sensational song-writing team of Universal studios, are taking bows among their Hollywood associates for having turned out a record-breaking number of song hits and musical scores for motion pictures during the past year.

Together, the popular tunesmiths wrote the music and lyrics for three "most played songs of the Nation," "Where Are You?" "Something in the Air," and "When Love Is Young," the latter from the picture of the same title. Each of the three melodies won No. 1 hit ratings in popularity.

The composers are currently at work on the new Deanna Durbin musical, "Mad About Music," which is scheduled to go into production in October.

Dances Attract Dancer to Hawaii

When she completes "Rosalie," Eleanor Powell plans to pass a month in Hawaii, covering most of the islands to make a complete survey of native dances.

She will also work out an idea for an original musical during the trip.

Her mother and grandparents will be guests of the dancing star.

May Robson Cast As Hepburn's Aunt

May Robson, grand old lady of the stage and screen, has been signed to play the important role of Katharine Hepburn's aunt in the star's new picture, "Bringing Up Baby." Cary Grant has the masculine lead in the new feature, a Howard Hawks production.

Hawks also is directing "Bringing Up Baby," with Cliff Reid as associate producer. The original story was by Hagar Wilde, who collaborated with Dudley Nichols on the screen play.

Plan and Frustration

The boys and girls of the Interior Department Recreation Association figured it out this way: There was the big activities space in the basement of the new Interior Building. It was swell for little gatherings and a nice place for dancing. It should, they concluded, be something of a nice place for badminton, volley ball, indoor tennis.

Then they figured on the possibilities of setting some poles solidly in the floor, poles to support the tennis net, the badminton apparatus. "Plans were made to bore through the floor and establish the poles on a solid base; to fix them so they might be removed when the people wanted to dance, but all the same to have them set deeply and firmly."

Engineers were consulted, and after going over the specifications, it was decided the holes shouldn't be dug, because the water was too near; it would make the basement too susceptible to water. Which ended the plans for some badminton and indoor tennis and went to demonstrate—if you choose to follow the thing through—how low is the land upon which reposes the Nation's Capital.

What seems a strikingly new innovation in the Government's wide service: "Many farmers who can not hear have struggled valiantly with the complications of AAA regulations, soil conservation opportunities and other Government activities; but the agents can not talk the sign language, and to reduce all the questions and answers on the particular farm to writing seems sort of hopeless. The deaf farmers of North Carolina also wrinkled their brows and worried along until they met O. W. Underhill, himself deaf, who has brought the Extension Service to the deaf farmers of the State."

The FCA has issued a notice that applies to all: Please, it says in effect, do not lay files on the radiators. File papers subject to heat for a period of time become brittle and easily torn. The folders warp and are difficult to handle. . . . Otherwise from the FCA: The women's tennis tournament is expected to reach its end this week. . . . Parking spaces will be reassigned effective November 15. Applications for the spaces must be returned to room 138 on or before November 1. The applications are available in room 134.

Notes

The classes in dance exercises being held on Mondays and Wednesdays in the activity space, Interior Building, have proved so popular that with a slight more demand Miss Evelyn Adams will begin two new classes, on Tuesdays and Thursdays. . . . Special classes in tap, modern, ballet and general interpretive will be started, provided there is sufficient demand for these. . . . Meetings announced by the National Federation of Federal Employes for this week are as follows: Today, 8 p. m., Adjutant General's Office, Local No. 372, 710 Fourteenth street northwest; Wednesday, 8 p. m., Navy Yard, Local No. 250, Southeast Library, Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast; Friday, 5 p. m., executive council, Local No. 2, 710 Fourteenth street, and 8 p. m., membership rally key members, Local No. 2, old Interior auditorium. . . . Agriculture reports two books missing from the library: John M. Cassels' "A Study of Fluid Milk Prices" and "Studies in Livestock Marketing." . . . AFGE district department tenders a banquet tomorrow night to its past president, James G. Yaden. They have a bevy of important guests and some musical entertainment. . . . There are just a few members of Congress here now, in advance of the forthcoming session; few, if any, of the key ones the Federal employes rely on to push their causes. . . . A. G. O. Lodge, No. 2, A. F. G. E., will offer some entertainment to its members following the regular monthly meeting tonight. The last social affair of the sort brought a packed house. . . . Jacob Baker, U. F. W. A. chief, is directing a series of ten public lectures on "Co-operative Enterprise" in the Graduate School of American University.

The CCC has enrolled 54 per cent more men from Southern States than quotas allowed. . . . Industrial conditions in the North and East cut enrollment there and the additional enrollments were made in Georgia and surrounding States of the Fourth Corps Area. . . . Agriculture meetings in the offing are: Today, Agriculture Exchange staff meeting, room 4403 South Building, 4:45 p. m.; Speeling Club, room 5863, 4:45 p. m., and symphonic choir rehearsal, South Building auditorium, 4:45 p. m.; Wednesday, activities council, room 6554, South Building, 12 noon; women's recreation class, Macfarland Junior High School, 7:30 p. m.; Thursday, Agriculture Ladies Bowling League, Columbia alleys, 5:30 p. m.; A. F. G. E. Lodge 344, room 1030 south building, 8 p. m.; chorus rehearsal, South Building auditorium, 4:45 p. m.; Ladies Federal Duckpin League, 8 p. m., and Men's Interbureau Duckpin League, 8 p. m.; Friday, Agriculture Legion Post, No. 38, installation of officers and dance, Broadmoor Hotel.

Virginian Searches For Suicide's Body, Then Ends His Life

Shenandoah, Va., Oct. 25 (AP).—James Lam, 28, committed suicide here last night after helping to search the Shenandoah River for the body of Curtis Kite, who an hour earlier was seen to jump or fall from a bridge into the river.

Coroner Vergil Hammer said Lam killed himself with a shotgun.

Kite's body was recovered this morning.

Lam is survived by his wife, several children and brothers and sisters. Lam, an employe of the Shenandoah Milling Co., Norfolk, was home for the week-end.

Can Labor Negotiate?

Conferees of the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization, now in session here, would do well to remember that the whole device of collective bargaining will necessarily be judged by the conduct and outcome of their negotiations.

Those who are neither employers nor trade unionists, but who fully realize the importance of industrial peace, are watching the conference closely. Public opinion now overwhelmingly indorses the principles of union organization, but is often dubious as to the quality of union leadership. If these groups of leaders are unable to agree with each other, the man in the street will argue, what reason is there to suppose that they are competent to negotiate constructively with employers?

Employers themselves will follow the discussions even more attentively. Some few may hope that the conference will fail, thereby discrediting and weakening unionism as a whole. But the general attitude will be one of good will for both sides. Orderly collective bargaining means too much to far-sighted employers to permit any joy at the possibility that the system may be destroyed by labor itself.

The interests of the rank-and-file union member, whatever his camp, are most seriously at stake. He knows best of all that the whole labor movement will be retarded and weakened if the conferees can only agree to disagree. He knows that it is absurd for labor to demand the right to negotiate with management if union leaders are publicly proven incompetent to negotiate with their fellow unionists.

The conferees, therefore, will do well to see the problem before them in clear perspective. The issue is not the ability of one camp to secure an advantage of prestige over the other. It is, more correctly, whether organized labor has the common sense and co-operative instinct without which the whole case for collective bargaining ceases to have validity.

Control Of Drugs.

The notoriety brought down on sulfanilamide by the mounting deaths attributed to a proprietary "elixir" of the drug is unfortunate. For investigators agree that it is not the drug which has taken a toll of approximately 36 lives recently, but a solvent with which it has been mixed.

Sulfanilamide, a complex chemical compound, was first developed in Germany in 1933. In its pure state it attacks certain germs, notably those of the cocci family, one of which is the venereal gonoccocus. To most people it is harmless. On certain patients, however, it can work injury and thus should be administered only under the careful direction of a physician.

Happily, young Franklin Roosevelt proved not allergic to the drug and it was possible to use it successfully in combating his streptococcic throat infection last year. Perhaps the publicity given his cure prompted manufacture of the drug in palatable liquid, but inadvertently lethal, form, every bottle of which is now being frantically chased down by Federal, State and city authorities.

In most instances, State or municipal regulations permit the seizure of the dangerous "medicine." This is fortunate because Federal drug officials can only restrain its distribution on the score of adulteration or misbranding, and then only after it has entered interstate commerce. Thus, Federal action can be taken against the sulfanilamide compound only on the trivial grounds that it is not technically an "elixir," as labeled. And the penalty for such an offense is a mere $100 fine.

To end such farcical control was one of the aims of the pure food and drug bill passed by the Senate last year and now awaiting action in the House. There was disagreement in the House as to whether the Federal Trade Commission or the Food and Drug Administration should have control of food and drug advertising. From the outside at least, the latter would seem the logical agency, as the Senate agreed. But whatever the settlement on this point, it seems certain that the current sulfanilamide incident will insure, at least, some improvement in food and drug regulation.

The pending bill would broaden the definitions of, and put teeth into the penalties for, adulteration. It would also permit prosecution for misrepresentation, without requiring proof of fraudulent intent, as at present. It would not provide for Federal analysis and licensing of proprietary medicines as has worked so successfully in the case of vaccines. But even without this, it would be expected to prevent deaths similar to the "elixir" tragedies.

Justice Black Stands Aside.

Justice Black showed good judgment by refusing to participate in the decision of the Supreme Court not to review the Haywood-Patterson case. For six years that case has been a focal point of racial animosity. Should Mr. Black have joined in sustaining the Negro lad's conviction, after the justice had admitted former membership in the Ku Klux Klan, another sensational chapter in the case would certainly have been opened.

Other members of the court have thoroughly established their fairness and impartiality in dealing with the notorious Scottsboro convictions. Twice the court set aside Alabama verdicts against Patterson because the defendant had not been given adequate counsel and because Negroes were systematically excluded from juries in that State. A long record of other opinions sustaining human rights also lends weight to the present decision that all Patterson's constitutional rights had been protected.

But no such presumption of judicial objectivity has been established in the case of Justice Black. The organization to which he gave allegiance in his effort to win a seat in the United States Senate is notoriously prejudiced against the Negro race. Whether or not Mr. Black carries any of that prejudice in his own heart, he is disqualified in the public mind to sit in cases involving racial controversies.

There will be general satisfaction that Justice Black has recognized this fact. Yet the effect of his action is to emphasize the severe limits of his service as a member of the Supreme Court. Many cases reaching the high tribunal are affected in some respect by racial feelings. Presumably Justice Black will stand aside wherever his impartiality is open to question. His own interest as well as that of the public suggests such a policy, for his eligibility is certain to be challenged if litigants have reason to believe that he has not been unbiased.

Yesterday's decision also raised a question as to whether Justice Black will sit with the court when it is called upon to pass on the constitutionality of legislative acts that he has helped to draft. Presumably he will not, since it would be extremely difficult for any judge to make an objective decision under those circumstances.

For a considerable percentage of the important cases likely to reach the Supreme bench in the near future, therefore, we shall presumably have an eight-man court. That is particularly unfortunate because it may result in even division of opinion in some instances. As these handicaps upon the court and upon his personal action become more and more evident even Justice Black must begin to share the country's regret that he placed himself in such an awkward position.

The Fundamental Outrage.

The killing by machine-gun fire from a Japanese plane, of a British soldier on duty at an International Settlement defense outpost is only the latest serious incident of its kind to occur in and around Shanghai.

Yet the cause for surprise is not the number of such incidents so much as their relative rarity. In part this may be the result of sheer good luck. But in part the comparative immunity which foreigners in the Shanghai war zone have enjoyed is undoubtedly a reflection of the persistent pressure put on both sides to avoid making the foreign settlement a theater of war.

The speed with which Japanese officials have expressed regret for the killing of the British sentry would seem to indicate that the hard-pressed Tokyo government is not inclined to take as provocative an attitude now as it did at the time of the assault on Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, the British Ambassador to China. Nonetheless British tempers are clearly rising, as is seen by the fact that the present affair has been branded by British army authorities at Shanghai as a "deliberate attack."

The outstanding fact to be remembered, however, is that the threat to foreign lives at Shanghai constitutes only an incidental aspect of the basic problem facing the western powers in China. The root cause of the dangers there, and in other places where foreigners have an entirely legal right to expect protection, is Japan's refusal to observe its treaty obligations.

It is for this reason that life has become precarious in China's greatest port and may become even more so as both sides chafe at the restrictions imposed upon their strategy by the demands of outside powers. To grow indignant over the loss of individual lives while ignoring the basic situation which made such outrages probable is, while human enough, to emphasize molehills while ignoring mountains.

The Attack On Mr. Kennedy.

Officers of the National Maritime Union are doing the cause of sea-going labor a marked disservice by their attempt "to get the scalp" of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Maritime Commission.

As a generality organized labor is certain to lose in a fight with an agency of the Government. We would have come to a sorry pass if any pressure group could force the dismissal of an official merely because it finds his enforcement of the law distasteful. More specifically, the Maritime Union seems to have gone out of its way to identify itself with irresponsible labor practices that cannot be tolerated in any successful merchant marine.

Mr. Kennedy, along with other members of the Maritime Commission, is endeavoring to eliminate the unsatisfactory living conditions on many American ships. That is an enormous undertaking. But there is good reason to believe that if the commission has the co-operation of responsible union leaders, the causes of many grievances can be removed. Is the union more interested in alibis for agitators than in these improvements?

To a large extent the improvement of working conditions on American ships must be contingent upon more responsible conduct on the part of organized seamen. Disorder, strikes during the course of a voyage and other conduct bordering on mutiny cannot be tolerated if this country expects to build a merchant marine to compete with the fleets of other nations. It is against this sort of conduct that Mr. Kennedy's order was issued.

Seamen who are interested in improvement of their status ought to be the first to appreciate this sincere effort to put trouble-makers in their place. Instead, the Maritime Union appears to be lending its support to the irresponsible agitators who caused so much difficulty on the recent voyage of the S. S. Algic. Its attitude is likely to postpone the day when efficient American seamen can obtain permanent jobs under decent working conditions.

Organized seamen have a most important part to play in the building up of the American merchant marine. Their attitude, perhaps more than any other single element, will measure the success of that undertaking. Self-interest alone should bar their approval of a futile gesture which can only serve to hinder the development of a satisfactory merchant marine.

Dr. Van Zeeland's Resignation.

The resignation of Paul Van Zeeland as premier of Belgium will cause general regret not only in his own country, whose parliament recently gave him a substantial vote of confidence, but abroad as well.

Under his extremely able leadership, Belgium has made very substantial progress in emerging from a grave financial and economic situation. Government finance, industry and foreign trade are all now in a healthy position. This circumstance, no doubt, played its part in causing Dr. Van Zeeland to give up his post at this time in order to free his energies for a defense against charges that the National Bank, during his administration as vice president, had indulged in indefensible practices.

These charges are being used as political weapons by the opponents of the government. What truth, if any, they contain it is difficult at this distance to say. But Van Zeeland's own reputation is such that none will believe that he directly or indirectly made himself a party to any malpractice. In any case Belgium will be hard put to it to find an equally able successor to the premiership.

Although Japan had been ignoring all rules of the game, she has begun to call her shots. Monday she pointed at Nanking and said, "We will shoot this city from behind the eight-ball into a shambles."

On the basis of the way it dashes wildly through the streets, it would be difficult to tell whether an ambulance is on the way to an accident or trying to commit one.

Yes, yes, prosperity has turned the corner, but tagging along behind it is that highly undesirable trailer, inflation.

Jimmy's Appointment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your able editorial of October 23 entitled "The New Co-ordinator" could well have been headed "The Crown Prince Arrives." That is an appellation of the President's first-born that will be used in fun and in bitterness in connection with his selection as the go-between in the official relations of the President with the heads of nearly 20 of the great independent agencies and commissions.

It is not that a go-between is not desirable. It is in the unfortunate choice made of the person selected that the trouble lies. Your editorial very cleverly indicates what an impossible selection, what a political and business blunder, has been made, one that almost approaches that made in the selection of Senator Black for a Supreme Court justiceship.

The further reaction of the press and the public thereto will be awaited with interest. And in this connection there must come to the mind of many readers the question of whether the President actually reads the newspapers as the average man does. Or are selected clippings made with a view to pleasing him?

The latter may easily be thought to be the case in view of the President's frequent expressions in addresses of his sureness that the people are with him. Such expressions are in some cases so incompatible with a number of the Gallup polls as to justify a doubt that the President actually reads the papers.

To Promote Business.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The effort of the Administration to control stock prices, legislate stability on the exchange, curb speculation and reform the race, has resulted in a dismal "flop" as evidenced by one of the most drastic "shake-outs" in market history.

After all, the human element which causes panics and "booms" cannot be controlled by political dicta, or princely phrases. Moreover, big business is afflicted with a very serious case of "jitters" which is not surprising in view of the fact that confidence in the future has been undermined by the dark spectre of ever-mounting taxes, governmental interference and labor disputes.

It is becoming more and more apparent that the tides of an approaching depression cannot be stemmed by continued borrowing; by vague, meaningless promises that the budget will be balanced "next year," or by charming, fireside chats. The proper method to promote a business boom, in the opinion of the great majority of thinking men, is for the politicians to remove the shackles from industry and, in so doing, give it not only a "breathing spell" but the opportunity to advance unhindered and unharassed.

By Their Fruits.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I feel that the justice greatly erred in not making his statement acknowledging his former connection with the Ku Klux Klan, and his renunciation and condemnation of its aims, before he accepted an appointment as associate justice of the Supreme Court. But, Mr. Black is now on the bench of that greatest of all man-made tribunals of justice.

My memory tells me of reading in a book that by their fruits ye shall know them. And that the tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit shall be hewn down, and cast into the fire and utterly consumed.

Now as I see it, we should stop our rancorous criticism, and watch with a critical eye his course from here on. If he should backslide into intolerance, and a will to persecute his fellowmen who differ with him, in race, creed, color, or social position—if he ever had that will—then apply the ax of public opinion and universal condemnation. This plea calls only for one forgiveness not seven, nor 70 times seven.

The 'Algic' Story.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If the evidence presented in the press is all the evidence available against the sailors of the S. S. Algic, the case against the seamen and the union is exceedingly weak. It ill becomes The Post to engage in an apparent attack on the attempts of sailors and officers to organize.

With what contempt lovers of liberty must view the action of the Maritime Commission and the slanderers who use the term "Government-owned ships" to drag a red-herring over the issues involved and pull the name of democracy in the dirt. The same thing was attempted in the "Morro Castle" case—the seamen, the "bolsheviks," and the "red menace" were blamed for a fire that was probably set by drunken American tourists.

The strongest foundations of democracy and orderly government are built by an intelligent and organized working class, and this so-called "conspiracy to disobey the captain" boils down to conspiracy on the part of certain reactionary elements (including the Maritime Commission, a pro-Fascist body) to discredit and break up maritime unions. Ships owned by the American Government can be just as lousy as ships owned by a private concern. All power to the C. I. O. and the seamen.

Junior League's Plays.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As the mother of two children I read with interest your editorial of October 16, in which you use the furnishing of free hot lunches for undernourished District school children to draw a parallel between physical and mental nourishment in connection with the program of the Children's Theater under the direction of Clare Tree Major.

It is somewhat difficult to reconcile the necessity of furnishing free lunches to undernourished children who presumably are not able to pay for them, with the ability of these same children, and their parents, to indulge in mental stimulation which provides the rarely achieved meeting place for adult and childish minds. Of course, if the effort to build the "pleasure fund" is successful, it may be possible to give those of small means the benefits of future repertoires of equal excellence with that of the present season.

In this connection, I am surprised that you have not seen fit to accord equal publicity to the forthcoming program of children's plays sponsored by the Junior League of Washington with the co-operation of the Community Center and the approval of the Parent-Teachers Association.

The program is excellent and certain to provide both mental and emotional appeal to children. Its diversification particularly impresses me, including as it does drama in the form of an authentic Indian legend; a ballet of Hans Andersons' never old fairy tale of "The Princess and the Swineherd;" opera with Rimsky Korsakoff's music in Pushkin's story "The Taming of the Shrew." Judging by past performance during the initial season a year ago, we may be assured of excellent presentations at prices within the reach of the most modest pocketbook.

Not A Touring Agency.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thank heavens, Secretary of the Interior Ickes has the moral courage to call a spade a spade. Is anything quite so dumbfounding as the act of an American in Europe attempting to use a department of the United States Government as a "touring agency?" Try to picture to ourselves the presumption of a friend of Mr. Herbert Hoover, for instance, writing over to Anthony Eden to map out a pleasant and "enlightening" trip through England for Mr. Hoover.

The lack of judgment which, by a neglect of the science of values, pushes even our "successful" countryman into absolute absurdities is nothing if not appalling.

More power to your common sense, Secretary Ickes!

"Little Said Of Character."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter written by Carrie Weaver Smith in this column under date of October 12 is unfortunately true in every walk of life. What is wrong for one person is smart and fashionable for another.

We lay much emphasis on our English and our mannerisms, with too little said of character, that which lies beneath the surface.

The disgraceful condition cited in Carrie Weaver Smith's letter (and this is only one of many) is a challenge to the church, as well as to every thinking man and woman in this city.

Wage Statistics From Germany.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Duke of Windsor studying labor conditions in Germany! Ach, du lieber Himmel! Traveling in luxurious cars and trains, accompanied by Nazi officials, he is shown what they want him to see. Has he been told that all trade-unions have been dissolved, their property confiscated, many of their leaders killed or brought to concentration camps, the right of collective bargaining abolished? Allegedly he sees smiling faces and happy workers onl. Are they really happy?

I recommend that the Duke study the Yearbook of Statistics for the German Reich published by the Bureau of Statistics of the Reich. There he will find important data on wages paid to the working classes.

The contributions of the workers to social insurance are 18 per cent of his wages; his income tax 10 per cent of the amount exceeding 80 marks $32 per month; his head tax 30 cents per week. In addition to that "voluntary" contributions are deducted from his weekly pay envelope for Labor-Front, winter relief, air and gas protection, etc. The total deductions amount to approximately 25 per cent of the wages of the worker who is income tax exempt. A few examples of weekly wages for illustration:

	Marks	Ded. Income Tax	Ded. Net Marks	Dollars
Metal workers	32.51	= 13.00	$3.25	$9.75
Saw mill workers	25.72	= 10.28	$2.57	$7.71
Textile workers	23.68	= 9.07	$2.00	$7.07
Linen industry	17.74	= 7.09	$1.56	$5.43
Weavers	21.87	= 8.74	$1.92	$6.82
Shoe industry	17.47	= 10.98	$2.75	$8.23
Carpenters	32.72	= 13.08	$3.27	$9.91

The price index for agricultural products has risen in the last three years from 86.76 marks to 103.90 marks; for groceries from 76.37 marks to 95 marks; for consuming goods as men's wear and women's dresses from 111.74 marks to 131.80 marks.

That is what the official publications of the German government show and what the royal student of labor conditions in Germany doesn't learn when he talks to laborers smiling and seemingly happy when ordered.

Literary Journalism

THE gulf between literature and journalism seems to be widening. This circumstance is emphasized by the passing of the London Morning Post, for that paper had the reputation of being perhaps the most literary of British newspapers. If it was vilified by Lord Macaulay and ridiculed by William Makepeace Thackery, it had in the past the happiest possible relations with such people as Southey, Wordsworth, Arthur Young (author of "Travels in France"), Moore, Coleridge and Charles Lamb.

The tendency for a division to spring up today between journalism and literature presents several curious features. In the first place, it does not in any sense arise from a snobbish feeling on the part of men of letters that journalism is not good enough for them. Rather the contrary. There never was a day when authors of established fame and popularity were more ready to contribute to the daily press than they are in this fourth decade of the twentieth century.

Miss Dorothy Sayers made for herself a great reputation as a writer of detective fiction. She then became a reviewer. Mr. Harold Nicolson in his "Tennyson" wrote one of the finest and most moving studies ever composed about an English poet, as well as several first-rate political biographies. He, too, then became a reviewer. Mr. L. A. G. Strong obtained a national reputation with his novel, "Dewer Rides," and he also is now to be found as a contributor to various periodicals.

* * * *

These distinguished people are by no means exceptions. They illustrate a general rule. Yet the proportion of what may be dignified by the name of literature that appears currently in the daily press is nothing like so high as the proportion a hundred or two hundred years ago. The reason is not that men of letters will not become journalists, but that journalists do not become, or write like, men of letters. It is the recognition of this fact that underlies the opinion of Mr. Hannen Swaffer, one of the most celebrated of British newspaper men, that journalism and literature have little in common, the one being destined for all time, the other being designedly ephemeral.

When Mr. Strong and Miss Sayers and Mr. Nicolson write for the press, they do not, in general, produce the sort of thing which, in books, has made their names famous. The stuff they put into books, and the stuff they put into the papers, are both excellent of their kinds. But they are not the same kinds.

This was not always the state of things. Addison and Steele are celebrated for their sketches of Sir Roger de Coverley. Addison and Steele were journalists. And what they wrote about as journalists was Sir Roger de Coverley. Some of Dickens' best novels originally appeared as serials. Much of Hazlitt's finest writing was done as a working journalist. Parts of Wordsworth's most deeply felt poetry were printed in newspapers—some, in fact, in the Morning Post. Why, then, has a change come about?

It has come about to a certain extent because of the decline of the essay. The essay, because of its comparatively manageable length, is peculiarly suitable to publication in a newspaper. It is also a form of literature that affords scope to excellence of a very high order. Steele, Defoe, Lamb, Max Beerbohm, Leigh Hunt, Hazlitt and a dozen others have won world-wide fame in this branch of art. But lately the essay has fallen into disfavor. Very fine essays still continue to be written, but not in such quantities as in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. One of the chief links between literature and journalism is thus being severed.

* * * *

A second and more important reason is to be found in the fact that journalism and literature have begun to discover different methods. The writer of a book has immense space in which to make his various points, and is consequently able to adopt a comparatively leisurely way of approach. The same leisureliness of approach is to be observed in the journalism of the last century. Leading articles then, in deliberation of attack, might have been chapters taken from a book. But nowadays journalism has developed a new technique. It establishes its points speedily. It strives to be continuously bright. It aims at making every sentence glitter.

Some people regret these changes. Others welcome them. But at least it can be said that they are due to journalism having adapted itself to the peculiar conditions in which its work has to be done.

Cotton Needs.

If the world could believe that it had less use for soldiers and armaments than it has for civilians employed in peaceful occupations, the price of cotton would shoot up higher than it has ever before been. If the race could but shake the incubus of war and the fear of war, it would immediately prosper.

When will the race love humanitarians more and rats less? The American South would be embarrassed if challenged to produce all of the cotton that a race, freed of the war psychosis needed and was prepared to buy.

Horse Park Promoter.

Providence.

A RECENT LESSON told of a Governor who got so mad in a political gutter fight that he called out the National Guard to avenge a personal insult published in a newspaper of dubious character, thus flouting the freedom of the press.

Today's will tell of a flip and brash little horse park promoter, operating Narragansett Park in Pawtucket, just outside Providence, who has grown too big for his britches. His name is Walter O'Hara, and his race track is one of the greatest gambling plants in the world. He also runs the paper which called Gov. Quinn a swearword liar.

O'Hara has all the ego, the nervous energy, the gall and the ethics of Huey Long; but he hasn't Huey's intelligence, or his way with people. Nevertheless, he regards himself as the Governor of Rhode Island. You just ought to hear him sound off about what he's going to do. He is going to call a special session of the Legislature, he will have a two-thirds majority, and he will impeach Quinn.

• • • •

AND WHO IS HE? A public officer? No. A Rhode Islander? Well, only in a sort of way. He is a hustler out of Massachusetts who came into this State four years ago to build and run a horse park. Since then the gambling plant at Narragansett track has handled more than $100,000,000 under a monopolistic license permitting him and his stockholders to take down 6½ per cent for themselves, plus breakage and the revenue from the concessions. Call it, say, seven or eight million dollars altogether that O'Hara and his pals have taken down for their end.

Under these conditions deep political affection exists between O'Hara and the Pawtucket city administration, whose mayor, Tom McCoy, plays cribbage with him for nickels in the ballyhoo office of the track these dull, sad autumn afternoons as the soldiers bar the gates and the wind moans through the empty passages beneath the stands where the mutuel windows are shuttered.

The city administration is so strong for O'Hara that reporters from the opposition papers in Providence are not even allowed to enter the Pawtucket City Hall. The city administration is so definitely with O'Hara that he can announce that he will have his Pawtucket boys call a special session of the Legislature as matter-of-factly as he might say that he is going to breed a dog. He may have even less respect for them. That would be understandable.

This is not a political leader who speaks of his legislative strength and his intention to toss out the elected Governor, but the operator of a gambling plant whose conversation naively suggests that the office of the track is the rightful Capitol of Rhode Island.

But maybe O'Hara overspeaks himself. True, the horse people in times past have elected Governors and owned Legislatures in Kentucky, Florida and other States, but they have always gone about their business with some discretion. O'Hara, however, can't keep a still tongue in his head. He has to boast. He boasts that he elected Gov. Quinn. "I spent over $100,000 to elect him," he says. "And then he double-crossed me."

• • • •

AND HE REVILES Quinn verbally and in the paper which he bought with the astonishing flood of easy money received from the tracks. Horse-park promoters everywhere realize that theirs is a chancy business, subject to political chills and the terrible evils of reform. The smart ones are careful not to flaunt their political power, lest the citizens get their pride up and resolve to show them who is boss by repealing the racing laws. Because it is merely a device for gambling, horse racing is held to be one with burglary and prostitution and is licensed only at some sacrifice of popular principle to ease the tax burden.

In that status in Rhode Island the horse racket, nevertheless, has had the dumb effrontery to boast that it elected Quinn but found him ungrateful, and to announce that he will be kicked out and replaced by someone who can remember that the State exists for the gambling joint.

"We will call a special session," O'Hara says, just like that, "and then we will impeach him. I'll get him."

The horse people aren't grateful to O'Hara for all this. It is embarrassing. And, anyway, it is all very unnecessary, for O'Hara was doing fine with the best private pitch in the world, a monopoly in a rich State adjoining two other rich States. A little more of that and he may get himself repealed by the people. He talks altogether too much with his mouth.

The Once Over

H. I. Phillips

A Letter To The Duke.

Dear Edward: You still have time to reconsider and not come to America. Act now before it is too late. What you and the duchess went through in Germany was nothing to what you will have to stand for in the United States. The only break we can promise you now is that you won't have to ride a whole day in a government trailer, as Mr. Roosevelt has no trailer, but it looks like you would get everything else, including the coal mines and speeches. Already plans are in the works to drag you and the duchess through every housing project in the country and over every viaduct, suspension bridge and supercauseway; in fact, you had better take a firm stand right away and serve notice that you will positively not submit peacefully to a trip over Coulee Dam in a barrel.

• • • •

And I warn you about the parade up Broadway this year. You know how those financial offices dump stuff out the windows on visiting celebrities even in busy years, but this winter, with nothing else to do, the brokers, bankers, clerks and stenographers will spend the day throwing out everything from the telephone books to the office furniture, as they have very little use for either with business what it is in the Wall Street zone, and I wouldn't be surprised if they jumped out with it.

• • • •

Your real sufferings will come, however, as you move across the country bowing from the rear platform and making such an impression as the first authentic counterattraction to Roosevelt that the Republicans will make you miserable trying to get you to be their candidate in 1940.

• • • •

But worse than all the other ordeals, Eddie, will be the autograph and camera business. You may think you were pestered by photographers in Europe but you ain't seen nuthin' yet. You should issue a bulletin right now telling the American photographers you will not pose standing on your head, laying the cornerstone for a new French Casino show or anything like that, and stating clearly that the duchess will not have her picture taken catching an effigy of Stanley Baldwin hurled from the top of Washington Monument.

• • • •

As for the autographs, my advice is to make the entire trip with both arms in a sling. If not, you will regret it. With best wishes, I am,

Your sincere friend,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

Is There No Justice?

Hi: The war to make the world safe for people who don't want lettuce with their sandwiches makes little headway. Today I went into a drug store and said, "A ham sandwich WITHOUT lettuce", very firmly. "You want mayonnaise on that lettuce?" asked the clerk a moment later.

Britain At Brussels

By Livingston Hartley.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE EFFORTS of the Nine-Power Conference at Brussels to restore peace in Eastern Asia, its procedure and methods of work, and its attitude in the event that the Japanese army refuses to be deflected from its goal, will be determined primarily by the American and British governments. If these two governments can move in step, it may safely be predicted that the other "neutral powers" will follow their lead. But if either Washington or London proves unwilling to maintain solidarity with the other, concerted action at Brussels will not proceed far.

The lessons of 1931-1932, when the Japanese army faced America and the world with a comparable but far less serious crisis over Manchuria, must be kept in mind. Sir John Simon was not prepared then to keep in step with Mr. Stimson's efforts to halt Japan. His reluctance to co-operate in a more vigorous and positive support of peace and international treaties is now generally regarded as a central element in Japan's success in creating "Manchukuo."

Obviously, in the present graver circumstances, a similar attitude by London would be even more disastrous to the Far Eastern interests of the Nine-Power Treaty signatories. It is of interest, therefore, to examine now, before the conference meets, certain developments of the last six years which must play a leading part in determining the British attitude.

Dictators Of Europe Not Threatening In '31.

One of these can only be classified as unfavorable. In 1931, although weakened by the financial crisis, the British Empire was not threatened directly by dark-shirted dictators in Berlin and Rome. Its rulers looked with some hope to the coming disarmament conference, instead of facing the grim realities of a re-armament race. Germany was still a peaceful republic, and Hitler but a loud-mouthed leader of a minority party; the traditional friendship of strategically situated Spain was not menaced by a Fascist general; and Mussolini had not yet begun to gamble with the destinies of his people in order to fulfill a Napoleonic urge.

The British government, consequently, could then have dispatched the Mediterranean fleet to Singapore without courting danger in Europe. Confronted today with an evident threat to its heart and arteries from an aggressive combination of dictators, it must now keep this fleet in the Mediterranean.

Clearly then, despite progress with re-armament and the Singapore base, Britain's relative power in the Pacific has suffered a marked decline since 1931. Her total strength may be greater now, but it can no longer be applied to the other side of the world. These conditions must make for caution at Brussels.

Power, however, is not the only foundation upon which Britain's Far Eastern policy will be built. We must also take into account the will of the British government and people to restrain Japanese aggression.* Here the developments of the last six years have moved in the opposite direction, as can be seen by a brief review of those of world-wide scope and those relating primarily to Asia.

Manchuria, the Rhineland, Ethiopia and Spain have taught the British people some grim lessons they did not know in 1931. When the first of these treaty violations took place, it marked a new departure in post-war history. It was not recognized then as the beginning of a world-wide movement of international lawlessness and violence, and its inevitable repercussions on Europe were then perceived by only a small minority of writers and statesmen.

British People See Omen In Fascist Bloc.

TODAY the British people realize clearly that this ominous movement, marked by the rise of armaments and the Fascist International, threatens the future of all peaceful peoples, the 90 per cent of the President's Chicago speech. They realize, too, that this movement must be checked, or else it will lead in the end to another world conflagration. Britain's mighty sacrifices for re-armament, backed today by even the Labor Party, show that she has read the handwriting on the wall, and is preparing for the day when the lawbreakers must be halted.

Japanese aggression is only one element in this inter-related world picture. If it succeeds once more in subjugating great areas of China beneath the yoke of the Japanese army, it must weaken the strategic position and hence the power of Russia, thereby strengthening Germany and paving the way for her military expansion in Europe. Quite apart from its influence on power politics, it must strike another staggering blow at the morale and self-confidence of peace-loving peoples throughout the world. But if it can be checked instead by the nations that desire peace, the precedent established may be expected to influence distant continents as powerfully as did Japan's triumphant defiance of treaties in 1931.

The peoples of the British empire, facing a world situation which they recognize as fraught with serious, and possibly deadly, menace for the future, have compelling reasons now to adopt a more positive foreign policy toward Japanese aggression. The fact that Mr. Anthony Eden now heads the Foreign Office in place of Sir John Simon aids immeasurably the formulation of such a policy. And it must not be forgotten that the British peoples, as they have watched the development of the Fascist threat to their security and democratic institutions, have evinced a growing urge for solidarity with the United States.

In the more restricted field of Eastern Asia the Japanese menace to British interests is incomparably more acute than it was in 1931. The conquest of Manchuria, which only affected unimportant investments, was actually welcomed by potent sections of Tory opinion as a permanent barrier to a southward spread of Russian power.

Japan, moreover, was then the former ally and the traditional friend, whereas British relations with Russia were unfriendly. Today this situation has been radically altered.

Invasion By Japanese Menaces British Money.

THE PRESENT ASSAULT of the Japanese army threatens the center of British influence in China and investments surpassing a billion dollars. It marks a decisive step in Japan's drive to attain hegemony over all Eastern Asia, and causes thoughful Britons to consider the ultimate effects of her success. They can no longer hope to rival Japan in Far Eastern naval power alone, and must face the fact that her continued expansion south will eventually threaten all British Pacific territories. The final destiny of Australia and New Zealand may, perhaps, be decided upon the battlefields of China.

Meanwhile, in these same six years, the British attitude toward Japan and Russia has undergone marked changes. Manchuria and its aftermath in North China, successive treaty violations including the closing of the Open Door, increasing competition in exports, Tokyo's "anti-Comintern" pact with Berlin, and the ruthlessness of Japan's attacks on civilians have replaced former friendly sentiment with a feeling of disgust and hostility.

Suspicion and fear of Russian foreign policy has also shown a considerable decline. Despite British abhorrence of communism, it is now recognized in London that Russia is on the defensive in world affairs, and that she constitutes a barrier to the aims of Hitler and the Japanese militarists, and that she is likely to be an ally rather than a foe in another world war.

The British, moreover, cannot disregard the political repercussions of Russia's material support of the Nanking government. They have striven for over a century to build up their present prestige in China. If they fail now to give China a helping hand, while Russia provides assistance in the shape of arms, planes and credits, their prestige throughout the Chinese republic will be undermined, and Russia will be hailed as the true friend of China in a thousand villages and towns. Such a prospect, in view of the incidence of Russia on most of British Asia, must impel the foreign office to avoid too negative an attitude toward Japan.

The developments outlined above would appear to point to certain conclusions relating to British policy at Brussels. Since Britain cannot now employ her naval power effectively in the Pacific, there will presumably be a strong reluctance to undertake any action which might require its use. But the will of the British government and people to restrain Japanese aggression has grown progressively during the last six years. There is, accordingly, a greater likelihood today of British solidarity with concerted efforts to attain that end.

British Diplomacy Today.

IT IS A convenient but far from accurate simplification of history to say, as so often has been said, that British policy in Europe invariably consists in opposing the dominant continental power.

Thus, it is pointed out, Great Britain, from the sixteenth century to the present, successively opposed Spain, the Netherlands, France and Germany. After the World War which temporarily saw the reestablishment of French power in Europe, Great Britain's war-time alliance with its trans-Channel neighbor speedily faded until those two powers were thrown together again by common fear of and opposition to a rearmed and warlike Germany.

• • • •

THE THEORY has enough truth in it to be plausible. But it does not entirely hold up. Certainly it does not explain why England was not only friendly with but, during the Crimean War, allied to the France of Napoleon III against a Russia which, whatever its policies in the Near East might be, by no means threatened to become the dominant European power. Nor does it explain the cordial relations that existed between England and Bismarckian Germany which, after the Franco-Prussian War, emerged as continental Europe's No. 1 power.

This does not mean that the balance-of-power theory regarding Great Britain's long-time attitude on European affairs is entirely invalid. It is not. Great Britain has certainly viewed with suspicion and hostility any power that at one time or other has sought to establish its hegemony over the continent. But the real reason for such suspicion leading sooner or later to outright hostility is to be found not in European but in extra-European factors. That is the attempt of the dominant European power to extend its sway over regions which Great Britain regarded as its sphere of influence.

• • • •

IN OTHER WORDS, it has been imperial rather than purely European considerations which have determined British policy during the past three centuries. That, rather than any desire to maintain the European balance of power as such, explains British hostility to Spain, the Netherlands (never a dominant European power) the France of Louis XIV and Napoleon and the Germany of William II.

And it was for the same reasons of empire that Great Britain opposed the attempt by Russia to get a foothold on the Mediterranean, France's ambitions in the Sudan, Russia's penetration of Middle Asia and Germany's Berlin-Bagdad railway project.

Well, then, if considerations of empire were the determining factors in British policy in the past does that circumstance still hold true today?

THE ANSWER is not so easy to give. Generally speaking Great Britain is still as determined to protect its empire as it was in the past. But the situation has changed in three highly important respects.

In the first place the empire is not what it was. In the second place the problem of defending that empire is not the relatively simple thing it used to be in the days when Great Britain was literally mistress of the seas. And, thirdly, Great Britain has become, because of the development of science, as integral a part of the European continent as is, say, Czechoslovakia, the Netherlands or France. But the latter situation while realized by all thinking men in England is still so new that the mental adjustment necessary for the abandonment of all beliefs in "splendid isolation" have not yet been made.

But for all three reasons Britain's foreign policy tends at the present time to be confused, fluid and almost feverishly opportunistic.

• • • •

THE MANDATE of London no longer runs throughout the length and breadth of the crown's domain. The dominions are now independent states and have a voice in the determination of imperial policy. They must be consulted before any major stand is taken and there is not always any assurance that their attitude will be similar to the attitude of Great Britain itself. Inevitably this makes for delay and hesitation in the formulation of policy, even when speed is essential.

With regard to defense the British empire today is infinitely more vulnerable than it was at any time in the nineteenth century. From the British view the most dangerous stage that empire passed through at that time was during the nineties when Great Britain simultaneously had to face a Russian threat in the Middle East and Far East, a French threat in equatorial Africa, the beginnings of naval rivalry with Germany and a serious situation, ultimately leading to war, in South Africa.

• • • •

BUT IN comparison with the situation facing Great Britain today, the difficulties of the 1890s were mere child's play.

While Italy threatens Britain's naval hegemony in the Mediterranean, Japan is cutting the ground from under British feet in the Far East and, at the same time, Great Britain now more than ever a European as well as a world power, is faced by an increasingly serious German problem.

It is possible that British statesmen would be willing to grapple, by whatever means necessary and regardless of consequences, with any one of these problems alone. But the combination of all of them together appears to be almost too much for British statesmanship particularly since, at the moment, the men in power in London are distinctly second and third-raters, anyway.

The tragedy of the situation is that never more than now Great Britain is in a position to assume a position of enlightened leadership, particularly in Europe. It is being courted by rivals as well as friends. Its prestige has survived repeated diplomatic defeats. Whenever it does take a strong and determined stand the effects are invariably salutary. But such moments are few and far between. Which helps explain why Europe is in the mess it is in with no certainty that it will get out of it before that continent and the world are again overwhelmed by disaster.

Helen's Story

By William Lyon Phelps
"Fifteen-Thirty."

No better title could possibly have been found for this new book by Helen Wills, in my opinion the greatest woman tennis player who ever lived.

I like the title, because it exactly and twice over expresses the contents. It is Fifteen-Thirty because it is about the game of lawn tennis; and it is fifteen-thirty because it describes, with plenty of mental and athletic details, the career of the author, from the age of 15 to the age of 30.

• • • •

There are many pictures which add to the interest of the exciting narrative.

Helen Wills writes well. Every person who has reached the top in any form of human endeavor, physical or mental, is interesting; because there is some quality in champions that makes them mentally different from other persons: even when they cannot themselves express this difference.

But Helen Wills was a Phi Beta Kappa student at the University of California; she has given public exhibitions of her work—paintings; she has written much for publication.

• • • •

Many will turn in this book to the two crises in her athletic career—when she played Suzanne Lenglen for the only time the two met in combat, and when she retired during the match with Helen Jacobs; stayed in retirement two years, to emerge in greater glory than ever.

I think she is really more interested in the state of her mind than in her bodily fitness; and I think most readers, after they finish this exceedingly interesting volume, will agree with me.

The publishers are Charles Scribners Sons, New York.

Vital Points In I. C. C. Decision

In its decision of October 22, General Commodity Rate Increases, 1937, the Interstate Commerce Commission specifically authorized increased freight rates on certain important basic commodities which are estimated to increase revenues of the railroads by about $47,500,000 per year. In addition, the commission stated that the carriers could be permitted to file certain other proposed increased freight rates, subject to possible protest and suspension. However, the railroads were denied authority to make effective some of the increases which they proposed.

The commission's opinion is noteworthy in its clear recognition that the general public interest, as well as the constitutional rights of the railroad owners, demands a level of rates which will produce fair earnings. The following is quoted from page 730 of the commission's opinion:

From the facts of record no other conclusion is possible than that the net earnings of the railroads are now inconsistent, in general, not only with constitutional standards as to the rights of the private owners, but also with the conditions necessary for the proper conduct of the public service of railroad transportation by private enterprise.

The record amply justifies the conclusion that in the aggregate the railroads are earning very materially less than a reasonable return on the fair value of their carrier properties. Let us, then, consider the significance of that conclusion. It means, of course, that the great majority of the individual railroads are not earning the return which the Supreme Court has held that under the Constitution they must be given an opportunity to earn. But it has a practical significance to the country quite apart from any question of the constitutional rights of the property owners. The public service which our railroads perform has been committed to private enterprise sustained by private capital. There are conditions necessary to the successful operation of that system of providing a public service, and those conditions must be respected if results satisfactory to the country are to be had. In other words, the game must be played according to the rules. One of these essential conditions, or rules, we stated in St. Louis & O'Fallon Ry. Co. Excess Income, 124 I. C. C. 3, 30, as follows:

"The end in view, as we have stated, is the maintenance of an adequate national railway transportation system. Such a system, so long as it is privately owned, obviously cannot be provided and maintained without a continuous inflow of capital. Obviously, also, such an inflow of capital can only be assured by treatment of capital already invested which will invite and encourage further investment.

In considering the need for railway earnings which will "invite and encourage further investment" it must also be borne in mind that economic conditions are now very different from what they were a few years ago. Then we were in the midst of the worst depression in our history, but there has since been a great revival of business. In this respect, present conditions are the reverse of those by which we were faced in Fifteen Per Cent Case, 1931, 178 I. C. C. 539. In that case we had this to say, at page 565:

"It is only necessary to have in mind the incongruous results which would follow an attempt to adjust rates so that a stable rate of return would be realized, notwithstanding general business conditions and the rise and fall of traffic in consonance therewith, to realize the unreasonableness and impracticability of any such policy."

However, recognition of this fact that the railroads cannot hope in times of economic depression to earn a normal return carries with it recognition of the complementary principle that they should be given an opportunity to earn more than a normal return in times of prosperity. In the same case, after stating a general rule which might well control our action with respect to railroad rates, we said, at page 582:

"It will be noted also that it contains recognition of the principle that inasmuch as railroad earnings must inevitably fall below normal in times of depression they may properly be permitted to rise above nomal in times of prosperity. Such recognition might well be supplemented by a provision that some portion of surplus accumulations shall be held in liquid form."

There is a further phase of the credit problem which must not be overlooked. In the long run no private corporation can continue to attract private capital unless it is able to market stock as well as bonds, which means that it must, at least in times of prosperity, be able to pay dividends. There is an obvious limit to the amount of indebtedness that can be incurred and the greater the amount the greater the danger in times of depression.

• • • •

After careful review of the entire situation, the commission reached the conclusion that the necessary improvement in the spread between railway revenues and expenses must be brought about by an increase of rates. The following is quoted from pages 732-733:

Looking ahead as best we may, the present unsatisfactory financial condition of the railroads can be corrected only by a material improvement in the spread between revenues and expenses. Do the facts of record warrant an "informed judgment" that the necessary improvement in this respect can be anticipated within the reasonably near future without an increase of rates? It is true that traffic has been increasing since 1932, and the record furnishes no reason for believing that some upward trend will not continue. However, growing competition has slowed down the increase, and the improvement in net earnings has been disappointing, notwithstanding that the railroads have been able to reduce unit operating costs materially. The trend of commodity prices, as shown by the record, is distinctly upward. The Department of Labor index of wholesale prices in 1932 was 64.8. In 1936 it had risen to 80.8, and in the week ended May 29, 1937, the latest period for which it is shown of record, it was 87.4. There is a like upward trend in taxes.

Having in mind the continuing and apparently growing incidence of competition from other forms of transportation, the fact that the production of the country appears to have recovered from the depression slump and now shows no clear tendency to any rapid growth, the need for adequate maintenance expenditures, and the apparently rising tide of prices and taxes, we are unable to conclude that the necessary improvement in the spread between revenues and expenses can be anticipated within the reasonably near future without an increase of rates.

Since the record in this portion of the proceeding was closed we know, as does all the world, that the railroads have agreed to very substantial increases in the wages of their employes and that many of these increases are now in effect. Applicants have not sought to have the record re-opened for the purpose of incorporating in it the facts as to this matter. In this report we have not taken judicial, or official, notice of these facts, notwithstanding their notoriety.

• • • •

The facts of record as to the financial condition of the railroads have been summarized hereinbefore, but without discussion of their significance. In 1929, the net railway operating income of the class I railroads was, in round figures, $1,252,000,000. Thereafter it fell rapidly, until the low point of $326,000,000 was reached in 1932. Since then, it has increased slowly, until in the year ended April 30, 1937, the latest period covered by the record, it was $716,000,000. This figure, however, included about $80,000,000 derived from the emergency charges, which were discontinued at the end of 1936. Deducting this amount, the net railway operating income in this latest period, nearly eight years after the beginning of the economic depression, was only 50.8 per cent of that in 1929, and including the $80,000,000, it was only 57.2 per cent.

If the railroads had been able to obtain on the traffic which they moved in 1936 the same average operating revenue per unit as they obtained in 1929 (see table on page 670), they would have earned, notwithstanding the decreased volume of traffic but with the aid of the reduced operating expense per unit, a net railway operating income of $1,396,100,000 instead of the $667,000,000 which they actually earned, in comparison with the $1,252,000,000 which they earned in the prosperity of 1929.

Louisiana Plans $90,000 Mardi Gras For Washington

A real Louisiana Mardi Gras will be presented here at an estimated cost of $90,000, it was announced yesterday by Earle J. Christenberry, director of public relations for the State of Louisiana.

Saying the huge festival will be in charge of J. J. Ferguson, postmaster of New Orleans and for many years official of the original Mardi Gras there, Christenberry added the announcement was made at the request of Gov. Richard W. Leche. The celebration will be staged in the latter part of January or the first of February.

Louisianians living in Washington will make up the cast of 150, Christenberry said.

Chinese Will Hold Church Fund Rally

Members and captains of 42 teams in a drive for funds for the Chinese Church and Community Center will be held at 6:30 p. m. tomorrow at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H streets northwest. Chinese Ambassador Dr. C. T. Wang is honorary chairman and Dr. William S. Abnernethy is general chairman.

Schacht Reported Out of NaziCabinet

Paris (Tuesday), Oct. 26 (U.P.).—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German minister of economy, was reported here today to have resigned. Rumors of his resignation or impending resignation have been current for months.

U. S. 'Nation of Pagans,' Church Leader Says

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 25 (AP).—"America is a pagan nation and is growing more heathen yearly," Guy P. Leavitt, Cincinnati church publication editor, declared today before more than 500 delegates to the National Evangelistic Association convention.

"Of the 125,000,000 persons in the United States, according to the research division of the National Education Association, 30,000,000 are unchurched," Leavitt stated.

Dickstein Fears Riot In N. Y. Nazi Parade

By the United Press.

Representative Samuel Dickstein (Democrat), of New York, last night castigated the New York Police Department for issuing a permit to the German-American Bund to parade in New York City on October 30 and warned that bloodshed might result.

D. C. Priest Scores League of Nations

"A spoil crazed League of Nations" and "autocrats who think nothing of sending the youth of their countries to untimely death" were criticized yesterday by the Rev. John S. Spence, director of the Holy Name Society of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart Church, Sixteenth street and Park road northwest, and head of the Washington Retreat League.

Father Spence's criticisms were made in a radio address broadcast over Station WCAO in Baltimore under the auspices of the National Catholic Evidence Guild. His topic was "Christ, the King."

Morgan Ridicules Coal Trust Charge

New York, Oct. 25 (U.P.).—J. P. Morgan & Co. today denounced as "sheer nonsense" a report issued by W. Jett Lauck, chairman of the Pennsylvania anthracite coal commission, charging Morgan interests with domination of anthracite production and transportation.

A statement by the company denied it exercised control over the industry and blamed the commission for diverting attention from anthracite's "real" problems, including "bootlegging" operations, "overwhelming" taxes and competition of other fuels.

Public Welfare Board Opens Exhibit Today

Opening an exhibit in main-floor corridors of the Department of Commerce at 10 a. m. today, the Board of Public Welfare will prepare for its annual meeting in the the department auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight.

The exhibit will demonstrate what has been done in the past year and what is anticipated for the future by the city's various welfare, recreational and institutional units. The board's annual report will be offered by Director Elwood Street at the night meeting.

Gift to Chest Called Duty of Citizenship

"Giving to the Community Chest is simply accepting a very small part of the individual responsibility of citizenship," Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin, Civil Service Commissioner, last night told a meeting of the speakers' committee of the Governmental unit of the Chest.

"It is a privilege to give to those who have less, who depend on the Community Chest agencies for help," she declared.

Dr. Allan A. Stockdale, chairman of the Chest speakers' unit, declared that the most important work done by the Chest is that of crime prevention through youth activities.

Assistant Treasury Secretary Wayne Chatfield Taylor, chairman of the governmental unit; Clarence Phelps Dodge, president of the Chest; Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, U. S. A., retired, former surgeon general; Horace Russell, general counsel for the Home Owners Loan Corporation; Justice Justin Miller, of the District Court of Appeals, and Harry B. DeAtlet, of the Department of Justice, were among the other speakers.

North Beach Group Elects E. M. White

E. M. White has been elected president of the Citizens Association of North Beach Park, Md., it was announced here yesterday. Dr. W. W. Wyman was elected vice president; Earl Y. Henderson, secretary; W. A. Burton, treasurer, and Ralph Sinyard and H. A. Stacy, trustees.

The association was advised that an erosion bulkhead costing $110,000, started several months ago, is nearing completion, at a recent meeting at the Y. W. C. A., 614 E street northwest.

Applicants Are Sought For 2 Maryland Jobs

Baltimore, Oct. 25 (AP).—John J. Seidel, special representative of the United States Department of Labor, announced today he would receive applications until Nov. 10 for two jobs with the Maryland Employment Service — each job paying $3,000 or more a year.

The only qualification necessary to apply for the positions, Seidel said, is one year or more of residence in Maryland.

Jobs open, his announcement said, are those as manager of the Baltimore City employment office, and State training supervisor.

200 Notables Attend Lorimer Burial Rites

Philadelphia, Oct. 25 (AP).—More than 200 notables, among them former President Herbert Hoover, attended funeral services here today for George Horace Lorimer, former editor of the Saturday Evening Post, who died of pneumonia Friday.

Winter Evening Mode Adapts Itself to Varying Personalities

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

IN CHOOSING your formal evening gowns this winter, it isn't a question of clothes, but of personality that is of paramount importance. You can be a woman of numerous personalities, if your budget permits, if not, assume the one interpretation that is most becoming. Here are some suggestions:

Sculptured lines of classic simplicity, as sponsored by Alix, Jodelle and Jenny, are for the slim and sophisticated; extremely chic if you can wear them.

The 1880 Polonaise influence, distinguished by hipline draperies, bustle back-effects, and such, has a romantic air; exploited by Rochas and Patou.

To show off the figure to good advantage, choose a gown of Directoire and Empire inspiration; high waist and bustline, as sponsored by Lelong and Vionnet.

For decided femininity and a touch of smart quaintness, there are the lovely wide-skirted gowns of frothy materials, reminiscent of "crinoline" days; Chanel and Molyneux favor this interpretation.

If you are tired of current stylings, you can emulate the clothes of famous belles of other days, in a "portrait" dress, as designed by Mainbocher, in the 1800 influence.

Virtually all of the famous designers have gone in for the ultra-popular 1900 influence, as interpreted by Schiaparelli corseted waistline, long torso, high bustline.

Fabrics are of tremendous importance this season; velvets, lace, silk brocades, lame, taffeta, satin, net, silk jersey, novelty silk crepes, chiffon, in new and luxurious versions.

Glitter and glamour is delightfully expressed in the white silk marquisette model above, with basque bodice of white and gold sequins. The very full skirt is made over a lining of white silk satin. Gloves are white suede, smartly crushed about the wrist.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain.

IF YOU are looking for a pleasant way of keeping in trim, play tennis, fence or swim. These three sports head the list in the development of beautiful figures. Engage in any one of them several times a week and you are practically assured of streamlined normal weight.

As a rule, swimmers comprise a group of mermaids whose figures are the envy of the rest of the feminine sports world. Annette Kellerman, who first brought the beauty value of swimming to public attention, was as streamlined as the Kompa sisters, or Eleanor Holm Jarrett. These are just a few examples, for swimming has given as many hostages to fame as the Ziegfeld Follies.

You do not, however, have to be in championship form to benefit from this exercise. It so happens that the Kompas and Eleanor Holm Jarrett specialize in the backstroke. Even though you attain only mediocre skill with this stroke, you may be sure that this style of swimming improves the bust measurement and makes beautiful arms and shoulders.

Any style of swimming will improve your figure. This super-slimming medium seems to allot to each group of muscles just the amount of exercise they need, and there is no strain connected wi[th] it. Besides giving you slim, lovely lines, it uses a high rate of calories. The 130-pound girl who swims for an hour burns up around 400 calories.

Just now fencing bids to become a favorite feminine recreation. This sport is to be classed as reducing. You can lose as much as five pounds in an hour's work with the foils, and at the same time you develop speed, precision and balance—the essentials of poise and grace. Fencing uses 3.6 calories per pound per hour, according to Dr. Mary Swartz Rose, of Columbia University.

Tennis, the most strenuous of this trio of activities, is the favorite exercise of the screen stars. Almost every star plays a better than fair game, and plays several times a week. Among the outstandingly beautiful tennis stars are Helen Wills Moody and Kay Stammers, and in the film colony, Joan Crawford and Carole Lombard.

There are other sports which rank high in the making of lovely figures. Rowing effectively uses the muscles of the arms, chest, back and abdomen. Bicycling is excellent for the lower legs, thighs and tummy muscles. Hiking, with a little climbing thrown in, gets all the muscles.

Whatever sport you choose for regular exercise, play regularly and do not ruin its good effects by overeating. You can't be active in any sports and be overweight—but if you get too heavy you will give up your activity.

Fashions of 1900's Influence Jewels

New York (AP).—The suae 1900s, that have left a mark on fall clothes, are a big influence in costume jewel designs. Brooches, clips and bracelets of cameos or onyx rimmed in pearls and set in gold, or carved jet or shimmering "garnets" are very smart.

Upholstery in Gowns.

New York (AP).—Upholstery fabrics have moved from the realm of interior decorating into the evening fashion world. Rich upholstery brocades and damasks make a number of chic dinner gowns and evening wraps this fall.

Taffy Twist Ornaments.

New York (AP).—Gold metal taffy twists are a new buckle trick to accent fall frocks. They are ridged to resemble molasses candy when it is being pulled and are finished in a shining metal twist.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the past year I have been reading your articles and have seen the truth and wisdom of your advice. I would like now to have your help with my problem. I am 17 years old and have been going with a boy friend for eight months. We are very much in love. Many is the time we have listened to lectures on how young we are, etc. But we know we mean more to each other than anything in the world. You, too, I know, will say that we don't know our own minds and therefore should forget each other and go out with others. But before I met him I did go out with others, and so did he.

* * * *

We plan to get married in a few years—as soon as he can get a permanent job paying a good income. You see, we don't want to go blundering blindly into anything. One part of Margaret Banning's "The Case for Chastity," states our problem—the part where she tells of the awakening of youth and the necessity for postponing physical expression of love. I know just what your answer will be—that I am placing too much emphasis on the physical side of our love. But remember that next to hunger comes passion.

* * * *

I'm afraid that in our companionship, we may some day give way to a moment of uncontrollable weakness, and you know the result . . . Being a respectable girl, I don't want this to happen. Our love for each other is not wholly physical love. We are fairly intelligent and enjoy each other's conversation as well.

* * * *

$ What shall I do, Miss Haworth? The inevitable is sure to happen sooner or later even when we both will be fighting against it—for he, like me, is a very respectable person. We can't marry because of no money; and I have to go to college because that is my mother's determined ambition for me. Please answer soon. I shall be watching the paper every day. Sincerely,

WONDERING.

Mental Hygiene Needed.

DEAR WONDERING. The thing for you two socially half-baked, essentially ignorant and emotionally precocious young striplings to do is to get interested in something outside your respective bodies and their voluptuous effect upon each other. Your problem exists largely in your respective imaginations and is the outgrowth of an ignorantly morbid preoccupation with sex, as a topic of discussion. Perhaps the young man himself has sown the seeds of such speculation in your mind, either through his actions or his callow preachments. That sentence of yours, for instance: "Remember that next to hunger comes passion," has all the earmarks of a glittering generality ponderously proffered by a shallow-pated young pagan who wants your body for a plaything. Don't you believe it. Next to hunger comes thirst; and after that, the necessity for clothing one's body against the elements.

* * * *

To say that "our love for each other is not wholly physical" is to admit, by indirection, that it is primarily that; and to admit that much is to admit that love, in the sense of "desire for, and earnest effort to promote, the welfare of another," is almost altogether lacking. Attachments of this kind may be, quite literally, described as "infatuation—a foolish and extravagant passion, deprived of sound judgment" (see Webster's dictionary). Believe me, persons who truly love each other may keep their moral reserve without suffering any undue sense of denial, and still know a deep, exhilarating tranquillity of being when in each other's company that is far removed from the feverish madness of physical infatuation.

* * * *

Since you have to wait years before this youth is in a position to marry (though I am willing to prophesy confidently that you never will marry him, for the simple reason that your infatuation will have run its course in another 12 months at the latest), you could make no better use of your time than to go to college, as your mother plans.

* * * *

You need to fill your mind and your life so full of engrossing, wholesome demands and activities that you have no margin of leisure left in which to tilt with the bogeyman of physical temptation. Your mind needs to be trained to a better use of intellectual curiosity than morbidly speculating about the outcome of yielding "inevitably" to some predatory suitor's advances. You need the social development which comes of college associations. You need to cultivate a well-rounded repertory of accomplishments, with particular emphasis on out-door games and sports. You need friendships with wholesome young men of high ideals, with whom you can golf and ride and swim and play tennis, and dance and study and stroll and discuss the future in quite impersonal terms.

* * * *

Frankly, there's something definitely sordid and subcellarish, so to speak, about a boy-and-girl relationship in which the two adolescents involved believe themselves dramatically fighting off the inevitable zero hour when they shall succumb to the wooing of the serpent. If they are self respecting, spirited and intelligent, they will do one of several things: either they will assert their self respect and their intelligence and impose a quiet discipline upon themselves; or they will break off the association; or they will betake themselves to a physician and find out what is wrong with themselves that they're out of all control.

VITAMIN D MILK

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Oct. 25.

PLUNGING along my popular though wearing beat on the hither shore of the Hudson River the other morn, I ran smack-dab into the darndest shipload of people in months. They were our own folk headed home, nifty visitors here for a look-see, and a goodly portion of people coming over to get theirs. So-called celebrities positively pushed the sides of the Normandie too far out for safety.

ALICE HUGHES

Headlining the show, nominally, was Archduke Franz Joseph of Austria and his frau, but there is a falling market in Hapsburgs these 20 years, and most of us turned away to run down such people as Annabella, the blonde French flicker star headed for Hollywood; our own Claire Luce of Broadway note; Emil Ludwig, now busy on a Roosevelt biography, John Loder, a British movie dream man, and Miss Anne Morgan, J. P.'s social-minded sister devoted to good works.

It was an astounding ship's company, in every way. Adolphe Zukor, the movie tycoon, rubbed elbows with brandy magnates like Charles (five star) Hennessy—and Max Reinhardt, master of stage spectacles, was just an item in the top-heavy list of big shots in business, diplomacy, society and the arts.

Naturally, we reporters were very soon punch-drunk and footsore chasing such a golden host up companionways and through corridors. Dixie Tighe, our only girl ship-news reporter, must have shed 10 pounds doing her frantic duty, a loss she'll not miss or deplore. Flash bulbs went off like heat-lightning all over the place, with hysterical cameramen shooting freely from the hip!

This Normandie arrival was noteworthy as about the last of the colossal cargoes for the season. About all are ashore who are going ashore. Now for winter!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Mary Pickford, bless her high spirits, may be hip deep in the forties and all that, but she still gets plenty of attention from our screaming mobs. A few evenings ago I saw Buddy Rogers' little woman the center and victim of a crush outside the theater where Gertrude Lawrence is playing in "Susan and God"—the autograph vermin fighting for her Jane Hancock.

A local optometrist named Solodar is doing novel and interesting work correcting the eye abnormalities of children with movies. He says he can thus successfully treat crossed eyes, double vision and other troubles dependent on muscular co-ordination. He fixes the eyes, and the children like the films—all unaware that they are being doctored! Some stunt, hey? . . .

Wilfred J. Funk, leading American word-monger and tracer, has just crashed out with a book called "So You Think It's New," crammed with such delightful dope as "Rome had apartment houses 12 stories high." Now I know where columnists get all these weird facts that "startle" their publics . . .

Today's HEALTH TALK

Concentrated Vitamins.

The things we eat are part of the environment to which we have had to adapt ourselves through the ages, and it so happens that when our prehistoric ancestors got into the habit of eating fresh food and raw food, this food contained certain substances which are necessary for health and growth, and which we now call vitamins.

It would be convenient at many times when we are going on a long journey, or when an army is traveling, to be able to eat all that is necessary in concentrated form. This would do away with the necessity of cumbersome dining car and cook wagons and a great deal of heavy luggage.

The question arises whether it is necessary for an adult to take care to add any vitamins deliberately to his diet (we know that it appears to be necessary in the diet of children, but this was discussed yesterday). Most adults eat a sufficiently mixed and varied diet so that theoretically they obtain all the vitamins they need. It probably is a foolish and unnecessary thing to try to add vitamin concentrates to a perfectly healthy person's normal diet.

However, some researches have arisen lately which appear to indicate that adults need a larger quantity of certain vitamins than they get in their food. This is especially true about Vitamin B. Either the body's inability to utilize this vitamin runs out or in adult life, for one reason or another, foods which contain it are instinctively rejected. In many conditions the Vitamin B concentrate appears to be beneficial.

Swiss Flier-Adventurer Is Visitor to Washington

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

Flying with Walter Mittelholzer over the Alps and in the African skyway . . . tracing the African coast by seaplane and crossing the Sahara by automobile . . . making an expedition through the lost islands of Polynesia and living as a bushman in the coral islands in order to make a first-hand study of the natives—these are but a few of the subjects touched on yesterday afternoon by Lieut. Col. Rene Gouzy, widely known Swiss aviator, explorer and author, in an interview at the Swiss Legation.

HOPE R. MILLER.

On his first trip to the United States, Col. Gouzy (pronounced goo-zee) is visiting the Swiss Minister and Mme. Peter, who entertained at dinners in his honor last evening and the evening before. Scheduled for a series of lectures in this country and in Mexico, he arrived in New York October 12, and, by way of beginning his "American experience," talked before audiences in New York and Philadelphia before coming to the Capital. Last evening, he gave a lecture illustrated with lantern slides for the Swiss colony assembled at headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

His discussion yesterday afternoon in the Legation's cozy drawing room, however, was as informal as it was informative. With the affable Swiss Minister seated nearby, serving as interpreter when necessary, the distinguished visitor figuratively took me on a flying tour that crossed every continent of the globe and finally landed far up in the Austrian Alps.

Was Close Friend Of Noted Flyer.

A small man with thinning hair, an exceptional sense of humor and keen enthusiasm reflected in his bright blue eyes and staccat speech, Col. Gouzy obviously has a range of interests as extensive as his travels have been; but apparently there are two subjects to which he often reverts in any conversation. One is ethnology—his life-long study—and the other is the late Walter Mittelholzer, the noted aviator who was killed last May while scaling the Austrian Alps. It was on Mittelholzer's work that he lectured last night, and it was to the famous flier he referred frequently in the half hour I had with him yesterday afternoon.

"You want to hear something of Mittelholzer?" was the way he began as he settled back in his chair and lighted a cigarette. Then, briefly, he told the story of meeting the former director of the Swiss airlines in Geneva more than a decade ago, of planning scores of trips with him, of accompanying him on a number of flights, including the one in which they skimmed over the highest peak in Africa.

"What a shame," he sighed as his story of Mittelholzer spun to an end, "that such a fearless flier should lose his life, not on an air expedition but in climbing a mountain."

Chief Concern Is Ethnology.

When talk turned away from his famous friend to his own career, Col. Gouzy revealed that flying had been merely a sideline, stemming from his study of ethnology, which began a number of years ago when he was in the Belgian Congo and became fascinated with observing peculiaritaies of the African race. At that time he was a soldier. Later, he devoted his attention to ethnology and returned to Europe to study. Subsequently, he traveled to many lands pursuing his research and making rare collections for museums. It was to this end that he flew with Mittleholzer to Africa a number of times.

In the course of his career, his ethnological discoveries have furnished material for lecture tours in many countries and for a number of books translated into many languages. He expects to be in America until February, will visit Mexico for several weeks, then continue on to the Orient and the South Sea islands by way of San Francisco.

A bachelor ("I have been too busy to find anyone who would marry me," he observed with a twinkle in his eyes), he has no home ties pulling him back to his homeland, so this trip will keep him away for almost two years.

Delightfully surprised at finding people in the United States "so hospitable, and the Capital so beautiful," he said he hoped to return some day for an extended stay. He arrived in Washington on Sunday and will leave today for New Orleans, where he will lecture. From there he will go to Mexico City, returning in a few weeks to continue his tour across the country, on his way to the Orient.

Parties Planned For Arabel Cox And Her Fiance

Dances, Dinner and Cocktail Fetes Arranged for This Week.

There are parties galore these days in honor of Miss Arabel Parker Cox, daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Albert Lyman Cox, whose wedding to Murray Borden, jr., will take place on Saturday evening. This week's festivities in honor of the pair will begin on Thursday afternoon, when Miss Betsy Dern, daughter of Mrs. George H. Dern and the late Secretary of War, will entertain at a cocktail party in their new residence in Georgetown, which Mrs. Dern has leased from Mr. and Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell.

That evening Lieut. (junior grade) William R. Cox, the brother of the future bride, will entertain at a dance at the Army-Navy Country Club. On Friday afternoon Miss Maria Drane and her sister, Mrs. Pembroke Nash, will give a cocktail party and that evening Miss Mary Jane Pelley will entertain members of the wedding party at a dinner dance at the Shoreham.

Parties which already have been given for the couple include a buffet supper by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Syckles, a similar affair held by Mrs. Charles Brown and a cocktail party at which Mr. and Mrs. Noah Goodridge were hosts. All of these were given last week.

Young Set Aids In Charity Ball

The younger set in Washington is helping out with plans for the Charity Ball at the Mayflower Hotel this evening to help provide free lunches for school children.

Those aiding in arrangements include Miss Katherine Friant, daughter of the executive assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Julian Friant; Miss Mary Agnes Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Russell Young; Miss Alice Clarke; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brent Clarke, and Miss Jean Gilbert, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Gilbert. Mis Ruth Quinn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry I. Quinn, is assisting the sub-deb set. Some bachelors who are giving their time to the cause are Bradford Ross, James Brent Charles, jr., Charles Koester and John A. Sobotka, jr.

Others assisting will be Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Upperville, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Sands, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Clarke and Mr. and Mrs. Breckenbridge Bayne.

NOTES OF SOCIETY

MRS. JOHN BAIN, the former Jocelyn Hibberd, who made her debut here several years ago, is now in town visiting with her aunts, Mrs. Edward Tierney and Miss Bessie Hickey, at their home on Woodland Drive. Mrs. Bain, who now makes her home at York Mills near Toronto, Canada, is being widely entertained by friends during her stay in Washington.

About the Town

With Dudley Harmon

IT WOULD BE HARD to tell whether Frank Kent or Jouett Shouse had the most fun last evening at the Baltimore opening of the New Deal satire, "I'd Rather Be Right." Both these strenuous critics of the Administration were in the audience, which included most of Baltimore dressed up in its best, and some of Washington.

DUDLEY HARMON.

Mr. Kent had entertained at dinner beforehand at 7 o'clock so all could make the opening curtain. His guests included Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Arthur Krock and Bernard Baruch, who came down from New York for the occasion. Joseph Kennedy, chairman of the Maritime Commission, was to have been in the party, but at the last moment was detained in New York by business.

* * * *

A FRIENDLY NEWS SOURCE who always has at least one ear to the ground tells us Mrs. Roosevelt will attend a Saturday performance of "I'd Rather Be Right." Surely Mrs. Malvina Scheider and Col. Starling can't use up all those tickets they reserved.

To judge by the minks and sables on view at the opening, the audience must have been largely Republican. The lobby of the theater was filled with jostling crowds from 7:30 until curtain time and frequently exploding flashlight bulbs gave the scene the appearance of a Hollywood premiere.

Among those in the audience were Sir Willmott Lewis and John Garrett, former United States Ambassador to Italy, who lives near Baltimore. J. Fred Essary was present with Paul Patterson, publisher of the Baltimore Sun.

Col. Edward Starling, the chief of the White House secret service, and Mrs. Starling occupied seats for the opening show.

Also Miss Rebecca Wellington in a green velvet wrap with a white fox collar; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Joyce, Mrs. Katherine Connor, stanch Democrat and national committeewoman from Kentucky, who thought the play was wonderful; William Rapley, Constance Dick and Frank Morse, whose forthcoming volume on the theater will have a preface by George M. Cohan, star of the show.

The center of lots of attention was George Kauffman, who with Moss Hart wrote the book. Katherine Dayton, who authored another Washington satire, "First Lady," and who came down from New York especially to see this performance, also shared the spotlight with them.

A big hit was registered by Mary Jane Walsh who made her stage debut singing "I'll Take and Take and Take," and who used to go to Trinity College in Washington. Her sister, Kathryn Walsh, who is serving as her manager, was there looking very stunning in black velvet with gardenia.

We also glimpsed, much to our surprise, Anson Phelps Stokes, jr., son of Canon and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes, who is in Baltimore for a few days from Columbus, Ohio, where he is now living.

* * * *

OTHERS WHO EXPECT to motor over for the show some time during the week are Mr. and Mrs. William P. McCracken, jr., who have tentative tickets for Thursday, and Commissioner George Allen, who will go with a party. Gov. Harry Nice of Maryland will be guest of honor at a dinner and theater party to be given tonight by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruzicka.

Mrs. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General, had a dinner engagement last evening, so did not go, but hopes to see the play later in the week. Mr. Cummings will return in a few days from White Sulphur Springs.

NO, THAT WASN'T Evie Robert in riding clothes at the Troika the other evening. The lady in britches was Miss Alice Tuckerman, who went to up there direct from the Inter-American Horse Show . . . Overalls and gingham dresses will be worn at the barn dance to be given on Friday evening at Normandie Farms. This will be a relief to some of the people who thought at first it was a costume party, and have been trying to figure out something more original than a gypsy outfit. Those in charge of the dance, which will be attended by about 150, include Rebecca Trucco, Florence Harris, Mrs. William T. Mann, Mrs. Isabella Gest and Fina Tudela,

Helen Coombs Becomes Bride Of B. F. Hickam

Miss Helen Theresa Coombs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade Hampton Coombs, of 1336 Thirty-first street, was married yesterday morning at 11 o'clock to Benjamin F. Hickam, of Waynesboro, Va., son of George F. Hickam, of Hamilton, Va., and the late Mrs. Hickam.

Bride's Sister Only Attendant

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Margaret E. Coombs, who wore a green velvet gown made like that of the bride, a hat to match and a corsage of tea roses. George Hickam served as his brother's best man.

To Make Home In Waynesboro

After a motor trip to Florida, Mr. Hickam and his bride will reside in Waynesboro, Va. For her going away costume the latter chose a three-piece wool suit shot with gold threads and made with a raccoon collar.

Mrs. Hickam attended Georgetown University, and Mr. Hickam went to the University of Virginia.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Miss Mary Platto, of Schenectady, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Graham, of Norfolk, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Van Devanter, of Hamilton, Va.

Dr. Hans Moser, Head of Prussian Mint, Visits Here

Dr. Hans Moser, of Berlin, director of the Prussian mint, came to Washington yesterday to make a brief visit at the German Embassy.

Shortly after his arrival he was guest of honor at a luncheon with the German Ambassador and Frau Dieckhoff as host and hostess to a small group, including Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Director of the United States Mint.

Rear Admiral Robert Witthoeft-Emden, naval attache of the German Embassy, arrived in New York yesterday on the Bremen after a vacation in his homeland and will come on to Washington today.

Wedding Is Set By Miss Eustis

Corcoran Descendant and G. T. Emmet, Jr., to Be Married Nov. 20.

Miss Anne Livingston Eustis, daughter of Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis, of Washington, has selected Saturday, November 20, as the date of her wedding to Grenville Temple Emmet, jr., of New York, son of Mrs. Emmet and the late Mr. Emmet, who was, until his death several weeks ago, United States Minister to Austria. Because of deep mourning in Mr Emmet's family, the wedding will be attended only by members of the two families and intimate friends, and the bride will have no attendants.

The ceremony will take place at the home of Mrs. Eustis at Twenty-eighth and Q streets in Georgetown. She has returned there after passing the fall at Otlands, her place near Middleburg.

Miss Eustis, whose family is one of the most distinguished in Washington, made her debut in 1933 and attended the Foxcroft School in Middleburg. She is the daughter of the late William Corcoran Eustis and is a niece of the late Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock, of Westbury, Long Island, and Aiken, S. C. On her father's side she is descended from W. W. Corcoran, Georgetown philanthropist who founded and endowed the Corcoran Gallery of Art.

Mr. Emmet, formerly a student at St. Paul's School and Harvard University, is a graduate of the Columbia Law School and is associated with the New York firm of Emmett, Marvin & Martin. His mother frequently visits Washington as the guest of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Rep. Edith Rogers Makes 'Business' Visit to Capital

In town and away again without finding time to call on any of her many friends, Representative Edith Nourse Rogers made one of her "strictly business" trips to the Capital yesterday.

Her purpose in coming was to appear before a meeting of the committee for reciprocity information in regard to the trade agreement with Czechoslovakia. Taking the floor as the first witness yesterday morning, she outlined a number of reasons why the current duty on boots, shoes and cotton should not be reduced but, if possible, increased. Mrs. Rogers has spent a good part of her vacation up in her home town, Lowell, Mass., where she has been ferreting out facts to strengthen her argument in this regard.

Mr., Mrs. Gebeaux Take Wedding Trip

Bride Is the Former Miss Ruth Watson.

After a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Francis Gebeaux, who were married on Saturday, will reside in Port Henry, N. Y., where the former is engaged in business. The bride is the former Miss Ruth Watson, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. E. O. Watson, and is a graduate of Greensboro College in Greensboro, N. C. Mr. Gebeaux, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Zeb Gebeaux, of Rouses Point, N. Y., was educated in that city and Plattsburg, N. Y.

The Rev. Ralph M. Sharpe performed the ceremony, which took place at noon in the home of the bride in Franklin Park, Va. An improvised altar was banked with green ferns and white chrysanthemums and lighted by white candles in silver candelaba.

Immediately after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served.

Mexican Envoy to Aid New Highway Opening

The Mexican Ambassador, Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, has left for Natchez, Miss., where he was invited by the Natchez Trade Association to assist at celebration Friday of opening of a new road to connect with the Pan American highway. He will return to Washington in a week.

Gen. Francisco Mujica, Secretary of Communications and Public Works of Mexico, also has been invited to attend the ceremonies.

Mrs. Robert P. Lamont Will Entertain Daughter, Grandson at Virginia Home

Family reunions are the order of the hour at the home in Virginia of Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, wife of the former Secretary of Commerce, who recently returned from a vacation abroad. Her daughter, Mrs. Charles Eskridge Saltzman, with her small son, Charles McKinley Saltzman, plans to arrive there from New York to spend the latter part of the week with her.

Mrs. Saltzman, formerly Miss Gertrude Lamont, was married to Lieut Saltzman, U. S. A., while her father was a member of the Hoover Cabinet. Her son, now 6 months old, is named for his paternal grandfather, Maj. Gen. Charles McKinley Saltzman, U. S. A., who, with his wife, Mrs. Saltzman, lives in Silver Spring, Md.

Mrs. Oliver Owen Kuhn Leases Maryland Home

Mrs. Oliver Owen Kuhn plans to make this strictly a "town winter" for she has leased her home in Alta Vista, Md., and has taken an apartment at 2325 Fifteenth street for the season.

Before settling in, however, she leaves today for Williamsburg, where she will make a short visit with her youngest daughter, Miss Frances Kuhn, who is a student at William and Mary. Her older

Of wide interest in Washington is the scheduled debut of Miss Anne Somerville Grosvenor, of New York, who attended Foxcroft School, in Middleburg, Va., before she entered Vassar last year.

Judge Gibson, of Tulsa, Urges Peace Sentiment

The Post Club Editor.

This is a time for women to do constructive thinking—they must contribute more substantially than ever before to anti-war sentiment, declared Judge Grace Elmore Gibson, of Tulsa, Okla., yesterday morning in an address before the opening meeting of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs at the Roosevelt Hotel, on "Woman's Part in the Game of War."

"Women know the cost of human life too well ever to consent again to having the bodies of their sons carelessly thrown in to fill up the gaps in human relationships," she said.

Judge Gibson, who was introduced by Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs and a life-long friend, traced the part women have taken in wars since ancient times. She described her talk as the unveiling of a mural depicting the roles they have played, following them through history—the Amazons, the Sabines, Helen of Troy, Lysistrata, Joan of Arc, the women who fought beside their husbands in the Revolutionary and Civil wars in this country, then Florence Nightingale, and, bringing it up to our own time, Edith Cavell.

Her picture was painted with such artistry that her audience wondered whether she would confine herself to a eulogy of women who had not only given consent to war but had led armies. As she brought it down to the present, she answered this question. "I am 100 per cent a pacifist," she said. "The last picture on the canvas is that representing the millions of women who played their part in the World War—you and I."

She quoted the statement of the then Secretary of War, who said the outcome of the war was as much in the hands of the women as in those of the armies; and the assertion of the Secretary of the Navy that unless women had raised their boys to fight, if necessary, the war could not be won. With these, she quoted the despairing cry of a young lieutenant as he lay wounded, that if wives and mothers and sisters of the men had not been willing to send them to war no commander could have made them go.

"Women are the oldest social factors which have been weighed and found "wanting," declared Judge Gibson. "We dare not think there is no issue which we must settle now. Wars do not happen in a day—they grow. No war has ever settled anything which could not have been better settled by the deliberations and intelligence of men.

"We women of one country should be too tender of those of another to let our sons and brothers kill and injure theirs. More constructive, vigorous thinking on the subject is demanded of women today than in any other age. Throughout history we have played a dramatic part in war; it is now our part to restrain destruction."

Mrs. Lawson, preceding her introduction of Judge Gibson, was introduced to the federation members by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, a director of the General Federation. Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, president of the District, presided at both morning and afternoon sessions. Music at the close of the morning session was a group of solos by Mrs. Delphine Walsh, soprano and librarian of the Rubinstein Club, accompanied by Mrs. Constance Truesdell, president of the Rubinstein Club, which is a member of the federation.

Morley, Post Editor, Says Paper Is Mirror of Community.

A newspaper program with a deadline—15 minutes plus questions for each speaker—was presented last night as the first of a series on "Our Town's Business" being sponsored by the Washington Business and Professional Women's Club. It was a dinner meeting at the Powhatan Hotel, with Miss Nina Kinsella, the president, presiding. Mrs. Stella LaRoux, chairman of the publicity committee, who was in charge of the program, introduced the speakers: Felix Morley, editor of The Washington Post; Col. Leroy W. Herron, advertising manager of the Star; John T. O'Rouke, managing editor of the News; and Miss Ruth Jones, society editor of the Herald.

"The newspaper is the mirror of the community it serves," Mr. Morley told his audience. "The paper, as we know it today, is the direct result of mass production on the one hand and mass education on the other. These must improve to make possible the ideal newspaper for which many editors are striving.

"A hundred years ago, the old broad sheet carried little advertising and little news," he pointed out, "but it had much to say in comment on affairs of the day. Now the situation is reversed; the newspaper has a great deal to tell but less to say. There is, however, a definite place for well-informed, sincere opinion and it is inevitable that the papers of the future consider whether they have something to say—what they have to give as well as how they are giving it."

The editorial page has even greater importance in Washington than in the normal city, said Mr. Morley, because it is a community of disenfranchised residents, not closely integrated, and offers the principal means of focusing attention on matters of public concern. Whatever shortcomings the newspaper may have, he added, they may be traced in the final analysis to the public, because if there is sufficient desire to correct them an expressed public sentiment can do it.

Col. Herron talked on advertising, its tremendous volume and its influence on the buying public. He included in his discussion interesting figures on newspaper circulation in Washington. There are over 550,000 papers sold in the city daily, he declared.

Mr. O'Rouke described the mechanics of distributing the paper from its point of publication to the reader, and Miss Jones, who talked in place of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Times-Herald, who had been announced as a speaker, stressed the newspaper's effort to be of service to the community.

Col Herron not only talked, but also volunteered a song earlier in the evening, which his audience enjoyed.

Among the guests last night was Mrs. Arno Roach, the former Miss Ruth Robinson, immediate past president of the club. She and Mr. Roach have just returned from their wedding trip to Bermuda and leave today for Columbus, Chicago and then their final destination, Kansas City, where they will reside.

Miss Earlene White, a member of the local club and president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, and Judge Lucy Somerville Howorth, national chairman of program and also a member of the Washington group, were both at the head table. Also seated there were Miss Marjorie Webster, who led the community singing during the dinner, and her guest, Miss Marjorie Dunham, of the staff of her school; Miss Alice Haggatt and Miss Anna Mae Cowan.

THE LITERARY ROUNDUP party given the other day by the Professional Writers Club of the Y. W. C. A. brought out some original book-title costumes. Mrs. Zella Boteler, who won first prize for the cleverest idea, simply had the name of the club president, Myrta Ethel Cawood, on a card which she wore on one shoulder of her velvet dress. The name should have been easy enough for all the club members to identify—It represented "Our Mutual Friend" by Charles Dickens.

Polly Barber and Irene Allers, who arrived at the party arm in arm, carried out the title, "We Are Not Alone." Dr. Mary R. Fleming, depicting "Sugar in the Air," held a rod from which lumps of sugar were suspended, and Mrs. Winifred Houghton wore as part of her costume a sheet torn from a calendar for the title "Three Weeks."

Marguerite Merigold, who is president of the D. C. Branch of the League of American Pen Women, as well as a member of the Professional Writers Club, was dressed to represent "Rich Land, Poor Land," by Stuart Chase. Pictures carrying out the idea were sewed on either side of her brown frock, and a pheasant hat with a grasshopper ornament and a necklace whose pendant was a small flower pot with a profusion of blooms on one side and only a dead piece of ivy on the other, completed the costume.

SEVERAL of the State societies are planning parties this Saturday. The New York Society, of which James E. Black is president, will have a dance at the Shoreham from 10 to 1 o'clock, with all the Halloween trimmings.

The Florida Society will open its season with an informal dance at the Raleigh, between the same hours in honor of Coach Josh Cody and the "Fighting 'Gator" football team. It will be a follow-up fete in connection with the Florida-Maryland game in the afternoon at College Park, Md., which will bring out a large and enthusiastic delegation of Florida rooters. There will be "Florida" buses leaving the Carroll Arms Hotel at intervals after 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon and returning following the game. Dan P. Mularkey is president of the Florida Society this year; Sam E. Cobb, secretary, and Marie A. Cone, chairman of the membership committee. Arno (Jiggs) Loesner, assistant secretary to Senator Andrews, is chairman of the football committee.

The Maryland Society will entertain with its first dance of the season Friday night at the Kennedy-Warren.

Mrs. William A. Becker, President General, Announces Award to Be Given Annually to Destroyer With Highest Score in Contests.

Mrs. William A. Becker, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who is at national headquarters here for the conference of State regents and the meeting of the national board this morning, has announced a new award to the Navy for competition in anti-aircraft gunnery. The trophy will be a bronze plaque, showing an anti-aircraft gun crew in action against a squadron of hostile planes, and will be awarded yearly to the United States destroyer making the highest score in anti-aircraft gunnery. It is the fifth trophy of its kind given the Navy by the D. A. R.

Mrs. Becker and 40 State regents are in the Capital for a national assembly and the session of the national executive board which will convene this morning in the board room at Memorial Continental Hall.

"I'll bet you $1," said Senator Herring to Senator Pepper of someone one day, "that I can guess what color socks Senator Ham Lewis is wearing today."

* * * *

* * * *

After losing the same bet three days in a row, Senator Pepper finally framed it with Senator Lewis to wear green socks with a red tie, jockeyed the wager up to $5, and ended $2 ahead of the game.

"—humoring Napoleon."

Jim Farley, of course has never been quite so harsh with the economic royalists as some of his conferes in the Government.

* * * *

So it seems a little unkind—if it is true—that some of the economic royalists whom he has invited to sit on the board of his automobile company (when and if he becomes its president) have crisply declined to serve.

* * * *

Cavalry officers around Washington are chortling because mounted soldiers licked the tar out of mechanized cavalry in a sham battle somewhere . . . Must have lured 'em off the paved roads.

* * * *

Maybe England's diplomatic policy isn't so pussyfoot after all; maybe they're merely treating the war lords like lunatics who must temporarily be humored. (So says a slightly-baffled Briton of the Washington colony.)

* * * *

They seem to have phones at the Raleigh's Pall-Mall night club, which some of the more frivolous customers think they can use to phone the pretty blonde across the room. . . .

* * * *

And the other night a giddy pacifist, hearing the Jap Ambassador was in the room, wanted to phone his table and give him a piece of his mind . . . They wouldn't connect him, so the pacifist just walked past and breathed flu germs at him.

"You know, Dad," said the lad, "the new little sister looks exactly like you."

Gene registered appropriate surprise.

* * * *

He revealed with a touch of genuine philatelic pride that he owns blocks of four of both the Nicaraguan hostile gestures in Central America.

It was almost enough to make everyone forget Jimmy's new responsibilities.

And the President's keen interest in journalism reminds me that another Roosevelt once went from the White House to an editorship of Outlook Magazine—remember Outlook? . . . It's still easier to be a critic than an editor.

Post Staff Photos—McCoy.

Left—The staircase, the simplicity of which is reflected in the mirror at the rear which belonged to the home's original owners, four maiden sisters of the Worthington family of Alexandria. Center—Exterior view of the house, facing east (upper) and the entrance to the Civil War ammunition dump (lower), reminder that the property is included in the site of Fort Williams. Right—The antique, four poster maple bed that an ancestor of Mrs. David Blackwell Smith, wife of the home's present owner, took on a flatboat from Virginia down the Ohio to Missouri as a part of her bridal dower.

Choosing a remodeled Victorian homestead perched on historic Seminary Hill, high above the Potomac, Justice and Mrs. Hugo L. Black have leased for seven months the residence of Mr. and Mrs. David Blackwell Smith, on secluded Quaker lane, 2 miles west of Alexandria.

Expected to move into their new home about November 10, Justice and Mrs. Black will be living a scant half-mile from Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Durr, in whose house they have been guests since their return from Europe a few weeks ago. Mrs. Durr is Mrs. Black's sister.

Can See River.

The 11-room building which will be Justice Black's residence during his first term as associate justice of the Supreme Court is situated on a 1-acre tract cut from the old Worthington estate on Seminary Hill, dominating Alexandria and the surrounding Virginia countryside.

To the east through the trees the justice will look out on the Potomac; to the west he will command an unhampered view of picturesque Fairfax County.

Although the house itself dates only from the post-Civil War period, the ground it stands on is replete with history. The property was included in the site of Fort Williams, now almost disappeared except for an underground amunition dump long overgrown with trees and shrubs. A Civil War trench runs across the lot; and Clarens, the original Worthington mansion, which stands nearby, was used during the war as a hospital.

Named Cranford after a famous novel of the period, the Black house was built about 60 years ago for four maiden sisters of the Worthington family, two of whom now live in Alexandria.

Porch Has Been Added.

Mrs. Smith, the present owner, bought the place two years ago: "A for sale sign was put out at 2 in the afternoon; I passed it at 5, and I bought the house at 10 the next morning." Erected on one corner of the lot, the entire building was moved about 50 feet on rollers a year ago, so that its front door centers on the towering Masonic Memorial.

The entire appearance of the Victorian building has been transformed by the addition of a porch on one end and a two-story extension on the other. A layer of brick, taken from an old Alexandria house wrecked last year, now covers the original clapboards, so that the residence appears in a modified Georgian style.

Two small windows flanking the neat white front door were copied by Raymond Shull, Alexandria architect-builder, from the house at Bardstown, Ky., supposedly the inspiration of Stephen Foster's "Old Kentucky Home."

Devoting her attention to the interior, Mrs. Smith has managed to make the newest parts of the building look older than the original. The attractive dining room, vintage 1936, is prematurely old by two centuries, due largely to the arched window frames from old Alexandria and the eighteenth century fireplace from the house of the first bishop of North Carolina at Littleton.

Six Bedrooms in House.

The only other sizable room on the ground floor is the living room, which boasts a 200-year-old fireplace from Fauquier County, Va. The second floor contains bedrooms (there are six altogether), one of which is furnished with a huge handmade four-poster bed that was brought by a Virginia bride (an ancestor of Mrs. Smith) to her new home in Missouri as part of her dowry. The bed was floated down the Ohio on a flatboat, Mrs. Smith declared. She added that she did not know which room would be occupied by Mr. Black.

A small study above the dining-room, which will possibly be used by the new justice in writing his opinions, is Mrs. Smith's especial pride. "Everybody said it couldn't be done," she said with a smile. The room is partially paneled with old heart pine from North Carolina. Ancient hinges, knobs and locks are on the doors.

Antique prints, including a series of eight valuable English hunting and coaching scenes, adorn the walls of the dining and living rooms and the narrow staircase. Of especial interest, also, is a framed letter, written in 1778 at Valley Forge by Mr. Smith's great-grandfather, Col. Eben Powell, to his wife at Llanggollen, Fauquier County.

The general air of comfortable antiquity with which the house is filled does not, however, interfere with the latest domestic conveniences. The compact little kitchen and pantry contain everything from an electric refrigerator to an electric egg-beater. The house has an oil furnace and is air-conditioned, Mrs. Smith stated.

Abounding with trees, the beauty of the ground is further enhanced by ancient lilac bushes and by boxwood. Mrs. Smith said she intends to complete an old-fashioned rose garden on a part of the property where the panorama of Virginia can be seen to best advantage.

The only persons other than the Worthingtons to occupy the house, Mr. and Mrs. Smith live there with daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Litsey.

When she decided to rent the house for the winter, Mrs. Smith, who has another home in Warrenton, telephoned her friend Mrs. Durr and suggested that the Blacks might find it desirable. Negotiations were begun shortly after the associate justice and his wife had inspected the property. The new occupants will use the present furniture.

A stanch defender of the Blacks, Mrs. Smith believes they have been subjected to undue persecution. "Anyone who would want to live here must desire country, peace and quiet," Mrs. Smith firmly declared. "This is a nice, quiet home."

Wage Board Hears Living Cost Debate

Workers' Witness Contends $20 Weekly Is Minimum.

The District Minimum Wage Board conference last night debated how much the typical salesgirl should pay for her room, her board and for her reproductions of clothes designed in Paris, where fashions are made.

The meeting more or less resolved into a duel between Dr. Paul Nystrom, Columbia University economist and marketing adviser for limited price stores, and Joseph W. Leverton, former Washington merchant and self-appointed champion of the salesgirls' cause.

Nystrom, appearing as a witness for the employers, augmented a brief he had previously submitted which attempted to show that the still undivulged public estimate of a minimum wage is too high.

Suggests $3 for Room.

He said that the results of a study made in Boston, Mass., show that $100 a year is a fair amount to set for a salesgirl's clothing expenditures. He figured the cost of a room at $3 a week and the cost of board $5.50 a week.

Leverton, who spoke uninvited at a previous meeting, came to this one with the sanction of the authorities. Said he:

"To be successful, a saleswoman must look the part. She must be dressed in keeping with the store she represents. She should be wearing the latest styles if she is trying to sell the latest styles. I think that $20 a week should be her minimum salary."

To bolster his case, Leverton declared that the merchants would make $110 profit on the $250 which the salesgirls estimate they must spend on clothes annually. According to his reasoning, this dropped the actual demands of the employes from $250 to $140.

Commenting on Nystrom's room-rent estimate of $3 a week, Leverton said: "We think that the girls should have a living wage, not just an existence."

The middle-of-the-road course in the controversy was taken by another professor, Dr. William M. Leiserson, now a member of the National Mediation Board and an arbiter in labor disputes since 1919.

Compromise Suggested.

He expressed the belief that a fair wage would be neither the employer's estimate of $14.50 a week nor the employe's figure of $21.50.

"If you fix it right," he said, "it will be at neither extreme. I'd say that about an $18 a week wage is fair."

Pointing out that he was appearing as a witness for the public and was not taking sides in the matter, Leiserson declared that if the conference doesn't decide on a "fair" minimum wage it is "'elling the employes that law is no substitute for militant unionism."

He urged the conference not to pay too much attention to statistics, observing that while it is easy for experts to tell people how to arrange their budgets perfectly, those budgets may be quickly upset by unforeseen emergencies, such as medical operations.

J. Nelson Anderson, representative of the Federation of Business Men's Associations, recommended that the board not set the minimum wage "too high" so that women workers will not be displaced by men.

David I. Kaplan, business agent for the International Association of Machinists, termed the budget prepared by the employe group "reasonable and modest." "I don't know what item you can leave out if you're going to let a girl live decently," he said.

The wage for women retail store employes will be decided on at a closed meeting of the conference Friday night.

Budget Inquiry Delays District Taxation Study

His studies of the District's tangled tax problem, delayed because 1939 budget hearings opened yesterday, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen last night denounced the Budget Bureau procedure as "all unnecessary."

Called before Federal budget officers to explain the District's proposed $49,700,000 budget for the fiscal year 1939, Hazen and municipal department heads are expected to offer daily testimony for the next week or ten days.

Bill Being Drafted.

"There is no sense to these hearings," Hazen said, after attending the evening session. "We have covered all the ground before. District expenditures should be handled solely by the Commissioners, department heads and Congress. The Budget Bureau procedure is absolutely unnecessary."

He pointed out that Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal is now drafting a bil providing for a separate budget bureau within the District government. The proposed measure was sponsored by Representative Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, chairman of the House District Committee.

$5,000,000 Needed.

In addition to Hazen and Seal, two other District heads who were called to yesterday's hearings were Maj. Daniel Donovan, local auditor, and Engineer Commissioner Dan I. Sultan. The hearings were closed.

The hearings will postpone the Commissioners' efforts to develop a new $5,000,000 tax increase program which will be necessary to finance the proposed 1939 budget.

At the close of the current fiscal year the business privilege tax and temporary 25-cent rise in real estate levies will expire, and development of a new program is urgent, Hazen declared.

The Citizens' Tax Committee, headed by L. A. Carruthers, chairman of the fiscal affairs committee of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, has been holding closed hearings. It was indicated last night that open hearings may be held later.

Absence of its chairman, L. A. Carruthers, yesterday forced postponement to November 3 of a meeting of the committee on fiscal relations of the Federation of Citizens Associations scheduled for this week to discuss the local tax situation. Carruthers is attending sessions of the National Tax Association in Baltimore.

Business Tax Substitute Plans Asked of Georgetown Citizens

Jo V. Morgan Discusses Taxation Problems; Association Seeks Traffic Force Enlargement and Double Parking Rule Enforcement.

Jo V. Morgan, assistant District counsel in charge of the business privilege tax, discussed the District tax problem last night at the first fall meeting of the Georgetown Citizens Association at St. Johns' Parish Hall.

Morgan recommended that whatever action might be taken by the citizens group, they should offer some substitute plan to replace the tax on gross business receipts.

Resignation of John H. Small, president of the association for two years who returned last month to North Carolina, was accepted. Ernest I. Lewis, vice president, will continue as acting president until elections next month.

The executive committee was empowered to draft a resolution objecting to airplanes flying low over Georgetown, and take the problem up with the Bureau of Air Commerce.

Resolutions asking more strict enforcement of regulations against double parking in downtown, and urging enlargement of the traffic force, were adopted.

Metropolis View

The groups indorsed the campaign to provide free lunches for underprivileged children in the District schools.

Other officers elected include H. S. Mericle, vice president; Mrs. Richard J. Purcell, secretary, and Mrs. James A. Walden, treasurer.

Mrs. Purcell said that more than 160 persons have joined the association since the preliminary organization meeting on August 20. The association takes in the area bounded by Catholic University, Rhode Island avenue, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad tracks and North Capitol.

Society of Natives

A resolution favoring the naming of the new Anacostia bridge in honor of the late John Philip Sousa was adopted by members of the Society of Natives of the District last night at a meeting in the Washington Club. Sousa was a member of the society.

Following a report of J. C. Suter, chairman of the membership committee, four persons were accepted as members. They were Mrs. W. M. Simpson, Harry Dean, Mrs. Bessie M. Sweet and Dr. William T. Gill.

Trinidad Citizens

All five officers of Trinidad Citizens Association, headed by George J. Cleary as president, were re-elected at last night's meeting in Wheatley School.

Resolutions were adopted opposing any increase in the District budget, and objecting to the business privilege tax. The group went on record in favor of continued appointment of the Board of Education by the District Supreme Court.

Other officers re-elected are Harry Shilling and Mrs. L. M. Selby, vice presidents; Mrs. Max Kiber, secretary, and Martin G. Stecker, treasurer.

North Capitol Citizens

Full suffrage for the District was urged last night in a resolution adopted by more than 50 members of the North Capitol Citizens Association at McKinley High School.

The resolution favored representation in Congress and all privileges of State government.

No action was taken on the business privilege tax, although a majority of the group was opposed to the tax, according to E. B. Lawless, the president.

Mid-City Citizens

A move to ask restoration of the old Second Police Precinct with headquarters on Fifth street between M and N northwest was initiated last night by the Mid-City Citizens Association, when they asked their president, A. J. Driscoll, to head a committee for action on the matter.

Driscoll, re-elected last night for his twenty-third consecutive term, said he would appoint a committee and appear with them before the Federal Budget Bureau.

Other association officers named last night are Edith Grosvenor, vice president; M. E. Salsbury, secretary; M. T. Pimes, treasurer; George T. Bowman, financial secretary; F. B. Huffman and Nathan M. Lubar, delegates to the federation.

2 D. C. Schools Reopen After Boiler Repairs

Students at Douglass-Simmons elementary school and Terrell Junior High School were back in their classrooms yesterday following completion of repairs to the M street heating plant which serves the schools.

Forced to move from their unheated classrooms on October 11 because of delay in installing new boilers, pupils were assigned temporarily to other schools, some on a part-time basis.

Nearly 1,700 students were affected. Students from Terrell Junior High were sent to Armstrong Technical High, Dunbar High and Shaw Junior High.

Elementary school pupils were assigned part time to Jones School, John F. Cook School, Slater School and Banneker School.

Installation of heating equipment in several other schools was completed shortly after the opening of the school year.

Traffic Policeman Is Hit by Trolley At 14th and F Sts.

Homer H. Hartman, 51, traffic policeman whose booth at Fourteenth and F streets was removed October 12, was slightly injured last night at the corner where he has been stationed for more than 22 years.

Hartman, who has continued to help direct traffic since lights were installed at the intersection, was struck by a southbound street car when the switch split.

Hartman was dragged several feet as the car swung around. He suffered an injury to his ankle. His ankle was taped at Emergency Hospital and Hartman was released.

Hartman was injured in 1935 when a car crashed into his old traffic stand. At that time he suffered injuries to his back and chest.

Founders' Day Banquet.

Plans for a founders' day banquet December 10 were made at a meeting of the Pi Kappa Phi Alumni Chapter of Washington at the home of Al Reichman, 7425 Fifteenth street northwest. Phil Aglesworth presided.

Plan for New Brightwood Bank Outlined at Meeting by Myer

Druggist Reports 40%, $50,000, of Shares Already Subscrbied; Deposit Insurnace to Be Given to Institution's Accounts.

An enthusiastic meeting of Brightwood business and professional men last night heard Robert I. Myers, druggist at 5916 Georgia avenue northwest, explain progress of plans for the proposed Northwest National Bank.

With several thousand dollars pledged last night by prospective purchasers of shares in the new bank, Myers stated that subscriptions had already reached 40 per cent of the proposed capital structure of $125,000.

U. S. Treasury officials have already approved plans which call for division of 5,000 shares valued at $25 each into $100,000 for capital, $20,000 for surplus capital and $5,000 for undivided profit. When the tentative list of directors of the institution has been accepted by the Treasury, actual sale of stock can begin.

Myers said that the present pledges totaling $50,000 had been secured without intensive solicitation and that organizers of the movement for a Brightwood bank anticipated no difficulty in selling the full 5,000 shares as soon as word from the Treasury permitted definite action.

Bank stock would not be assessable, and deposits up to $5,000 would be guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

A committee appointed last night to supervise sale of shares when the new bank's set up has gained Federal approval includes Myers, William R. de Lashmutt, insurance broker; Marcus Cohen, Brightwood manager of the Hechinger Co.; E. E. Adamson, plumber, and Samuel Eig, liquor dealer.

Speakers at last night's meeting stressed the fact that the proposed Northwest National Bank would have no connection with the former Bank of Brightwood, in receivership since 1932. The new institution would purchase from the receivership the old Bank of Brightwood Building, 5913 Georgia avenue northwest, but would operate with new capital and under new officers.

Myers emphasized the opportunities open to a bank in the Brightwood district, an area of 65,000 inhabitants without banking facilities for five years. Citing branch post-office receipts and other indices of business expansion in the Sixth Precinct, an area bounded by the District line, Blair road, Buchanan street and Rock Creek Park, he pointed out that Brightwood has still realized less than half its possibilities as a residential region.

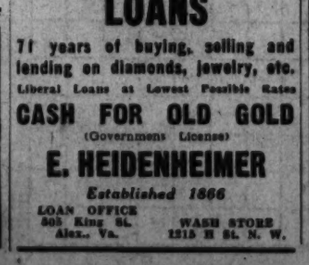
Milton R. Vollmer, secretary of the Georgia Avenue Business Mens Association, declared last night, "I have great faith in the project of a bank for this community."

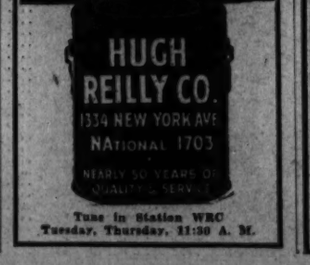
Another community leader present at last night's meeting was Elmer Johnson, financial secretary of the Brightwood Citizens Association, who said his group had been actively interested in plans for the new bank and were favorably impressed with progress made to date.

4 Men Arrested In Numbers Raid

Ninth Precinct police conducted a numbers "raid" from a squad car in the 400 block of Fourth street northwest yesterday, forcing an automobile to the curb, arresting four men and seizing $500 in cash and $2,000 worth of alleged numbers slips.

Sergt. W. T. Murphy and Privates J. E. Baker and Henry Rinke made the "raid" after watching the operations of the car for several weeks, they said.





Labor to Trade Peace Terms Without Delay

in conference tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of taking up the general dispute existing between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L.

"Both parties found that they needed certain information in order to advance discussions in the conferences and it is expected that information will be available by tomorrow morning. It is hoped that after the informatoin is obtained the representatives of each of the groups will be prepared to submit proposals setting forth a basis for negotiations looking to a settlement of the controversy between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L."

New Unions Investigated.

Murray said the information sought dealt largely with new A. F. L. unions and 31 new C. I. O. groups affiliated since the nine original C. I. O. unions split from the Federation.

Thus it was revealed that the conferees already had started giving consideration to what has been expected to prove one of the most complex problems of the projected peace-making, what to do about the unions operated by each national organization in fields in which there are unions of the rival set-up.

Into this problem would fall the question of the unions of Government employes. The federation's American Federation of Government Employes has been in existence for years. Seven expelled locals of the A. F. G. E. last summer were taken into the C. I. O., helping to form the nucleus of the C. I. O.'s new United Federal Workers of America. The rival organizations are competing today for supremacy in the Government service. Bitter words have been hurled back and forth. Whether the present peace parley can reconcile such groups, and numerous rival unions similarly competing in other fields looms as an outstanding problem to be solved.

Even after the question of the relationship between craft and industrial unions within any merged national organization is settled this problem will remain.

Predictions Upset.

Yesterday's agreement upset calculations of observers. When the C. I. O., meeting at Atlantic City early in the month, wired the A. F. of L., offering a unity meeting, it proposed 100 delegates from each side. The A. F. of L. insisted that its standing committee of three, named two years ago to discuss peace whenever the C. I. O. leaders were willing, was ample to represent the A. F. of L. Then the C. I. O. notified the federation it had appointed a ten-man committee "to meet with a committee from the A. F. of L. to determine the number of representatives for each organization to attend the proposed conference." It suggested "that this preliminary meeting be held in Washington during the week of October 25."

The A. F. of L., through President William Green, replied agreeing to the meeting, but insisting that the federation still would be represented by its three-man group. It agreed, however, that the A. F. of L. group could be enlarged if necessary. These were the groups who entered the conference room yesterday—the ten selected by the C. I. O. at Atlantic City and the three from the federation.

There were strong indications last night that the A. F. of L. is willing to enlarge the conference later on, when the parley gets down to the question of merging or settling the jurisdiction of individual unions. One source indicated that while the permanent committees might not be increased, officers of the individual unions affected probably could be brought into the sessions while the fate of their own unions was being settled.

"There is no issue or dispute over the size of the conference," Murray said. "It was decided that the present group shall continue with the main negotiations."

"Will the conference be larger later on?" a reporter asked.

"There is no understanding on that," Harrison interjected. "There can only be speculation on that."

Green has argued against a large conference. In his reply to the C. I. O proposal for 100 conferees from each side, he wired:

"We know every substantial union in the C. I. O. is ably experienced in negotiating agreements with employers.

"They know as we do that large . . . groups are employed to carry on conflicts. Small groups are employed to negotiate peace, understanding, agreement and co-operation. Mass conferences lead to expressions of bitterness and hatred and not to words of friendly counsel and co-operative understanding."

Leaders Keep in Touch.

Green and Lewis, though both remained away from the Willard Hotel, where the delegations met, were kept in close touch with developments.

At the close of the day's sesions, the C. I. O. group went to Lewis' offices and conferred with him there. Also to the Lewis headquarters went James F. Dewey, leading conciliation expert of the Department of Labor, though he said his mission was not connected with the peace parley. Nevertheless, it was recalled that Dewey had been present at the recent national convention of the federation at Danver, and his presence there was one of the causes for reports that the National Administration had interested itself in the reunion project, and was exerting efforts to bring about a settlement. These reports never were confirmed, but it is well known that President Roosevelt and others in the Government are extremely eager that the labor civil war be brought to a speedy close.

The A. F. of L. delegates went to the Federation Building after leaving the Willard, but did not see Green. They were reported to be assembling data that will be submitted to the joint conference today.

Leaders of both factions had said as they entered the conference room yesterday morning that they were beginning the much-sought meeting "with open minds." They declared they were prepared to study any practical suggestion for reunion.

At the noon recess, they reported they had spent the morning "talking about the procedure to be followed," but Harrison added:

"Maybe we will have some news this afternoon."

At the close of the day impressions of many of the conferees apparently were summed up by Michael Quill, president of the Transport Union Workers Union, of New York, and a C. I. O. delegate, who said:

"We should get somewhere. If sound judgment is used on both sides, we will. Everything was very peaceful today."

There remained last night, of course, the main and basic questions at issue to be solved:

Whether labor organization in the United States shall proceed on the A. F. of L.'s basis of one union in each craft, on the C. I. O. thesis that there should be one big union in each industry, or whether some form of organization can be devised providing for both forms.

What will be the relationship and the jurisdiction limitations or the disposal of competing unions in the same fields, backed at present by the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O.

Shall the reunited labor forces, so tremendously powerful potentially in politics, follow the Federation's creed of non-partisan action, helping its friends and fighting its enemies irrespective of party, or be committed to the Lewis-C. I. O. doctrine of independent political action through some such organization as labor's non-partisan league, with a political union of farm and labor an ultimate goal.

There are other obstacles to be overcome but these are the main ones. Settlement of them could readily dissolve the others, difficult though the latter may appear.

And despite the unexpected progress made yesterday the main problems have not been touched, it was made clear. The day's developments brought a shifting from the earlier skepticism of observers to an apparent feeling that much may be accomplished.

Both mighty labor armies, meanwhile, remained fully prepared for a renewal of the war should the negotiations here fail.

Intensified membership drives were decreed and mapped in detail at the Denver and Atlantic City meetings of the two forces this month. Relentless onflict, with its widespread effect on the Nation's political life awaits if the hotel-room parley here breaks down. "Raiding" of each other's unions, a never-failing source of hatred, may be expected as the giant organizations strive for supremacy.

The Federation has served notice on all in politics that it will fight any who assist the C. I. O. In this event Lewis army undoubtedly would retaliate, and the powerful voting strength of labor would continue to be dissipated through division.

"I thought he was going to kill mother," explained 15-year-old Gladys Breitfuller (left), when she admitted to police that she had stabbed her father, Charles Breitfuller (right), who was quarreling with her mother. Questioned by detectives, Mrs. Breitfuller said, "I feel my daughter saved my life."

Girl of 15 Stabs Father to Death To Save Mother

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—A slight, blonde, 15-year-old schoolgirl explained she had stabbed her father to death today because "I thought he was going to kill mother," Queens County District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan said. Sobbing, she was committed to the Children's Society Shelter in Jamaica under charges of juvenile delinquency.

Charles Breitfeller, 36, an automobile salesman, died shortly after the daughter, Gladys, twice plunged a 7-inch carving knife into him at their home in Hollis, Long Island, to defend her mother from attack, Sullivan related.

Detective Lieut. Thomas Feeney said the mother, Minnie, told him "it was a case of our lives or his. It was all we could do." Mrs. Breitfeller said her husband had been drinking.

Picturesque Sidney Hillman originally from Lithuania, commander of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and leader in the field for C. I. O.'s campaigns to organize the textile and department store workers, chatted gaily with his comrades.

Homer Martin, leader of the gigantic automobile tie-ups, who stirred up a hornets' nest with his sit-down strikers, was friendliest of all.

Adjoining their conference chamber were two smaller caucus rooms, one reserved for C. I. O., one for A. F. of L. And just outside the suite two rooms had been set aside for the press. There, telephone workers had hastily installed close to a dozen telephones, over which there poured, as the conference progressed, story after story to be carried by wire services across the Nation.

It was on a historic site that the history-making conference was opened. There on the Willard corner had been enacted scenes prominent in the Nation's history.

Gen. Lafayette was a guest at the old hotel there on a visit to America long after the Revolution.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe wrote the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" there in 1861, after she had watched a review of Union troops near the city.

Abraham Lincoln, facing threats, slipped into a side door of the old hotel on the corner for a night of close-guarded attempted rest before his first inauguration.

Presidents Taylor, Fillmore, Buchanan, Grant, Taft, Wilson, Coolidge and Harding have lived or been guests in hotels that have stood on the site.

apparently is not yet a safe drug for pregnant women. Experiments on anima'' led the hospital to state that "it appeared the use of this drug was open to criticism if used in the pregnant woman not only from the standpoint of its toxic effect on the mother but also on the fetus."

Deaths attributed officially to the elixir of sulfanilamide mounted today to 41, but a Government official predicted "every drop" of the medical preparation would be confiscated within 12 hours.

The American Medical Association, through Dr. Morris Fishbein, announced it had confirmed the wine-colored solution, distributed widely since September 1 in the Midwest and Southwest, was responsible for five additional deaths: At Madisonville, Tex.; Carey, Miss.; Copley, Ohio; Clayton, Ala., and St. Louis, Mo.

Chief J. O. Clarke, of the central States division of the United States Food and Drug Administration, said Federal agents made rapid progress over the week-end seizing quantities of the elixir from drug store shelves, doctors' offices and private homes.

Student's Charge Of Drunken Orgies Stirs Staid Oxford

London, Oct. 25 (U.P.).—Students of Oxford University, both men and co-eds, rose up in chorus of wrath tonight against the published chrages of one of their fellow students that the place is a hot-bed of "drunken orgies and indulgencies."

Keith Briant, editor last year of the undergraduate newspaper Isis, made the allegations in his new book "Oxford Limited," the reviews of which shocked parents over the breakfast table today.

Briant asserted, among other things, that one girl student out of five "experiments with sex" during her four years at one of the four women's colleges of Oxford. The ratio for men students he said, is considerably higher—about one out of three.

French Seize 4 Arab Leaders To Stop Revolt

By the Associated Press.

Casablanca, French Morocco, Oct. 25.—French authorities, acting swiftly to suppress a resurgent Arab nationalist movement, tonight arrested four leaders of the Nationalist Party, including its chief, Allal El Fassi.

Colonial troops at Fez—important city, considered the seat of the movement against French administration—were ordered to be ready for any emergency that might follow the arrests.

French officials warned the native population to remain calm, and said that if any disturbances occurred troops would occupy Fez, Rabat, the capital, and other cities.

On Saturday the troops put down a riot of 1,000 Arabs at Khemisset. The incident culminated scattered disorders which have grown out of the increased activity of nationalist leaders. Leaders at Khemisset were quickly given stern prison sentences.

El Fassi, together with Omar Abdel Zellil and Ahmed Mekouar, was taken into custody at Fez. The fourth nationalist, Mohammed Liazid was arrested at Rabat.

Resident-General Auguste Nogues, who ordered the arrests, said he acted with the full accord of the Sultan of Morocco, Sidi Mohammed, after "new and decisive proof that the Nationalist Party was organizing an uprising among the population" had been uncovered.

The investigation of the Khemisset disorders was reported to have disclosed the extent of the nationalist movement and connections with Arab movements in Syria, Palestine and Egypt.

thus considerably enlarging the field of probable usefulness.

Dr. Lawrence declared that, because of the possibilities of this new kind of treatment, a new laboratory is being built at the University of California for disease diagnosis and treatment and studies of the biological effect of the substances and the radiations which create them. It will contain the most powerful machine ever devised for the attack on disease—a cyclotron weighing 220 tons and creating energies up to 20,000,000 volts.

Similar work is now being started at the University of Rochester with Dr. Dubridge preparing synthetic radioactive elements for use in biological laboratories and medical research work.

As an example of one possible treatment, Dr. Lawrence declared that common table salt can be made radioactive and either swallowed or injected into the blood stream to combat the cancer-like disease leukemia, in which the white blood cells run wild.

Or, he added, radioactive phosphorus could be administered and, finding its way naturally into the bone marrow where the white cells are manufactured, serve to check them. The element used can be varied at will to produce the effect desired.

"Artificial radioactive substances are produceable in amounts equivalent in temporary radioactivity to several grams of radium," which now sells at about $25,000 per gram, Dr. Lawrence added. It will soon be possible to manufacture them on a commercial basis at comparatively low cost which will, in effect, knock the bottom out of present radium prices, he believes.

Third Mrs. Guggenheim Seeks Nevada Divorce

Reno, Nev., Oct. 25 (AP).—Harry Swanson, attorney for Elizabeth Eaton Guggenheim, third wife of Col. M. Robert Guggenheim, New York, said tonight she would file suit for divorce here tomorrow. Col. Guggenheim settled $1,000,000 each on his first and second wives when they won divorces. He married his third wife at Baltimore in May, 1928. He is the youngest son of the late Daniel Guggenheim, who left a $269,000,000 mining fortune.

France Rushes Warships After 3 'Pirate' Raids

and France abandoned the Minorca naval plan.

Word of the new French stand, threatening a break with Great Britain unless immediate action is taken, was sent to the British foreign office. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was informed France, although willing to drop her demand for an immediate "token" withdrawal of volunteers from both Spanish insurgents and loyalists, insisted upon settlement of the Moroccan and Balearic threats.

Soviet Also to Quit.

Unless this settlement can be quickly assured the French government was reported ready to denounce her "nonintervention" pledge and regain "full liberty of action." Just what form this "liberty of action" would take was not made clear.

At the same time, reports from Russia indicated the Soviet was ready to renounce formally her nonintervention pledge tomorrow on the ground that the "whole machinery has broken down and is camouflaging an entirely different situation."

Simultaneously an angry outburst in the Italian press asserted the Spanish loyalists have from 60,000 to 100,000 foreign mercenary troops and challenged France and Russia to reveal how many of their nationals are fighting in Spain.

The 27 members of the crew of the Oued Mellah were saved by the French destroyers Milan and Mars—units of the Anglo-French Mediterranean "antipiracy" patrol—but the ship sank rapidly in the high seas.

Black Crosses on Planes.

Capt. Jean Duidiaeli, of the Oued Mellah, arriving at Port Vendren, said two bimotor hydroplanes painted gray with black crosses on their wings disregarded the French colors painted on his fore and aft decks and dropped several bombs. (The Spanish government embassy here said the black cross was the mark of the Spanish insurgent airforce.)

"It is impossible that the planes could have mistaken us for a Spanish ship," Capt. Duidiaeli said.

The government's communique tonight said:

"Following attacks in which two French boats have been the object, the government has urgently taken steps to assure the identity of the aggressors and will determine the measures to meet such acts. A warship already has been sent to the scene of the attack. The French government will take the steps necessary to assure protection of the Marseilles-Algiers airline."

The "strafing" of the Air-France Line mail base at Fernells was said to have been committed by a gray seaplane with black crosses on its fuselage.

The machine-gunning set fire to the French dispatch boat No. 91, and spread rapidly over the ship. No one was reported injured, however, in the attack, which occurred at 10:45 a. m.

U. S. Legislators Are Leaving Spain

Valencia, Spain, Oct. 25 (AP).—Representatives Jerry J. O'Connell, Montana Democrat, and John T. Bernard, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, departed for Barcelona tonight on their way back to the United States. In an interview with Premier Juan Negrin they expressed their sympathy for the Spanish cause.

Loyalists Check Drive to Split Aragon Front

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Oct. 25.—The insurgent drive to open a wedge between Catalonia and Valencia encountered stiff resistance today along the Aragon front in northeast Spain.

Frontier reports said the line extending more than 100 miles south from the French border to the Zaragoza sector remained virtually unchanged following bloody infantry battles near the Pyrenees and an artillery duel at Zuera, 15 miles north of Zaragoza.

Spanish government dispatches said three Italian bombers were shot down when they attempted to raid Barcelona.

Generalissimo Franco was reported moving heavy forces of Italian and Moroccan troops into Zaragoza Province after the conquest of northwestern Spain.

Insurgent headquarters at Salamanca published a telegram of "personal felicitations" from Premier Mussolini of Italy to Franco for the northern victory.

Beware The Cough
From a common cold
That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements common to many cough remedies, such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, and fluid extract of Licorice Root, but it also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect, and, most important of all, Beechwood Creosote, perfectly blended with all of these so that it will reach the source of the trouble from the inside. Creomulsion can be taken frequently and continuously by both adults and children with remarkable results.

Thousands of people, who really know their drugs, use Creomulsion in their own families, realizing that this excellent preparation aids nature to soothe the inflamed mucous membranes, to heal the irritated tissues, and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and they rank Creomulsion "tops" for coughs because you get a real dose of Creosote in Creomulsion, emulsified so that it is palatable, digestible, and active in going to the very seat of the trouble.

Creomulsion is generally found satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritation, especially those stubborn ones that start as just a common cold and hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to refund every cent of your money if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained from the very first bottle of Creomulsion. Don't worry through another sleepless night—use Creomulsion.

Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product, and the relief that you want. (Adv.)

Pitt's New Policy Just Guilty Conscience?

By Shirley Povich.

At the University of Pittsburgh they call it a "new statement of athletic policy" but that seems to be putting it mildly. To folks who have long had their suspicions, it smacks of a plea of guilty by a conscience-troubled outfit.

Over the week-end Pitt people let it be known that a program of athletic reform and strict amateurism would be the new policy of the Pittsburgh athletic director. After all these years, Pitt seems to have decided that its past policy has been something less than strictly amateur. Anyway, there apparently was no need for a statement.

POVICH

There will be no special grants to students solely because of athletic ability, the Pitt graduate manager has said, inferring that, perhaps in the past, a strapping 5-foot, 210-pound tackle got a teeny weeny bit of help from the Pittsburgh people.

* * * *

Only last season the University of Nebraska student paper demanded that the Cornhuskers sever all relations with Pittsburgh's "pro team." And there have always been cynics who have believed that Pitt's splendid football material each year was something else than a coincidence. The coal mine districts have always been a fertile field for football scouts, but I doubt if, as one guy said, the Pitt scouts actually wore miner's lamps on their hats during their scouting excursions.

* * * *

When George Marshall's Redskins represented Boston in the National Professional Football League, one of the Redskin stars was Rip Collins, former Pitt end. The Redskin coach that season—1932—was Lone Star Deitz, the Indian star of another era. Collins was fresh out of Pitt, playing his first season with the professionals, and Dietz did not like his attitude.

* * * *

"Hey, Collins, quit your loafing," Dietz told the former Pitt star in practice one day. "You've got to make better time getting down under those punts or that receiver'll run by you so fast you'll think you are tied. Either show a little life or get the hell off this ball team. This is a business, not a siesta!"

* * * *

"Aw right, coach," said Collins, "but don't get so hot about it. After all, don't forget," the Pitt star added, "I took a cut when I joined this league!"

Pitt's sudden attack of purity is not the first instance of a college suddenly mending its ways. Pennsylvania several years ago introduced its "Gates plan" that would coure al the evils of subsidization; Georgetown closed its doors to athletic scholarships, and Lafayette, once a power in college football, announced it was de-emphasizing the sport completely.

* * * *

But the trouble has always been that these reformed colleges usually begin to act up like reformed drunks, leaning so far backward in their attempts to keep the game pure and the demon evils out that they have made their own positions utterly unattractive and untenable.

* * * *

Why, down in the Southern Conference, the reformers even went so far in an effort to guard against even the tiniest bit of subsidization that it was feared at one time that only the sons of the rich, whose incomes were above suspicion, would be eligible to play the game.

* * * *

But Pitt fans, who must have their winning football teams, need not be terrifically alarmed. Because these reforms are rarely found workable. Penn couldn't stand its weekly beatings on the football field and threw up the sponge of purity. It's "Gates plan" became the "Gates ajar plan," and football players literally streamed into the Quaker school, which has since re-established its place in the football world.

* * * *

After Georgetown went pure, Coach Tommy Mills was forced to contact a slew of promising prep school stars, among them Wayne Millner, who later entered Notre

Russian Hits 'Assassin' at Will in Bout

Opening Fight Pleases Arena Fans; Steve Mamakos Wins.

By Jack Paulus.
Sports Editor of The Post.

Benny Leonard's protege, but hardly his prototype, a slim, fast-moving kid named Eddie Dunne, won an unanimous decision last night in the 10-round feature bout of the opening indoor show at Turner's Arena. His victim was perplexed Sailor Born, a product of tough East Atlanta.

The Sailor navigated with difficulty against a terrific left jab that Dunne kept poking into his face for two minutes of every round. The third round was largely taken up by some fancy footwork on the New Yorker's part, footwork that left Born spinning in the middle of the ring.

It was a good, fast fight. Dunne's four-inch advantage in reach, plus some excellent tutorage from that master boxer of them all, Benny Leonard, accounted for keeping the Dunne ship afloat. Especially after about two dozen torpedo rights hit Eddie amidship during the course of the brawl.

On The Post's score-sheet Dunne won 6 of the 10 rounds. A crowd of nearly 1,000 paid a $1,037 net to see last night's indoor inaugural.

Hobo Williams Loses.

Serge Prevost, a transplanted Russian whose "eight-round plan" worked according to the best in Marxist principles, was declared the winner over Charles (Hobo) Williams, the erstwhile "Alexandria Assassin," in an eight-round special preceding the big fight.

The vulgar boatman, as the near-capacity crowd well nicknamed the Russian, did a nice job of tearing down what vestiges of greatness the Hobo still carried since his fight with Champion Freddie Steele in the Variety Club show last summer. The Hobo looked like a bum and took a terrific tumble down the fistic ladder.

It was a thoroughly chastened "assassin" who wore his tattered gantlets into the ring. The red and purple tattooed snakes and dancing girls on the Hobo's arms glistened under the arena's Klieg lights—but Hobo didn't glisten. He did a complete fade-out, unable to decipher in his untutored mind the bobbing, weaving puzzle that was this Serge.

To the Russian's credit it must be always written that he tore down into just another prelim boy, the "Assassin" who drew $18,000 into Griffith Stadium last summer. Serge couldn't kayo the Hobo because the Hobo isn't the kind of a guy who goes down under anything less than the kick of a good-sized mine mule. Had Serge possessed even the remotest sign of a punch—Mr. Williams' exit as a fistic headliner would have come a lot sooner.

Bullock Beats Davis.

Billy Bullock, 134½, Washington slugger, established himself as one of Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn's "club fighters" for the coming season by taking a unanimous slambang decision from Willie Davis, 135¼, from New York.

The brawl was a crowd pleaser with Bullock buffeting his foe from pillar to post in Promoter Turner's purple-roped ring with apparent ease. Davis was a willing mixer and failed to faw down when Mr. Bullock thought he was just about to drop his man.

Mamakos unleased the same old attack that took him to the top of the District Golden Glove ranks. He offered a stunning body attack, during which he assailed his foe with everything but the ring posts. Baker sank in a leaden heap on the floor outside the ring. It took the resuscitation skill of several trainers, a commission physician and several others to bring him back. Mamakos weighed 150½; his foe, 168¼.

Watch this Mammakos boy, he's on the way.

In a fast four-round opener, Baby Face Hatcher, a copper-colored North Carolinian was given the unanimous nod over Vincent Bonavari, of Washington, in what ringsiders termed a "stunning upset." No one was upset except Mr. Bonavari. He weighed 138 to Baby Puss' 130.

12 Novice Battles To Open Tourney Of Golden Gloves

The fifth annual Golden Gloves Tournament, starting tomorrow night at Turner's Arena will open with 12 novice battles on the card. The novices weigh in and will be examined tonight at Knights of Columbus Hall between 6 and 8 p. m.

Among the neighborhood heroes in starting bouts are Mike Eslin, Jackie Miller and Donnie Bush in the 112-pound class, Leo Marcopulos, Joey Brown, Nick Cheri, Joey Thompson, Marion Campbell and Joe Marshall in the 126-pound class, Nick Latsios, Charles Morningstar, Ray Bayliss, Johnny Sciata, Julius Stommeli and Marshall Mullings in the 135-pound class.

Tomorrow's card starts at 8:30 p. m. Pairings will be made tonight.

McAvoy Retains Title.

Eastern and Roosevelt Teams Clash Today

By Jack Munhall.

Eastern High's fast-improving eleven will bid for undisputed possession of first place in the interhigh football series this afternoon, when Roosevelt is scheduled to invade Eastern stadium for a 3:30 o'clock game.

The Lincoln Parkers won sharing the topn otch with Tech, each having won two consecutive games, are expected to be the sole occupants oct the rarefied atmosphere before nightfall. Roosevelt, although it is conceded to have its best eleven in years, does not appear strong enough to pull an upset.

The best comparison that can be made on their records is offered through the medium of Wilson, which both Roosevelt and Eastern nave met and defeated. The Easterners beat the Presidents, 26-12, while the Riders were pressed in taking a 6-0 decision. Roosevelt rooters are confident of victory and point to Roosevelt's good showing against Central last week, when the latter experienced great difficulty winning 6-0. Also they cite the fact that the Riders are well rested because the regulars did not see action Saturday as George Washington High routed the second team, 58-0.

The Roosevelt line will cause plenty of trouble to Eastern's backs, Al Kilwell, Bill Kemp, Hal Speith and the rest. Joe Kolker, giant tackle; Eddie Vasvary, a clever guard, and Paul Dunbar and Ed Freund, ends, have played consistently good ball this season.

But Eastern's line is strong, too, as evidenced by the feat of holding Gonzaga scoreless for the first time this year when Eastern defeated

Redskins Lead Pros in Passing With 65 Complete

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 25.—With three teams vieing for the lead, there is every evidence that the National Footbal League will establish a new forward passing record this season. At the halfway mark the circuit is running 2 per cent ahead of last year's efficiency mark of 36 per cent, according to the statistics released today.

The Washington Redskins, featuring Sam Baugh, are in front with 65 completions in 148 attempts for 44 per cent. The Green Bay Packers and Chicago Cardinals are not far behind, however, with 43 and 42 per cent respectively. The aPckers have completed 50 out of 115, and the Cardinals 50 out of 119.

Terms of Contract Are Not Disclosed

Former Brooklyn Pilot Accepts Offer Over Long Distance Telephone From Home in Texas; Details Will Be Arranged Next Month.

Boston, Oct. 25.—The Boston Bees today named Casey Stengel, former manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, as their pilot for 1938, succeeding William B. McKechnie.

J. Robert Quinn, president of the Bees, telephoned Stengel at the latter's home in Omaha, Tex., and offered him the job.

Stengel accepted. No terms were announced, but Quinn indicated the question of salary and length of contract would be settled when Stengel came to Boston early next month.

Stengel was idle last summer, although under contract with the Dodgers, from whom he was reputed to have received more money for not managing the club than Burleigh Grimes, the team's pilot, did for finishing sixth.

Piloted Dodgers Three Years.

Stengel managed the Brooklyn Club three years, finishing sixth in 1934, fifth in '35 and seventh in '36 after a distinguished playing career with the New York Giants in the early 1920's.

McKechnie, who piloted the Bees to fifth place last year with mediorcre material, left Boston to go with the Cincinnati Reds at a substantial increase in salary.

It was the second time Quinn had signed Stengel as manager. In 1934, when Quinn was directing the Brooklyn Club, he closed a deal with Stengel after the Dodger management had decided to let out Manager Max Carey.

Quinn said he had been in doubt of signing Stengel for the Bees until he reached him on the telephone.

"I turned down Casey's request for the job the day after the World Series," he said, "explaining that I had two other in mind—Donie Bush, of Minneapolis, and Gabby Hartnett, of the Cubs.

"When I couldn't get either of them, I feared Casey might already have taken any one of five minor league offers he's had, including Kansas City."

But there wasn't any doubt as soon as the telephone connection was made.

Offer Quickly Accepted.

"Casey," asked Quinn, "do you want to come with us next year?"

"I'd be delighted to," came the metallic reply.

"Okay, you've got the job."

"I'm delighted. Thank you. We'll fool a lot of the boys."

Casey told Quinn, the latter said, he didn't know until today Bush had turned down the Boston job to remain with Minneapolis, and that he "didn't care whether 150 guys have turned it down."

Before calling Stengel, Quinn revealed that Hartnett and Bush had been the only two approached, that neither Babe Ruth nor Rabbit Maranville had applied for the post.

William Wrigley, he said, informed him that Hartnett was not available for any managerial job, and that the Cubs' catcher would have a job in the Cubs' organization whenever he gave up playing.

Quinn said he had gone over applications from Rogers Hornsby,

Jacobses Talk Of Early Bout For Schmeling

By the Associated Press.

The German heavyweight said he was scheduled to box Ben Foord in Hamburg, January 30, but was perfectly willing to come to this country to fight anytime during December.

Mike and Joe finally decided to submit the names of five fighters by cable to Schmeling. They are Nathan Mann, New Haven; Harry Thomas, Chicago; Al McCoy, Boston; Jimmy Adamick, Detroit, and Isadore Gastanaga, Spain.

Today's activities along the boxing front also saw Fred Windsor, San Francisco promoter, offer Bob Pastor $15,000, or 40 per cent of the receipts to fight Lou Nova, West Coast heavyweight, in San Francisco, November 29.

Meantime, Pastor has agreed to fight in Philadelphia, November 8, meeting an opponent yet to be named.

Finer Taste Triumphs

FOURTEEN states keep accurate records of every bottle of liquor sold within their boundaries—a gold mine of information for those interested in the trend of whiskey sales. The figures show, for instance, that—

1. Blended whiskies have consistently increased in sales since July, 1935.

2. The sale of Seagram's 5 and 7 Crown was greater over a period of 19 months than 79 other blended whiskies in the same price class put together.

Men are regaining their taste for finer whiskey—and are even glad to pay a premium to get it. Crowns are finer! Crowns taste better! Crowns completely satisfy!

THINK Before You DRINK Say Seagram's AND BE SURE!

Based on all available official figures from July, 1935, to March, 1937 (the latest figures available at time this study was made) issued by the Liquor Control Boards of 14 states: Pennsylvania, Michigan, Iowa, Ohio, Maine, Ohio, Utah, Montana, Oregon, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Washington, Wyoming. It includes the sales of all blended whiskies in the price class of Seagram's Crowns—ranging at present from 90¢ to $1.50 per pint.

Chance Ray Is Second and Aladdins Dream Takes the Show.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Laurel, Oct. 25.—Jockey A. Schmidl and Careful Miss, a 2-year-old filly owned by Watt Elliott, teamed to earn a surprise decision in the fifth race, outstanding on an ordinary Monday program. The daughter of Chatterdon, beaten off in her last start and the winner of only one other race this year, breezed to the finish line five lengths in advance of her nearest rival, Chance Ray. The photo gave Alladin's Dream third over Rouge et Noir.

Careful Miss paid $23.90 and ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1.47 3-5 over a good track. Clear skies helped lure a crowd of 8,000 to the track.

Careful Miss was nicely handled by Schmidl. He had her in front during the early running, but steadied her along when Chance Ray and Bright Light went to the top. Coming into the stretch, Schmidl guided Careful Miss out for racing room and stung her with the whip. She responded with speed to draw out to a commanding lead and was only galloping at the finish.

P. D. Cox's Acautaw, 7-year-old son of Trojan, found the dull track to his liking and added another Maryland victory to his long string in the 6-furlong sprint that opened the program. With Joe O'Malley doing the urging, Acautaw was up in the concluding strides to down Titian Kiddie by a head. Flying Orphan was third in the field of 11. Acautaw paid $11.20.

Great Haste lived up to his name in the second race, much to the joy of the favorite players. The son of Haste paid a $5.10 mutual while under the guidnace of Jackey Wayne Wright. Noble Boy made a noble effort, but could account for only second money ahead of Sachem. The latter ran a great race from a dull beginning.

Bertillon, in the blue and yellow of Mrs. Emil Denemark's stable, proved a $14.10 winner in the third race. Jockie Charlie Kurtsinger improved Bertillon's position steadily and the colt was going with good energy at the end. Fly Me set most of the pace and was second. Gold Color was third, despite trouble at the first turn of the mile and 70 yards contest.

Challenge Cup, a maiden from the barn of R. S. Clark, romped along in front of seven other 3-year-olds to win the fourth race. It was the first time the colt has been in the money in the eight starts of his turf career. An $18.90 mutuel was displayed. Maleman showed sudden improvement to be second, ahead of Shandon Farm's Aglow. The latter dwelt slightly at the break and made up a world of speed.

A pair of long shots scored in the sixth and seventh races. Airlap led most of the way to win a photo decision from Max B and paid $19.80. The finale went to Erins Sun, a half-miler in the field. A claim of foul was disallowed. The winner paid $38.30.

Dear Al:

War Admiral goes at Laurel. That's the big news item for today. With a mere 104 pounds, the petted star of the Glen Riddle Farm is scheduled to face the barrier with ten others. Only rain between now and post time will keep War Admiral from getting in action for the first time since he hurt his leg in New York. He was on the put his slip in the entry box. Despite the fact that the track has track this morning, breezing, and after the work, Trainer Conway taken care of him with a feather assignment, War Admiral will have to do a lot of running to beat such as Bottle Cap, Evergold, Aneroid, Threadneedle and others. Kurtsinger is on the scene to ride and War Admiral, which broke from the rail in winning both the Derby and the Preakness, will be on the outside this time. The race is at a mile and a sixteenth and, despite the fact that the purse is only $1,200, the race should draw the largest week-day crowd of the fall season in this State. War Admiral has worked well for more than a month and it is very probable that he will march postward as the favorite. It looks as though Walter O'Hara has given up on his battle for Narragansett racing this fall. Mrs. O'Hara's horses, with Trainer Bobby Curran in charge, arrived at Bowie this morning.

BILL.

First race—The King Ranch entry of Doggerel and Gulf Breeze is on the also eligible list, but either will be formidable if in action against this cheap field of maidens. Fickle Mood has shown some promise and may be close. I'm still waiting for Heraldic's real race. This could be the spot.

Second race—Only Son has been kidding around and gets weight off thanks to an apprentice allowance. I'm looking forward to a pay-off on this one. Royal Error and Jungo to lead the others to the wire.

Third race—Manda's Baby gets in with feather weight and may repeat that last to take this purse. Sylvia G. is better than those recent efforts and is dangerous. Prettylass for the show end.

Fourth race—Evening Tide may have too much foot for this group of excellent sprinters. I'm going to string along. Trickwick has speed and is dangerous. The Flanders entry of Victorious Ann and Jair is due respect.

Fifth race—I'm going to take Aneroid to win the feature. The son of The Porter is good again and when he is good he is good. That winning sprint last week put him on edge and I believe him capable of giving War Admiral 9 pounds. Bottle Cap downed War Admiral here last year, and that was a good race he ran last Saturday.

Sixth race—Kievson and Royal Blunder should battle it out for the chief money in this field. Both are fit as hands can make horses. Sun Apollo for the show end.

Seventh race—First Pigeon is moving up, but won his last despite much trouble and I'm going to try to chase him home. Sun Asia and Flagstone are the front runners and may speed each other into the ground.

Best bet—Aneroid.

War Admiral Faces Strong Field Today

Riddle Ace Will Carry Only 104 Pounds at Laurel.

Laurel, Md., Oct. 25 (AP).—After nearly five months' absence, unbeaten War Admiral returns to action tomorrow in quest of his sixth successive victory.

The 3-year-old champion from Samuel Riddle's stable, out of competition since injuring himself while winning the Belmont Stakes June 5, has been named for Laurel's Churchill Handicap, a mile and a sixteenth overnight event for 3-year-olds and upward.

Although the son of Man o' War has been asked to oppose several high class older horses, Trainer George Conway did a fine job in picking a spot for his ace insofar as weight is concerned. Under the conditions of the event, which call for 3-year-olds to carry 112 pounds, with an eight-pound allowance if they have not won $700 since October 1, War Admiral gets in with 104 pounds.

The impost is a mere feather compared with the 126 he carried to victory in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes. Two of his rivals, M. Vehon's Threadneedle and the Shandon Farm's Evergold, pick up 115 pounds each while J. A. Manfuso's Aneroid, apparently back in the form that carried him to a near-record breaking victory in the Suburban Handicap last spring, gets in with 2 less.

War Admiral breezed a half in :52 2-5 this morning. The track was deep and holding at the time.

Since "grabbing" himself at the start of the Belmont Stakes, War Admiral has grown a new hoof. He has been working out for nearly two months and, while his trials have not been sensational, they have indicated he is perfectly sound again. Upon his performance tomorrow depends whether he'll start in the $15,000 Washington Handicap Saturday.

A victory will not add much to War Admiral's winnings, however, for the race is worth only $1,200, with $850 going to the winner. Before his injury, the Admiral won $144,620 in five straight triumphs.

Phone Is Victor At Rockingham

Salem, N. H., Oct. 25 (AP).—A nose gave Milton Mason's Phone a victory in the feature race, for two-year-olds, today at Rockingham Park.

Edged at the wire was Miss A. Doris' Evening Time, second choice in the betting.

Phone, a 37 to 1 shot, moved out front in the stretch to win after Evening Time took the lead in the back stretch, but fell before the Mason entry's last minute drive.

Phone paid $76.40, $20 and $10.90. Heavily backed in the mutuels, Evening Time paid $5.10 and $3.50. Mary Senate brought suppers 4.40.

WATCH THIS MAN:—

NORTHWESTERN'S DON HEAP.
A Business Executive.

Northwestern University pins much football hope upon the shoulders of slender, blond Don Heap, triple-threat halfback who was too light to play the game in high school.

Coach Lynn Waldorf gives Heap the signal-calling job because he says Don has one of the best "football minds" he has ever encountered. The coach has only praise for this 170-pound young man whose ground-gaining ability and accurate ball-passing offset his lack of beef.

In his sophomore year, Heap gained a total of 672 yards in 125 attempts. Last year he made 481 yards in 85 starts, an average of 5.7 yards per carry.

Young Heap has figured in every one of Northwestern's gridiron victories of the past two years. Hiss ball carrying enabled the Wildcats to make their first victory over Notre Dame in 34 years. That was in 1935. Last fall he put the Wildcats in scoring distance for the one touchdown of the Northwestern-Minnesota game, the 1936 national champion Gophers' only defeat.

Don's accurate passing placed the Wildcats in position to score the winning touchdown against Ohio State last year. In the Iowa game he tossed a 45-yard pass to Cleo Diehl for a touchdown.

Slim finances kept Heap from college until three years after he graduated from high school. Meanwhile he had gotten a job in an Evanston book store as an office boy. He invested in the store, became the third largest stockholder, and, upon graduation next June, will move into an office marked "Don Heap, vice president."

He is attending the Northwestern School of Commerce, where his grades are usually "A's." This gives him the best scholastic record of any Northwestern gridder.

Mrs. Brundage Enters Semifinal Rounds; Beaver Dam Play.

The co-medalists, Mrs. J. A. Marr and Mrs. J. F. Gross, were upset victims at Columbia yesterday as the first round of match play in the women's club championship was under way. Mrs. E. M. Amick defeated Mrs. Marr on the nineteenth hole while Mrs. Gross was the final hole victim of Mrs. Merrill Lord.

Defending champion Mrs. H. M. Brundage won handily over Mrs. H. K. Cornwell, 5 and 3; while Mrs. H. A. Lacey completed the semi-final round with a 3 and 2 triumph over Mrs. A. C. Minnix.

First Flight.

Mrs. A. M. Amick defeated Mrs. J. A. Marr, 1 up, 19 holes; Mrs. H. M. Brundage defeated Mrs. H. K. Cornwell, 5 and 3; Mrs. R. A. Lacey defeated Mrs. A. C. Minnix, 3 and 2; Mrs. Merrill Lord defeated Mrs. J. F. Gross, 1 up.

Second Flight.

Mrs. A. S. Gardiner defeated Mrs. Hugh MacKenzie, 3 and 1; Mrs. W. B. Jarvis defeated Mrs. E. E. Krewson, 1 up; Miss Mary Minnix defeated Mrs. J. J. Darby, 3 and 2; Mrs. H. Stadler defeated Mrs. B. G. Simpich, 5 and 4.

Third Flight.

Mrs. H. P. Foley defeated Mrs. L. E. Hurley, 2 up; Mrs. McCord defeated Mrs. G. I. James, 3 and 2; Mrs. H. J. Kane defeated Mrs. W. C. Gelens, 1 up; Mrs. A. B. Chapman defeated Mrs. F. N. Towers, 3 and 2.

Fourth Flight.

Mrs. J. M. Rountree defeated Mrs. W. Myers, 3 and 2; Mrs. E. C. Gott defeated Mrs. C. Fisher, 3 and 2; Mrs. R. H. Bogley defeated Mrs. W. P. Barkduer, 3 and 2.

Fifth Flight.

Beaver Dam Play Today.

The Beaver Dam Invitation Tourney for the women golfers, the final event on the card, is scheduled today over the Landover course with post-entries expected to boost the field near the 125 mark.

The entries include the city's finest linkswomen, led by the District, Maryland and Middle Atlantic champions, Helen Dettweiler and Mrs. Betty Meckley.

Contestants are urged to bring their own caddies.

G. P. O. Bowlers Win; Crack Two Records

Cracking a pair of season's records, the G. P. O. bowlers, led by Clarence Purdy with high game of 163, led the Federal League with game and set of 629 and 1814 last night at Arcade Alleys. Astor Clark rolled high individual set, 390, for the F. B. I. team.

In the Navy Department League Gumb of Yards and Docks was high with 143 and Wright of the same team a 371 set. Yards and Docks took the team honors with 615 and 1731.

It May Be a Gag But Maybe Gus Could Use One

If Gus Welch wants a girl to kick points-after-touchdowns and field goals for his American University Gridmen its all right with the student council. It voted unanimous approval of the idea yesterday.

The resolution was introduced by Hal Toner, varsity quarterback, and supported by Staff Cassell, backfield coach; Emerson Bartlett, halfback, and Dudley Rogers, end. All decried the possibility of a lady field goal kicker being injured. The opinion seemed to be that it can't happen here.

Meanwhile Welch, who was in Charlottesville, Va. last night—apparently hiding out after losing to William and Mary Saturday, denied over the telephone that the idea was a publicity gag.

"I'm going to try it just as soon as our boys can score a touchdown," he said.

At the university applications have been received from several new candidates for the position. The lady originally designated for the task has not been identified, although she is supposed to be practicing daily for her first public appearance.

'Queer' Plays Getting to Be Habit With Yale

Clinton Frank's 'Pass' Has Boys Guessing After 9-0 Victory.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25 (AP).—Clint Frank, Yale's all-American back, found himself in the spotlight today, the leading man in a football play that threatens to become a new problem for rule makers and officials.

The play occurred late in the third quarter of the Yale-Cornell game here Saturday, which the Sons of Eli won, 9 to 0. With the ball on the loser's 28-yard line, fourth down and 10 yards to go, Frank faded back to the 40 and shot a long, high forward pass deep into Cornell's end zone without a single Yale player leaving the line of scrimmage.

The question today was whether the Eli's brilliant captain had deliberately grounded a forward pass to gain ground, which involves a technicality in the rules. The officials called the play a touchback and handed the ball to Cornell on its 20, an advance of 8 yards for Yale.

All inquiries concerning the play were handled by Head Coach Ducky Pond, of Yale, who said:

"So far as I know, Frank intended that his pass be completed for a touchdown."

There were those, however, who insisted the play had all the earmarks of a deliberately grounded pass, and termed it a "smart" play on Frank's part, if that was his intent.

They pointed out the circumstances that led to the play, the fact that no Yale player left the scrimmage line to attempt to complete the pass, and to an apparent technicality in the rule with emphasis on the interpretation of the word "loss."

CLINT FRANK.

It Worked and Yale Gained 8 Yards on the Exchange.

Frank's forward came as Yale was protecting a 3-to-0 margin, which it had gained early in the game on Dave Colwell's field goal. By heaving the ball over the end zone, the Elis' captain avoided chancing a pass interception or a blocked kick.

The rules of football provide that anyone who intentionally grounds a forward pass to save "LOSS" of yardage shall be penalized by the loss of a down for his team and the ball shall be put in play 15 yards back of the spot of the preceding down.

It was pointed out that there is nothing in the rules to penalize deliberate grounding of a pass to "GAIN" ground, with the emphasis on the word "gain." The fact is that Yale did gain 8 yards on the play.

The Yale team figured in an unusual play last year, in which Larry Kelley, the Blue's brilliant end and captain, made a "soccer" kick on a fumbled ball which led to Yale's 12-to-7 victory over Navy. Pond and Kelly insisted the play was "absolutely accidental."

The football rules committee, meeting last winter, changed the rules to handle such a situation in the future which became effective this fall.

U.S. Unlikely To Be Barred By Olympics

Correspondence Revealed on America's Stand Against Germans.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Oct. 25.—Although officials here and in Europe scouted the suggestion that the International Amateur Athletic Federation have planned any sort of punitive action against the Amateur Athletic Union because of the latter's anti-Nazi stand, an A. A. U. official revealed today there had been some correspondence on the subject.

Some time ago the federation wrote the A. A. U. inquiring why Germany was not included in the itinerary of its touring track and field teams last summer and asked that the A. A. U. change its attitude which banned visits Germany.

A reply was requested by October 18 in order that the I. A. A. F. could remove the matter from its agenda before the annual meeting in London next March.

Although the official did not say whether a reply had been sent, he indicated it had not, saying he doubted if anything could be done before the annual A. A. U. meeting in Boston November 13-15.

He also expressed doubt that the I. A. A. F. intended to take punitive action.

In Europe Bo Ekelund, of Sweden, secretary of the international body, and Gen. Giorgia Vaccaro, secretary of the Italian Olympic committee, both entered emphatic denials.

Ekelund said reports that he had suggested a ban against the A. A. U. at the suggestion of Italian sports officials was "perfectly ridiculous." Gen. Vaccaro termed them "absolutely false and fantastic."

Jeremiah T. Mahoney, A. A. U. president and leader of the anti-Nazi movement in the A. A. U. could not be reached for a statement today. Mahoney led a bitter fight to prevent United States participation in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin. He was defeated on this question, but later was elected A. A. U. President.

Guldahl Signed As Pro at Miami

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—Ralph Guldahl, United States open golf champion, has been signed to head the professional staff at the Miami-Biltmore Country Club at Miami for the 1937-38 winter season, local offices of the Florida year around club announced today.

D. C. Elevens Start Drills For Big Week

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Life for George Washington's gridmen seems to be one unending battle with the elements. Last week it was the Crimson Tide, and this week the Golden Hurricane of Tulsa will supply the opposition Friday night at Griffith Stadium.

The game ushers in a week of whirlwind collegiate football for District fans. Manhattan plays Georgetown Saturday afternoon at the stadium, while at nearby College Park Maryland will be entertaining Florida, a conference opponent.

Until 1934, when the Colonials accumulated 10 points to Tulsa's none, George Washington and victory over the Westerners were as incompatible as a cat and a canary. But in '34 the Hurricane wasted away to a mere breeze against the Colonials, and the following year they lost again, 3 to 0.

Trouble Brewing.

But this 1937 edition is reported to be blowing a fresh mess of trouble for the opposition, and will come to town a favorite over its host. Thus far the Hurricane has swept through Oklahoma, 19 to 7; Central Teacher, 42 to 0, and Oklahoma A. & M., 27 to 0, while losing to Texas Christian, 13 to 20, and battling Rice to a scoreless tie.

This will be Tulsa's first appearance here under its new coach, Vic Hurt, who succeeded Gus Henderson. End coach on the squad is George Vlk, who used to be Dutch Bergman's assistant at Catholic U. It is reliably reported the Big Wind is pointing for this game—which is what Messrs. Pixlee, Reinhart and Kotch were afraid of.

Georgetown, apparently obtaining a new lease on its football life, will cross with an old an honored foe in "Chick" Meehan and his Manhattan eleven. The Jaspers ran into a couple of bad accidents the last two times out, losing to Kentucky and Villanova, but their victories over St. Bonaventure and Michigan State reveal the team's actual potentialities. A Meehan team is always well coached, full of tricks. It always put on a good show, and it prefers nothing better than a good, stiff battle. And that's what it is in for Saturday.

Maryland, coasting serenely along on a three-game winning streak and with a highly profitable 13-0 victory over Syracuse under its belt, meets a formidable rival in Florida. The 'Gators dropped a heart-breaking 14-13 decision to Mississippi State last Saturday. They also were nosed out by Temple, 7-6, and lost to L. S. U., but Florida has a couple of old scores to settle with Frank Dobson's men, and Saturday's probably just as good as any other time to do it.

Casey Stengel

May Fool Many People.

"He may have the reputation of a clown, but I've worked with him for two years and I know he can be as serious as any one can be and he's loyal.

"Don't sell Stengel short. He's likely to fool a lot of people, and if he wins next summer . . .

"Casey will make the players hustle, and he's a good man with mixing up his plays. He won't always holler for a hit-and-run play or a bunt, and he's not afraid to try something new.

"I've wanted somebody who knows the National League, and while Tony Lazzeri would make a pretty good manager in a couple of years, he doesn't know our league."

Stengel, who is 56 and managed the Toledo Mudhens after his major league playing days, said he had seen the Bees play their best four games last year—all of which they lost, but watched them later in the season.

"I don't think they were lucky to finish fifth and I believe we can do it again, if not finish higher," he declared.

Ingram Set For Regular Grid Duty

Star of Navy's Eleven Shows Good Form in Practice.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 25.—Bill Ingram, ace back of last year's Navy team, injured in the Virginia game and used for a total of only a few minutes against Harvard and Notre Dame, proved that he is again in form by his excellent running and passing this afternoon.

Ingram showed glimpses of his last year's form by tearing off plenty of yardage in the scrimmage against B squad this afternoon and passed for substantial gains to Baughman and Case, the latter play resulting in a touchdown.

Determined to break into the winning column next Saturday against Pennsylvania, Head Coach Hardwick did the unusual this afternoon in directing a scrimmage by his varsity on a Monday after a big game. Only a few were excused and the line-up indicated that some material changes are imminent.

In the backfield, with Ingram, were Frank Case, Charley Reimann and Ulmont Whitehead. Ingram, however, carried the ball in four of five running plays and seldom failed to gain materially.

Al Wallace, who started the season as first-choice center but who was hurt in the Citadel game, was on the field this afternoon, and may be ready to play by the end of the week. However, both Dick Fincher and Jim Andrews have been doing well on the job and Wallace will have a fight on his hands to regain the place.

Dick Shafer, B squad back, who helped the varsity prepare for Harvard by doing a lot of good forward passing against it, has been shifted to the varsity squad. He also carries the ball well.

This Morning

Dame, and tell 'em the deal was all off—that Georgetown couldn't take care of 'em. But a new faculty moderator of athletics and a change of heart at the Hilltop after several years of football doldrums have served to put G. U. back on the football map.

* * * *

Even the University of Virginia, the purest of the pure, could not hold out against a succession of dismal seasons in football. When the Southern Conference refused to amend its rules to give the athletic chiefs a little latitude in the matter of inviting football material to college, Virginia simply pulled out of the conference last year, hired a nationally known coach and is now proudly watching its football fortunes zoom.

So Pitt fans who may be grumbling at the imminent loss of prestige by Panther teams under the new athletic policy need not be unduly alarmed. These attacks of purity are never chronic—only acute!

Catholic U. Mascot Wins Job With Mother's Delicious Cake

Swinging determinedly along on a crutch, for he is home from the hospital only a week, Master Stely strode into Head Coach "Dutch" Bergman's office and announced in a shrill voice:

"Here's some cake for you and the team, Mr. Bergman, and I, er, ah, well, I want to be your mascot."

"What's that," asked Bergman peering over a stack of letters. "What's that? You want to be our mascot."

He remembered his visitor well, for "Irish" Carroll, Burke Vicnovic, Wayne Ambrose and other players had visited the lad in the hospital, presenting him with a program, autographed by the entire squad, and an autographed picture of Bergman, his No. 1 hero. "Dutch" also talked with the boy over the telephone, and had become genuinely interested in him.

Munching a piece of the delicacy, "Devil's Food" cake, Bergman weighed Master Steley's proposal carefully. A vacancy existed, inasmuch as Ruthie Green, erstwhile holder of the position had resigned. Ruthie was, and still is regarded as a very lucky person, for she was mascot of the 1935 team which defeated Mississippi in the Orange Bowl game in culminating a highly successful year. But Ruthie is growing up, and has suddenly decided that being mascot to a squad of burly gridmen is no job for a lady.

Johnny's eyes opened to saucer-size.

"Well, what do I have to do? When do I have to do it? I'm ready to start right now," he cried.

"Why you can start tomorrow then. Of course you understand that our mascot has to get his mother to bake a cake for the team after every game," concluded Bergman with a twinkle in his eye and a large piece of cake about to disappear into his mouth.—Atchison.

U. S. Not Likely to Be Barred in Olympics.

By Jack Cuddy.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

New York, Oct. 25.—More football—booting the Olympic games around the international gridiron:

Cables from Rome indicate that the nternational amateur athletic federation is considering ways and means to prevent American track and field athletes from participating in the 1940 Olympic games. This is a repercussion from the anti-Nazi dispute which almost split the American Amateur Athletic Union and Olympic committee before the 1936 games in Germany.

* * * *

Whether this new situation will develop into anything serious is a matter of opinion. American authorities claim it will not, and certain European observers say it may.

* * * *

Meanwhile another more pressing problem threatens to confront the international Olmypic committee when it meets in Cairo, Egypt, in March. The committee must decide whether the 1940 games shall be held in Japan, as scheduled.

* * * *

Japan has been embroiled with China since July 7. Right now the Far East experts believe that the chances are slightly better than a 50-50 wager that the war will be ended before the Cairo meeting in March. If the Sino-Japanese difficulties have not been ironed out by March, it is more than probable that the games will be shifted from Japan to Finland.

* * * *

You see, it takes a couple of years for a country to prepare properly to stage the Olympics. It requires time to raise money, build a big stadium, lay out other fields, arrange for housing, etc. Before the Chinese trouble started, Japan was going ahead full blast with the arrangements. Funds were being provided and the outer gardens of the Meiji Shrine in Tokyo were chosen as the location of the main stadium. Plans were being made for the Olympic village, etc.

* * * *

I hope that the Far Eastern conflict is ended long before March. Otherwise an unfortunate situation may develop at Cairo. If the games were shifted to Finland Japanese sportsmen and officials unquestionably would feel offended. And they probably would have sympathy from certain other countries, possibly Germany and Italy. The shift might cause withdrawal not only of Japanese teams but also of those representing sympathetic nations. This would be most unfortunate for the games, wherever held, and for the future of the Olympics.

* * * *

Concerning the International Amateur Athletic Federation's reported feud with the American A. A. U., I doubt that the federation actually would boot the United States body out of its organization. Such an action would serve as a precedent that would threaten the future of athletic organizations throughout the world—and particularly in Europe. It would amount to recognition of mixing politics and sport—something that international athletic officials have been fighting against for years.

* * * *

Cables from Rome state that Bo Ekelund, of Sweden, honorary secretary of the international federation, addressed letters of condemnation to Jeremiah Mahoney, of New York, president of the American A. A. U., because a barnstorming U. S. track and field team was ordered last summer to omit Germany from its European tour. Mahoney, now candidate for mayor of New York City, campaigned bitterly against sending an American team to Germany for the last Olympics.

* * * *

Despite Mahoney's protests, the United States sent to Germany the largest and finest Olympic team that ever represented any country on foreign fields. Unquestionably this proved that the United States and the American Olympic Committee were not in accord with Mahoney's campaign and did not favor mixing politics, religion and racial disagreements with sports. I believe the international federation will take this into consideration before ruling out American track and field athletes.

* * * *

Time Out! BY CHET SMITH

Regal Gridders Play for Charity

The Regal Clothing Co. football team, unbeaten and unscored on in two seasons in the National City League 150 and 160 pounds divisions, will play for charity.

"Pat" Regal, sponsor of the Clothiers, has offered his team's services for the benefit of the Milk Fund. The opponent has not as yet been selected, but suggested teams are those of the High School Division, averaging 160 pounds. Coaches of such teams who wish to play Regal are advised to get in touch with John Jankowski, at Lincoln 2901.

The Regal team has won both its league contests, beating the Palace A. C. 7-0, and Plaza Wine & Liquor, 19-0.

the Purple, 18-0, in an upset. Dick Wade and John Kearney, ends and Al Dickinson, tackle, will bear comparison with Roosevelt's trio of Kolker, Dunbar and Freund.

Eastern will have a decided edge in the backfield. Kidwell and Kemp are a talented pair, able to run, pass and kick with great facility, although kicking is Kidwell's weakest point. Speith is one of the unsung stars. His work against Gonzaga brought his talent clearly into light. He is a sure gainer of those 2 or 3 yards often necessary for a first down and also blocks with accuracy and emphasis.

Export Dearth Checks Early Rise in Wheat

Values Are Temporarily Carried Upward by Strength in Stocks.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 25.—Wheat values temporarily sympathized with stock market upturns today, but the effect was largely offset later by failure to confirm any big wheat export business.

Only scattered trade with overseas could be definitely traced either in Canadian or United States wheat, although some Canadian advices said that more than 500,000 bushels of wheat from Canada had been sold today for shipment abroad. Disappointment relative to seeming thinness of new export demand was so pronounced that a decreases of 3,145,000 bushels in the United Stateswheat visible supply received practically no attention.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ¼ to ½ cent per bushel above Saturday's finish; December, 97⅝@97¾; May, 97¼@97⅜; July, 92¼; corn, ¼ to⅞ up; December, 58½@58⅝; May, 59¾; July, 60¼; oats, unchanged to ⅛ lower; December, 30¼@30⅜, and rye 1⅜ to 1⅝ up; December 74⅜. Provisions results were 7 to 20 cents down.

Stocks Rally Vigorously as Shorts Scramble for Motor and Steel Leaders.

New York, Oct. 25.—Commodities were irregular, United States bonds shaded off, but stocks rallied vigorously after a weak start. Stock turnover was less than 2½ million shares, the smallest in a week, with the exception of Friday, but the extent of the gains in leading stocks was the greatest in some time. Much of the business was done in the last hour, when best prices were reached. December wheat closed a half cent higher at 97¾ cents a bushel.

Stocks began the day with fractional losses in the majority of shares and here and there a stock dropped as much as 2 points. Standard Oil was in that class. Margin selling proved to be short lived and after a moderately active first half hour a disposition to cover spread among the bears. The excitement began with Chrysler, where a large covering order could not be filled for nearly an hour. Meanwhile shorts bought Steel and other leaders and by noon an active rally had carried prices up 2 and 5 points.

Sharp Gains.

Gains were extended after the lunch hour and toward the close of trading the best prices were reached, prices which in Steel meant a gain on the day of more than 5 points and in Chrysler of more than 8 points, or more than 10 points in Chrysler from the low of the day. Stocks to rise from 1 to 7 points, with average gains of 2 and 3 points, were numerous in the steel, metal, motor, chemical, and farm implement groups. Issues in the railroad, equipment, mail order, rubber and amusement sections went ahead as far as 4 points. Recovery was almost as great in food, tobacco, utility and miscellaneous stocks.

Several bids and offers were printed on the ticker tape before a deal was arranged in Coca-Cola. After selling 3 points lower the shares easily rushed up 7 or 8 points. Pacific Western Oil dipped more than 2 points to duplicate its year's worst price. Case recrossed par for about a dozen points. Consolidated Edison, one of the weak stocks Saturday, recovered on its earnings statement.

Taxes Promised.

Financial markets began the new week without much bullish encouragement. To begin with, there was the reminder of President Roosevelt that the extra session of Congress, called by him primarily to vote a little farm relief, would have to vote additional taxes of some sort. At any rate farm relief certainly is the very essence of the thing. Whether the tax required to provide the funds will be a processing tax on manufactured products or a direct income tax, the result will be the same, namely, higher business operating costs and higher prices to consumers.

Week-end statistics were of the same nature as those recently received, indicating some further ebb of the industrial tide. The steel industry this week, according to the estimate of the American Iron and Steel Institute, will operate at an average rate of 52.1 per cent of capacity, a fall of 6.6 per cent from the previous week. A year ago the operating rate was 74.3 per cent of capacity, at which time also operating costs, mainly labor costs, were lower than they now are.

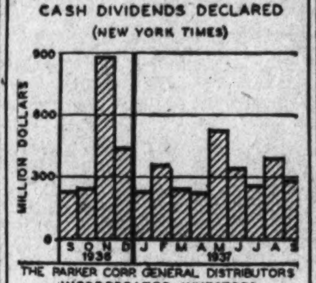
Profits Declining.

Meanwhile, further reports of company profits for third quarter show only a moderate rise over a year ago. With well over a hundred large and medium sized company reports at hand, profits are shown to have run only about 8 per cent higher than last year, the smallest percentages of gain reached since recovery began. Next quarter, it would appear, would bring the first setback in profits since the beginning of the last depression. The outlook naturally makes for caution, but the feeling this week has increased in many quarters that perhaps the stock market has discounted the probabilities.

Odd-Lot Trading.

Some observers think too much is taken for granted in connection with the daily statistics on odd-lot orders. With few exceptions the figures have shown that in the market decline the amount of odd lot stock bought has exceeded the amount sold which would make it appear that the odd-lot trader or investor has acted contrary to the bulk of trading. Some professionals have said they regarded that as the best sign of a bear market, on the ground that the public always is wrong and that odd-lot traders represent the public. On the other hand, the view is expressed that odd-lot trading figures may mean the opposite from what they seem to mean.

September Dividends 24% Over Year Ago



Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—Cash dividend declaration and payments are continuing at record amounts for recent years. September cash dividend declarations exceeded a year ago by 24 per cent and were the largest for any September since 1930. So far this year total dividend declarations jumped 19½ per cent over those in the same 1936 months.

Manufacturing Workers Earn 9.5% Over '29

New York, Oct. 25.—Improvement in the economic status of wage earners has been greater in manufacturing industries than in nonmanufacturing industries, according to an analysis by the National Industrial Conference Board. The greatest improvement is shown in those manufacturing industries producing durable goods.

"Real" weekly earnings which take into account changes in living costs are 9.5 per cent above the 1929 level in manufacturing industry as a whole. In the case of the durable goods group of manufacturing industries "real" earnings are 13.3 per cent above 1929, compared with an increase of 5.2 per cent in the nondurable goods group. Workers in the nonmanufacturing industries are receiving slightly less, 0.4 per cent, in the form of "real" earnings than in 1929.

The index of employment for the durable goods industries indicates that in August, 1937, there were 5.4 per cent less workers than in 1929. Employment in the nondurable goods group was 0.8 per cent above the 1929 level, bringing the index for manufacturing as a whole to a point 2.4 per cent below that level. In nonmanufacturing industries employment is still 17.4 per cent lower than in 1929.

Pay rolls have reached approximately the same levels in comparison with 1929 in both the durable and nondurable goods industries. For manufacturing, as a whole, pay rolls in August, 1937, were 4.9 per cent below the 1929 average. Pay rolls in nonmanufacturing industries have shown less recovery and are still 26.5 per cent below 1929.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, Oct. 25.—The stock market rallied somewhat in the late dealing but the tone remained mixed. Transatlantic issues and oils recovered some of their early losses and giltedged securities were steady. Metals shares sold lower following the decline in London metal quotations and the industrial group was weak, tobacco, steel and motors being offered in large supply. Home rails and foreign bonds were lower.

Paris.—Prices in the bourse turned steady at the close, and some early losses were recovered partially, rentes finished with declines ranging from 75 to 95 centimes. Royal Dutch regained half its loss and Bank of France was down 80 francs. International shares closed steady.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures closed irregular, ⅛d lower to 1⅜d higher. There was liquidation in October while traders purchased late positions on the steady Winnipeg and Buenos Aires market. Demand for cotton futures was poor, and prices closed 11 to 13 points down. Sentiment was influenced by Bombay and outside liquidation and the unsettled stock market.

Chairman, General Foods Corporation.

Cotton Steady; December 8.14

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—Early declines in cotton today under foreign selling were later recovered when the stock market firmed up. March, which has sold up from 7.96 to 8.13, closed at 8.09, with final prices net unchanged to 6 points lower.

The market opened 6 to 11 points lower in sympathy with easiness abroad and soon sold off to net losses of 12 to 15 points. There was some Wall Street selling during the first half hour, but when stocks firmed, early sellers rebought and prices quickly sold up about 13 to 17 points from the lows. January, however, was inclined to lag owing to light foreign selling in that delivery.

Cottonseed Oil.

Cottonseed oil declined 8 to 11 points early today under renewed liquidation and hedge selling, but rallied sharply on increased covering promoted by the subsequent rally in the stock market and steadiness of allied markets. Final prices were near the best and 2 to 5 points net higher. Sales, 100 contracts. Bleachable spot nominal; December closed 7.25; January, 7.26; March, 7.98; May, 7.35.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Renewal of pressure on the French franc following recent firmness was the principal event in a quiet foreign exchange market yesterday.

With the unit down .02 of a cent at 3.36½ cents trading circles heard the French exchange control had re-entered the market abroad with support. This was said to have been given through sale of sterling and purchase of francs.

Sterling in the New York market rose ⅛ of a cent to 4.95⅛. Other important European currencies showed minor changes. For 90-day francs there was a slight widening of the discount from spot quotation.

In Paris the dollar closed at 3.365 cents to the franc, against the New York week-end rate of 3.385 cents. The dollar in London closed at 4.95½ to the pound, compared with $4.95⅛ for sterling in New York over the week-end.

Refinance Your MORTGAGE on a More Attractive Basis
5% Interest Up to 20 Years to Repay
If you are paying more than 5% interest on your mortgage, our Mortgage Loan Plans can cut your interest costs and set up your principal payments on a more attractive basis. You pay only 5% interest on the unpaid balance, and take as long as 20 years to repay. Repayments to fit your budget—monthly, like rent, if you prefer. Come in and learn how we can serve you.

Steel Operations Drop to 52.1 Per Cent

New York, Oct. 25 (AP).—Operations in the steel industry for the current week declined 3.7 points to 52.1 per cent of capacity, compared with 55.8 per cent last week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations averaged 74.4 per cent of capacity, while a year ago the rate was 74.3 per cent.

Boston Wool Market.

Boston, Oct. 25 (AP).—(United States Department Agriculture).—A few bids were received on fine Western-grown wools in today's market. Actual trade was small. Bids on combing lengths fine wools in original bags were as low as 70 cents, scoured basis. Average to short French combing lengths fine territory wools in original bags were reported available in limited quantities at around 75 cents. Good French combing length fine original territory wools were mostly under 80 cents, but there was resistance to the acceptance of prices under this level.

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY By Clifford McBride

Bob Burns Says—

People who seem to be makin' a big success in the world today are the ones who picked out one certain line and followed through with it.

One of the best examples I know of is my Uncle Chig's parrot. This parrot had nothin' for a playmate but a dog and he got so he could imitate a dog better than any parrot in the world. Uncle Chig went into vaudeville with the parrot and was makin' a lot'ta money but one day he got to thinkin' about how much money he could make if this parrot could imitate a lot of animals as good as he did the dog. So he took him out on a big farm where he had a lot'ta animals to listen to.

Today this parrot ain't worth a dime to Uncle Chig. All the parrot can say is "Quack-a-doodle-moo."

Surgeons Give Approval to 11 D. C. Hospitals

2,621 in U. S. and Canada Are Placed on 1937 Honor Roster.

Eleven Washington hospitals are among 2,621 throughout the United States and Canada on the 1937 "approved" list of the American College of Surgeons, it was announced yesterday in Chicago.

They are Children's, Columbia, Emergency, Episcopal, Freedmen's, Gallinger, Garfield, Georgetown, George Washington, National Homeopathic and Providence. The honor roster was made public at the opening of the twentieth annual Hospital Standardization Conference and the clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

Meanwhile, Dr. Charles Stanley White, chairman of the District of Columbia membership of the American College of Surgeons, reported that Doctors Hospital, to be erected shortly in the 1800 block of I street northwest, will subscribe to all requirements of the American College of Surgeons.

At the end of the first field survey in 1918, only 89 hospitals were considered sufficiently well equipped, organized and administered to merit approval.

"The fact that 1 of every 14 persons in the United States and Canada went to some hospital in 1936, with the probability that the same ratio will be maintained in 1937, suggests how important hospitals are to every community," said Dr. George Crile, chairman of the college's board of regents.

The survey, which ended October 1, based its selections on ten criteria: A modern physical plant, efficient organization, a good governing board, competent and well-trained superintendent, adequate personnel, qualified medical staff, adequate diagnostic and therapeutic facilities, accurate and complete medical records, regular group conferences of the administrative and medicals staffs, humanitarian spirit.

Tuberculosis Deaths in D. C. Show Increase

A marked gain in the District death rate from tuberculosis in 1936 over 1935 was shown yesterday in a review of statistics gathered from State boards of health by the National Tuberculosis Association.

Death rates showed the District to be higher than any other State, excepting Arizona.

Showing a gain of 4.7 per cent, deaths here were 662 in 1936 as compared with 607 in 1935. The death rate here of 106.9 per 100,000 population was exceeded only by Arizona with 271.2 per 100,000 population. The only other State over the 100 mark was New Mexico, with 106.4.

Twenty-four States also showed an increase in deaths from tuberculosis, according to Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Depression years were blamed by Dr. Emerson for the upward swing in the death rate. "With the improvement in our technique for handling tuberculosis," he said, "it should be possible to prevent any material rise in the rate."

Thirteen Tricks a Laydown.

The traveling score sheets used in duplicate games tell significant tales. I am not referring to the match-point scores—a person may do a job extremely well but, for any one of a multiple of reasons, may get very poor pay for it. Conversely, he may have a sinecure and be rewarded out of all proportion to his dessert. It is the contract itself and the result of same that interests me when I go over the score sheet. Consider today's hand.

	♠ A J 5 ♡ J 3 ◇ K J 10 2 ♣ A J 9 8
♠ 9 8 ♡ 7 6 2 ◇ 8 6 4 3 ♣ K Q 10 5	North West East South	♠ Q 4 3 ♡ K 10 8 5 ◇ 9 7 5 ♣ 7 4 3
	♠ K 10 7 6 2 ♡ A Q 9 4 ◇ A Q ♣ 6 2

This was played in a six-table duplicate: two teams bid and made six spades; three bid four and made six; one bid four and made only four.

It is not the contracts themselves that I wish to place under discussion although, incidentally, I might point out the small slam should have been bid at all tables, since it depended on being successful with one finesse out of two. What interested me was that no declarer had achieved the perfectly normal result of taking all the tricks in the play. Whether the contract is four or six, surely the following is the most logical line of play:

West opened the club King at all tables. Dummy wins, and three rounds of diamonds must be played to allow declarer the discard of his losing club. Then, surely, the heart finesse is the normal next step. When the Queen holds, the Ace is cashed and a low heart ruffed with the five of spades. A club is ruffed with declarer's deuce, and the fourth heart ruffed with dummy's Jack. Certainly it is now a simple matter to ruff another club with the six-spot—remember the Queen has not yet shown up from West and, therefore, no overruff is imminent—and, now, declarer is reduced to the K-10 and 7 of trumps and dummy to the blank Ace of trump, one diamond and one club.

A trump to the Ace forces the lead of a diamond or a club from dummy, and at this point declarer has nothing to lose by trumping with the ten-spot. Since the Queen lies with East, declarer automatically finds himself with 13 tricks.

I am still trying to find out how so many declarers managed to lose a trick!

Widowed Mother Of 3 KiKlls Herself

Mrs. Sadie Koplin, 42, of 1300 Clifton street northwest, died in Emergency Hospital last night of a bullet wound in the brain which police said was self-inflicted.

In ill health and despondent over death of her husband, police reported the woman fired a shot into her head in the home of her mother at 1508 Upshur street northwest yesterday afternoon.

A maid told police she heard a shot and rushed upstairs to find Mrs. Koplin lying across a bed, a revolver clutched in her hand and blood streaming from her head.

Relatives said the woman had been under a doctor's care for some time. She had three children.

First Applications Due For Realtors' Licenses

First applications for licenses under the new real estate brokers license law will be received today in the office of the Real Estate Commission, Room 24, District Building, it was announced yesterday.

On and after November 23, the commission warned, it will be unlawful to act as a real estate broker, business chance broker or real estate salesman, or to advertise or assume to act as such without a license.
